The Ford Monoplane.
Henry's Son Shows It.
60 Feet Wide, 48 Feet Long.
Weight 3,650 Pounds; Get Yours.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Yesterday was spent with Edsel B. Ford, getting information about the Ford flying planes. News of the greatest importance to everybody in this country, to the flying machine industry of the whole world, and to the safety of the United States.

At Dearborn, near Henry Ford's great experimental laboratory, not long ago, there was a big field, covered with trees 100 feet high. Henry Ford's son determined to make Detroit the center of flying machine manufacturing, decided to have an airplane factory on that field. Just 60 days later the factory was there and mechanics were at work manufacturing all-metal heavier than air flying machines.

Yesterday morning Edsel Ford invited his visitor to climb into the pilot seat of an all-metal monoplane just finished, one that will make its first flight today or tomorrow.

That machine will one day be as important to the world as the little automobile, with bicycle wheels Henry "demonstrated" to his neighbor 32 years ago. The name painted on the side of the monoplane is "Maiden Dearborn."

You and your children will fly in that kind of a machine in a few years and a description of it may interest you.

It looks like a huge bird of solid silver. Its single plane, or pair of wings stretch 60 feet across. The fuselage, which automobile owners would call a sedan body, suspended under the wing, is 48 feet long.

By taking out four bolts, in case of engine trouble—which won't happen to these flying machines any more than it does to a first class automobile—the engine can be taken off the front end and a new one put in its place in a couple of hours.

The car will carry 10 passengers including the pilot, or a load of 1,500 pounds besides the gasoline carried in two big tanks in the wings.

You cannot stand quite upright in the fuselage, but there's plenty of head room as you set down. The seats can be pulled out, as in a Pullman car, and made into sleeping berths for night travel.

The entire machine, except the engine, is made of a metal alloy, which is 94 per cent aluminum, four per cent copper and a little mangaese or cobalt. That gigantic machine, 60 feet wide, 48 feet long, as long as a good sized bungalow, weighs, including the heavy motor, only 3,650 pounds—a thousand pounds less than a good sized sedan car.

You will ask questions about this vehicle in which you are destined to travel, at a hundred miles an hour, for "quiet cruising," at first up to 300 miles an hour in later machines.

Is the aluminum alloy called "dura? lumin" strong? Yes, as strong as "mild" steel.

What about the danger of lightning, supposed to have destroyed the great Zeppelin Dixmude after the French took it from the Germans.

No danger from lightning. Aluminum is a better conductor of electricity than iron or steel. In an aluminum car you will be as safe from lightning as in a steel skyscraper or an iron ship. Nobody has ever been hurt by lightning in a skyscraper or an iron ship.

What do these machines cost? The first few machines before "quantity" production is accomplished will probably be sold for $25,000 apiece. The Fords, father and son, will sell at that price, although the first machines will cost more than a hundred thousand dollars apiece. Later they will be able to reduce the price on the big machines, carrying a ton load, to $12,000, and less. And the next step will be a smaller machine, also all-metal, for about five or six thousand dollars.

Facilities for purchasing on instalments will be provided as is done with automobiles. A young man with ambition should earn a hundred dollars a day above expenses with one of these machines, and in the first year make money enough to pay $25,000 for it and have $10,000 left over for himself.

How quickly can you learn to fly? That depends on the student. Some young men have learned in one day and have gone up and come down safely alone the second day. Almost anybody with a well-balanced head and good nerves can learn to fly in eight hours of actual flying time. It is easier than learning to knit.

The eight hours are usually spread

BLACK MONSTER CUTS PATH OF DESOLATION THROUGH FIVE STATES

Blackened Ruins of More Than 33 Towns Mercifully Hide Bodies of Victims, While Hospitals are Crowded With at Least 3,000 Injured as Twister Exacts Toll.

SCORES OF BODIES ARE CREMATED IN FLAMES WHICH FOLLOW STORM

Extent of Property Damage in Northwestern Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee is Uncertain, But is Estimated as High as $150,000,000.

A path of desolation, strewn with approximately 1,000 known dead and more than three times that number of injured, many of whom probably will die, stretched through five states today in the wake of the tornado which yesterday whirled out of northwestern Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee, paid their toll to the "black monster of the sky."

And in those states today's dawn broke over some 33 towns in blackened ruins which mercifully hid the mangled dead.

Scores of bodies are believed to have been cremated in the flames which followed the tornado and added to the terror of the night.

It will be days—possibly weeks—before anything approximating an accurate check on casualties can be made. Almost hourly come new reports of dead and injured as crippled wire communications are partially restored in the stricken area. And even in the more populous centers the demoralization brought by the death-laden wind has prevented effective rescue work or any orderly reports on the loss of life.

Scores of Towns Wiped Out.

The extent of the property damage, residents of the storm-swept sections have not even attempted to estimate. Some rescue workers say it will run to $50,000,000; others believe $150,000,000 will be nearer. From the panorama of destruction, with its scores of towns virtually annihilated, state authorities admit they are unable to evolve any figures which they would be willing to offer as a damage estimate.

The U. S. weather bureau at Chicago, today charted the path of the storm as a strip less than half a mile wide through Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. It first struck near Annapolis, Mo., lifted across the Missouri river and struck with renewed fury on the Illinois border.

Here the towns of Murphysboro, Gorham, Carbondale, De Soto, Duquoin, Bush, Tammaroa, Centralia, Benton, Logan, Parrish, Frankfort, West Frankfort and Thompsonville were in Levels Indiana Towns.

Completing its devastation there, it again lifted as it sped eastward, descending again near the eastern border of the state where Crossville and Carmi felt its breath of death.

Then the monster entered Indiana, leveling Princeton and Griffin and other towns near the Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky state lines.

Still unchecked, the course of the storm turned southeast over Kentucky and Tennessee and these states gave up their tribute to nature's fury. The towns of Angle, Witham, Oak Grove, Supheria, Buck Lodge, Peatown and Gallatin, in Tennessee, were the hardest hit in this territory, reports today indicate. Thirty were reported dead at Gallatin and approximately 50 in the other Tennessee towns which were virtually razed.

Fires in Many Communities.

CHICAGO, March 19.—The Tornado that tore its way of death and destruction through southern Illinois and into Indiana left a toll of 1,265 lifeless victims lying in its wake today, according to latest reports from the stricken cities and villages. To this appalling death total may be added scores, possibly hundreds more, before the day is done. The estimates of the injured, including those gravely, probably fatally hurt, and others suf-

PASTOR'S KIN DIES IN STORM

Sister-in-law of Rev. B. R. Johnson Tornado Victim.

Mrs. Clora Johnson, sister-in-law of Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Church of Christ, was killed in the tornado, which swept Indiana and Illinois yesterday, according to a telegram received today from his brother, Brady Johnson, of Owensville, Ind.

Mrs. Johnson met her death when her home was destroyed.

The home of Carl Johnson, which was the Johnson homestead, was also swept away by the storm, the message said.

The two residences were located four miles apart.

Other relatives of Rev. Johnson suffered heavy damage in the twister, which wrought great havoc in the district in which the paster was born.

Rev. Johnson left here at noon today for the tornado-swept zone.

Warning is Issued Against Money Order And Stamp Purchases

Merchants were warned today against cashing money orders and purchasing postage stamps from strangers by Postmaster Edwin McClure.

A reward of $200 has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the yeggs who recently blew the postoffice safe at Lorain and made their escape with several thousand dollars worth of one and two-cent stamps. One of the bank robbers was captured when the automobile, in which they were fleeing, was wrecked at a grade crossing near Lorain.

BLAZE SWEEPS MONROEVILLE; DAMAGE PLACED AT $130,000

Grain Elevator, Store House and Lumber Yard Destroyed.

AID IS CALLED

Ohio City Standpipe Empty as Fire Rages.

NORWALK, O., March 19.—Fire caused about $130,000 damage at Monroeville this morning, when the grain elevator and store house of J. P. Easton and Schneider Brothers' lumber yards and car of flour on a side track were destroyed.

Easton's loss is placed at $100,000 or more. He carried $87,000 insurance.

Fire pumpers were sent to the scene from Norwalk and Bellevue.

Traffic on the New York Central, W. & L. E. and L. S. E. lines was suspended for several hours.

ABANDON HOPE FOR 34 MINERS

Men Trapped in Barracksville Explosion Believed Dead.

ON BOARD UNITED STATES BUREAU OF MINES RESCUE CAR NO. 3, AT MOUTH OF MINE NO. 41, BARRACKSVILLE, W. Va., Mar. 19.—The Stark tragedy, ever looming in a miner's every-day life, stalked in this little town today, leaving dull despair in its wake.

Thirty-four men are still entombed in the Bethlehem Mine corporation mine where they were caught 300 feet below the surface by an explosion Tuesday night, and unless all signs found in the mine fail, the miners will be brought out dead, according to many of the rescue workers.

Fire, which broke out in the mine late yesterday, was holding back rescue work today, but it will be under control within four hours, R. M. Lambie, chief of the state department of mines, who heads all rescue work, said.

"They may be dead—every mother's son of them," Lambie said, after his latest trip down into the mine.

Mrs. C. A. McGehen's Brother's Unhurt In Mine Disaster

Mrs. C. A. McGehen, of St. Clair avenue, today received a telegram from Barracksville, W. Va., scene of Tuesday's mine explosion, announcing the safety of her brother, H. E. Nuzum, and other members of his family.

Nuzum is superintendent of the Bethlehem Mine Corporation at Barracksville. He was not in the mine at the time of the explosion, which trapped 34 miners and caused thousands of dollars worth of property damage outside the mine.

"DEVIL MADE ME DO IT," POISONER OF MOTHER, UNCLE AND AUNT SAYS

Mrs. Martha Wise Confesses She Put Arsenic in Water Bucket at Valley City — Three Dead, 13 Ill.

MEDINA, O., March 19.—Admitting the lack of a motive, reiterating again and again "the devil made me do it," Mrs. Martha Wise is in the custody of Sheriff Roshon today, the self-confessed poisoner of her mother, Mrs. Sophie Hazel; her uncle, Fred Glenke, Sr., and her aunt, Mrs. Lily Glenke, as well as the illness of some 13 or more relatives and acquaintances in the Hardscrabble district at Valley City, near here. Whether she will be tried for murder or an attempt made to commit her to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Lima was to be decided today by Prosecutor Joseph Seymour, after consultation with physicians who will be called to examine the woman.

Statement is Surprise

The finger of suspicion, it was learned, had been pointed at Mrs. Wise frequently, since news that the triple tragedy in the Glenke family was a subject of official examination. It was not, however, until late yesterday that Mrs. Glenke was brought before Seymour, Sheriff Roshon, his wife and Coroner Crum, on a forthwith subpoena. She was brought here from a Cleveland hospital, where she had gone for a minor operation.

WALTER SUGDEN KIWANIS GUEST

Past Governor of West Virginia is Speaker.

"Any man in Kiwanis, who is not willing to give some of his time, and some of his energy to the cause of his organization, is about as useless as a motormeter is to a Franklin automobile."

This, in brief, was the thought brought to members of the Kiwanis club by Walter E. Sugden, Sistersville, immediate past governor of the West Virginia district at the noon luncheon in the Larkins annex, today.

Sugden, accompanied by Dr. Burdett, past president of the Wheeling club; Samuel Wells, Wellsburg, and Richard Nicholson, of Wheeling, arrived here last night. They were guests of William L. Smith, Chester.

The speaker lauded the "spirit and enthusiasm of the local club, during his address. "The surest marks of activity and influence which a Kiwanis club exercises in its community is shown by the attendance records," he declared, in commenting upon the number of members present.

Dr. Burdett spoke briefly, telling of his work as head of the Wheeling club. The attendance prize, silk socks, furnished by Frank Williams, was awarded to Olen Dawson.

President George E. Lewis, presided. The general singing was led by Prof. H. F. Laughlin, with Clair Chambers at the piano.

About 70 members of the club and their guests attended the meeting.

TWO DIE WHEN TRAINS CRASH

MAN, WORRIED BY ILLNESS OF INVALID WIFE, CUTS THROAT

Louis Orr, 54, Misses Jugular Vein in Suicide Attempt.

HE MAY RECOVER

Printer Suffers From Shock and Loss of Blood.

Despondent over his wife's illness, Louis Orr, 54, printer, attempted suicide by slashing his throat with a razor at his home in West Center alley at 8 o'clock last evening. Attendants at the City hospital, where he was removed, believe he will recover.

Orr, whose wife has been an invalid for six months, did not work yesterday. While his brother-in-law, Martin Leach, who lives at the Orr home, was absent last night, the despondent man went to the cellar and cut his throat from ear to ear, but the razor missed the juglar vein.

Dropping the razor on a box, Orr ran up the stairs and into the alley, where he attempted to make his death certain with the use of a penknife. Leach, returning to the house as Orr was using the penknife, disarmed him.

Weakened by Loss of Blood.

The police were immediately notified, Captain Conley and Desk Sergeant Toland responding. When the officers arrived, they found Orr lying in the alley. The Sturgis ambulance was summoned and the man hurried to the hospital. He made no statement, either before or after his removal to the hospital.

Captain Conley accompanied Orr to the hospital, while Patrolman Toland made an investigation. Toland found the razor, stained with blood in the cellar. Blood stains were found on the cellar floor and also on the steps leading to the first floor and to the alley. The penknife, which Orr used in the alley, was also stained.

At the hospital Orr was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall. He was greatly weakened from the loss of blood and shock, but spent a restful night, according to attendants.

Driver Exonerated From Blame in Fatal Auto Crash Here

Charles Hartt, accountant, was exonerated from all blame in connection with the death of Mrs. Katherine Troisleme, 66, who was run down by an automobile near the corner of Fifth and Monroe streets, Tuesday night, by County Coronoer Dr. J. M. Van Fossan, East Palestine, following an inquest, this morning.

The coroner, after questioning Hartt and other witnesses, asserted that Mrs. Troislebe had violated the city traffic ordinance in attempting to cross the street 60 feet west of the street intersection and that Hartt had done everything in his power to avert the accident.

It was "an unavoidable accident," the coroner ruled.

Funeral services for Mrs. Troisleme will be conducted in the St. Aloysius Catholic church at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Burial will be made in the St. Aloysius cemetery.

CHURCH MUSICALE HERE POSTPONED

Officers of the Young Woman's Home Missionary society of the First Methodist Protestant church today announced that the musicale, planned for tomorrow night in the church, has been postponed until Friday, March 27.

The organization decided to defer the program one week in order that it would not conflict with the lecture course attraction at the high school tomorrow night.

WOMAN GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Mrs. Mary Bubbard, colored, of Midland, was found guilty on an indictment, charging her with voluntary manslaughter, in connection with the murder of her husband, Frank Hubbard, Midland mill worker, by a jury in common pleas court at Beaver, yesterday.

The jury deliberated four hours before it reached a verdict. Mrs. Hubbard will be sentenced later. Attorney R. S. Holt in his closing plea to the jury declared that Mrs. Hubbard had shot her husband in self-defense.

SKIRTS FULLER AND HIGHER, WITH PEEK-A-BOO SLEEVES AND GAY COLORS, IS SPRING STYLE DECREE

Skirts fuller—and higher.

Sleeves that reveal "the skin you love to touch."

Waist lines, sometimes high, sometimes low, but always most decided, except in rare instances.

"Elaborate simplicity," with a distinct trend toward the feminine.

Color combinations that pale into significance the traditional glory of the strutting pea fowl.

All this apropos of the Spring Display Days—semi-annual fashion show—ushered in today by the merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce.

In the exhibit, which will continue until Saturday night, milady has an opportunity to keep abreast of the styles and she may learn exactly what she is expected to wear every hour of the twenty-four.

Simplicity Dominant Note.

The cream of the output from the shops of the leading modistes of New York, Chicago, Cleveland and other populous centers is displayed in the stores catering to women, while equally attractive are the creations for men's wear.

The display is not confined to clothes for the two sexes, for new styles in hats and shoes are exhibited, while spring stocks of furniture and other household needs are also included in the offerings.

Simplicity is to be the dominant note of the fashions this season, according to the modistes. But it is to be an "elaborate simplicity."

A widely-known designer who is building a trousseau (and by "trousseau" is NOT meant a bride's outfit, but a "wardrobe for milady's wear around the clock") explains this by saying that the basic principals of the costumes will be simple in the extreme, while the effects of elaborateness will be achieved in the colorings of the fabrics used and the trimmings, which promises to be richer and more gorgeous than ever, this year.

This Designer has original ideas in costuming. She refuses to be governed by any hide-bound set rules of fashion, insisting on taking the models and adapting them to the individuality of the wearer. In other words, she builds that individuality of the wearers into the gowns she creates.

"Otherwise my label will NOT go into the gowns," she says—and a label carries unqualified endorsement of the creation.

Paris Is Style Center

She has a word to say on Paris as the style center of the world.

"Paris always will be a style center," she added. "That is, Paris will continue to send our models, but it is up to us to take them or to leave them as we see fit. By that time I mean we can take them and adapt them to American use.

"What we are trying to do, however, and succeeding, too, is to develop distinctly American styles."

As an after effect of the great war, she explained, styles showed a distinct trend toward the masculine, but now they have begun an equally distinct trend toward the feminine.

This is indicated in the fuller skirts, the wealth of ornamentation and especially in the return of sleeves.

These latter are to be long—very long—but of filmy stuff that will reveal and not conceal—often with open spaces along their length—but all very long and very full.

That doesn't mean that all costumes are to have sleeves.

Common Sense Dictates.

"I wouldn't want to go shopping in a sleeveless gown," said another de-

THREE PERISH IN HOTEL FIRE

Postoffice Looted as Flames Rage in West Palm Beach

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Mar. 19.—Three persons are believed to have lost their lives in a fire which ruined two hotels and caused $4,000,000 property damage in the famous resort of Palm Beach last night. The flames were brought under control after dynamite had been obtained and made ready for blasting a path between the flaming buildings and other structures.

During the conflagration it was learned that the postoffice in West Palm Beach had been looted of $20,000 and the West Palm Beach company of Florida infantry was called out to patrol the streets and prevent further looting.

Thousands of dollars in valuable wearing apparel and other chattels of guests, whose fortunes run into millions of dollars, today lay on the ground, carried from the blazing hotels by the owners and servants. This, also is under guard of the soldiers.

Nurse and Two Children Die.

The Breakers, one of the oldest and best known of the resort hotels, was the first structure to take fire. The flames were discovered by Charles D. Frey of Chicago and Miss D. Prather of Washington who spread the alarm.

The three believed to have perished are two children and their nurse. The father of the children, refusing to give his name, but who said he was captain of a yacht anchored in the lake, declared he left his two children and their nurse asleep in the Breakers.

After the Breakers had begun to burn fiercely, the Palm Beach hotel, a smaller structure in West Palm Beach, caught fire, and also was burned to the ground.

Today all that was left of what once was the pride of the social elite of the United States and Europe was a shapeless ruin. Four gaunt chimneys stand where the Breakers once was.

Millionaires Camping.

Miss Prather called the fire department, but when the fire fighters arrived she was unable to convince them for several minutes that a fire was burning. When they finally located it, the blaze was beyond control. With a strong wind blowing the frame structure soon was nothing but ashes.

Embers were whirled blazing about West Palm Beach and business structures were threatened. The Palm Beach hotel was an easy victim.

More than 400 guests who were at the Breakers and about 200 at the Palm Beach were taken care of by private families, the Poinciana Hotel, the Everglades club or the Country club.

Millionaires, with their wives, relatives and guests were camping out today on the beach with three or four trunks, hastily crammed with wearing apparel and jewels. Practically everything in the hotel was lost. They were taking the situation with a smile, however. Barrels of flour, chairs, bureaus, dressers, flimsy pretty things, photographs, and everything imaginable, was scattered about the beach and the golf course adjoining.

1,000 are Dead

fering fractures, ran as high as 8,000 in some instances.

The full toll of the black monster that whirled so suddenly and so dreadfully out of an afternoon sky may not be fully known for another 24 hours. Fires are burning in scores of stricken communities, completing the work of destruction wrought by the cyclone that was nature's greatest blow to the state of Illinois.

Troops are already in charge at several spots in the stricken area, that extends through southern Illinois from the western to the eastern borders.

Relief Trains Arrive.

Relief trains have arrived at the devestated regions, while more are being started from cities throughout the state. Governor Small, who, with Adjutant General Carlos Black, fills the National guard, remained at the state capital in Springfield throughout the night, directing first aid measures. He appealed to the citizens to rush supplies for the help of the sufferers to the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross.

At the same time an emergency relief appropriation of $500,000 was to be called up in the state legislature some time today with the expectancy of immediate passage.

The death blow dealt the southern part of the state was almost unbelievable in its suddenness. Almost before residents realized what had happened, a many-vortexed tornado in the shape of a black cloud rushed upon them and in a twinkling villages were wined out and the dead and dying left behind.

In some of the smaller communities it was reported that only a meager, pitiful few of the total population were left alive.

Buildings Vanish Like Cardboard

Public buildings, factories, homes or huts, all vanished like cardboard structures before the terrific wind, and in many towns, the more sturdy edifices that defied the sky monster fell in the flames that followed the mad wind in its flight. Mines in the coal country of Illionis were wrecked.

The frantic search of the wreckage for crushed but possible alive victims that was carried on through the night was continued with dogged hope today.

The cities where greatest loss of life and property occurred are West Frankfort, with 400 estimated dead; Murphysboro, 200 dead; De Soto, 140 dead, and Carmi and its environs, 100 dead.

Fire added to the horror in West Frankfort and De Soto. The wreckage burned over several blocks in both cities, incinerating bodies of the victims.

The great storm swept out of the west developing in eastern Kansas, sweeping over Missouri, causing some loss of life in that state and gaining in intensity, crossed the Mississippi between St. Louis, Mo., and Cairo, Ill. Hugh D. BPalestin

Storm Mile Wide.

Murphysboro was first to feel its strength. A great, black cloud swept down upon the city, turning afternoon brightness into inky midnight darkness. Then came, after a moment of death-like stillness, a shriek of the wind, crashing of buildings and death. The surge of the storm was gone in a minute, then came a deluge of rain. That is the description survivors give.

The path of the storm—the heart of it—was not more than a mile wide. It might have passed through the state without striking any city. But it chanced that some of the most populous cities in the southern part of the state were directly in its path. Rain continued to fall throughout the night and snow was threatening. The temperature had been above 60 degrees before the storm. Afterward it fell to near the freezing point, bringing intense suffering to thousands of homeless.

TORNADO DEATH TOLL BY TOWNS

CHICAGO, March 19.—By towns, the death toll from yesterday's midwestern tornado, today stood:

West Frankfort, Ill., 400.
Murphysboro, Ill., 250.
New Orient, Ill., 25.
De Soto, Ill., 250.
Parrish, Ill., 30.
Griffin, Ind., 25.
Carbondale, Ill., 25.
Vergenes, Ill., 38.
Princeton, Ind., 100.
Annapolis, Mo., 3.
Gorham, Ill., 35.
Logan, Ill., 19.
Caldwell, Ill., 9.
Royalton, Ill., 3.
Scattering in farming regions, 50.

The number of injured, many of whom it is feared will die, is placed at between 5,600 and 6,000.

Churches, lodge halls, school houses and private homes were converted into emergency hospitals. Doctors from St. Louis, Chicago and the larger cities of the country were on the scene today to administer relief. Roads were reported blocked by washouts and banks of debris. This condition hampered the relief work.

By tonight relief workers will have made a complete survey of the stricken area and will be able to give accurate estimates of the loss of life and property.

Fire Adds to Horror

Benton and Duquoin were quickly organized as relief stations, as was Gorham. In all these towns every available inch of space was being used for the injured, who will number into the thousands. Many are reported dying hourly. On every hand were stretched mangled and bleeding victims. The wrecked towns of Murphysboro and West Frankfort were undergoing indescribable scenes of death, devastation and pain. Long caravans of automobiles carried the dead to nearby towns whose medical facilities are pitifully inadequate to cope with the unprecedented situation. The dead were left lying in the streets, a few assembled in neat rows, but many left tangled in the wrecks in which they perished.

The cyclone struck its first blow at Annapolis, Mo., leaped madly across into Illinois for several hundred miles, tearing on its way to Indiana before it spent its force. Herrin and Marion were both in its path but no definite word has been obtained of the casualties or damage at either of these points.

At De Soto fire added to the horror. The school house here went down, sending its timbers and brick over 125 children. Eleven are known dead, 90 were hurt, many fatally, and 20 are still missing in the wreckage.

Property Damage Tremendous.

Property damage will reach more than $5,000,000 at Murphysboro and West Frankfort, the two largest cities struck. The Chicago & Eastern railroad shops were completely demolished at West Frankfort, as was workings of the famous Orient mine, where hundreds were killed and injured. The greatest chaos reigned and efforts of systematizing the rescue work failed miserably. Fire broke out in a number of smaller towns and for miles and miles the sky was lurid with its glow of devastation.

An injured man reached the village of Ava with first news of the destruction at Murphysboro. He was unable to give exact figures of the dead and injured. He drove part of the way from Murphysboro to Ava in an automobile, but was forced to abandon it because of washed out roads.

"I don't know how many are dead," he reported. "I just got out of there to try and get help. There were bodies lying on the streets everywhere and the injured were dying like dogs. There was no one to aid them."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 19.—Industrial stocks sold at moderately higher prices in early trading today. There was a distinct improvement in the independent oil stocks.

The market was active in the first hour. Outside demand for stocks was comparatively small and prices settled down to a lower level.

The industrial leaders were exceptions. United States Steel was taken in large blocks at 121, up ¾ points from the low of yesterday; General Electric was up five points and American Can, motor stocks moved upward in good order, as did also the public utility shares.

The St. Paul stocks and junior bonds declined to a new low level, chiefly as the result of rumors that heavy assessments would be laid against stockholders, while holders of all but the fully secured bonds would receive no more interest payments.

The railroad group as a whole moved upward after the opening, but was unable to continue the rally.

Pittsburgh Live Stock

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 19.—Cattle—Supply light, market steady. STORM DAMAGES PHONE LINES

East Liverpool and Other Ohio Cities Feel Twister.

Little damage was done in the East Liverpool district by the cyclone-like windstorm, tail of the Illinois twister, which swept the state last night, according to reports today.

Approximately 100 local and 15 toll lines were damaged, officials of the Ohio Bell Telephone company declared. Linemen completed repairs at noon today.

Part of the board fence surrounding the new Potters' National Bank building, at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets, was blown over. Several billboards, belonging to the Ceramic Bill Posting company, in various parts of the city, were damaged.

Lisbon District Hit.

About 100 telephones were put out of commission in the Lisbon district.

There was a rainfall of .20 inches Wednesday, and the rainfall Wednesday night and Thursday morning was registered as .61 inches, making a total for the last 24 hours of .81 inches. This is the official record as announced by U. S. Observer Lawrence H. Copeland, at Millport.

The wind, according to Copeland, registered 80 miles an hour.

A few electric wires were blown from their supports in the Lisbon district.

A tree was blown over the high tension line of the Y. & O. railroad at the Miller coal property north of Lisbon during the night, breaking the line.

There was a "slip" on the road at Gander Flats, just south of the Lisbon Y. & O., station.

Damage was repaired early Thursday morning, but the service was interrupted for several hours.

CANTON, March 19.—Small frame garages were moved over on lots of neighbors, signs were blown down, garbage cans and wastepaper boxes along the streets were scattered around, trees and electric light and telephone wires were blown down here last night and early today, as a result of the tail end of the Illinois twister striking Canton. There was no serious damage to buildings and fortunately no fires broke out during the high wind. Many Canton people have relatives in the wind-stricken districts and they are besieging newspaper offices here for tidings from friends.

NEW LEXINGTON, March 19.—The homes of Peter Saltsack, Herbert Hopkins and Stewart Penn at Kendville were all destroyed early this morning, when a defective flue in the Saltsack home set fire to the house and heavy wind carried sparks to the other houses. The loss is about $7,000.

"Devil Made Me"

For a time, Seymour said, the woman maintained her innocence.

"I don't know anything about it," she declared with emphasis.

Last night, her composure broke. "Tell us how you did it," Mrs. Roshon, wife of the sheriff urged.

"Well, maybe, I did," Mrs. Wise admitted. "Yes, I did it. I put arsenic in the water buckets."

The statement came as a complete surprise. Seymour had believed that the poisoner had placed the arsenic purchased at a Medina drug store in the coffee, which the family drank at the holiday dinner on New Year's day, but the simplicity of the poison scheme, and its thoroughness caused Mrs. Wise's hearers to gasp.

Mrs. Wise is a widow and 41. She has four children ranging in age from 7 to 14.

According to her signed statement, she poisoned the water at her mother's home on Thanksgiving Day, and at the Glenke home on New Year's Day. Mrs. Hazel died a few days later, and Mrs. Glenke died on January 3. Her husband's death occurred February 8.

Salient Points of Confession.

Salient points in the signed confession are:

"On the day before New Years, I went down to Glenke's after milk. I put some arsenic in the water pail. The water pail was always sitting on the cupboard in Glenke's kitchen.

"I don't know why I did it. I just couldn't help it. The Devil was in me.

"The day before my mother, Mrs. Hazel, took sick, I was at her home. She and my brother, Fred Hazel, lived in the same house in separated parts. She had her kitchen and Hazels had theirs.

"I went to my mother's part of the house and put a small quantity of arsenic in the water bucket. Just a pinch of it. The water bucket was sitting on the cupboard in her kitchen.

"Along the latter part of January, or the first of February,—I can't remember which—I put some more arsenic in the water bucket at Glenke's. That was the last time.

Bought Arsenic in Medina

"I did not give Marie"—a daughter of the Glenke's now suffering from arsenic poisoning at Memorial hospital in Elyria—"any arsenic in the hospital."

TODAY

over eight days.

The curious thing is that it takes about one hour for an intelligent man to learn to fly and seven hours to learn how to make a landing without smashing the machine.

In front are two great wheels with pneumatic tires, about 16 inches in diameter. They have powerful shock absorbers and can safely come down to the ground at a speed of 50 miles an hour. The pilot lands with the front part of the monoplane tilted upward, striking the ground first with the "tail" of his machine, provided with a flat metal landing piece without wheels and protected by shock absorbers. This tail piece dragging along the ground, acts as a brake, compelling the machine to slow down.

The running of the machine seems quite simple, all but the landing.

You have before you an ordinary automobile wheel. While it stands up perpendicularly in front of you the airship flies on a level keel. Push it one way, the machine goes up, push it another way, and the machine goes down.

Turn the wheel left or right if you want to steer to the left or right. But there is very little steering once you are headed in the right direction. There are no curves or corners on that air way.

The steering is done principally on landing, when the pilot comes down in corkscrew fashion to strike his field in the right place at the right speed.

Later flying machines will influence road building, as the automobile has done. Every state will have its flying highways north and south, at least 300 feet wide to give room for the wings and lighted at night so that flyers, traveling above the roads, will always have below them a flying field as wide as the country.

Hipple Concert Co. Will Give Program In High School

Concluding number of the high school lecture course — The Hipple Concert company—will be given in the high school auditorium at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening.

A program consisting of xylophone, flute, piano, cornet, saxophone and trombone music, including solos, duets, trios and quartets, will be offered. The company is made up of Earl R. Hipple, who performs at the piano and also plays the xylophone and saxophone.

Hipple is known as the "wizard of the xylophone." The other three members of the company are experienced in concert work and each is a soloist on one or more instruments. The program will be classical and popular in character.

FLOOR LEAGUE TEAMS TO CLASH

The Methodist Protestant and Park Boulevard teams of the Sunday school floor league will clash this evening on the M. P. court.

signer, "nor would I care to attend a formal dinner party with my arms encased in tight sleeves."

Sleeves will be worn where common sense and the occasion demands them, and sleeveless evening gowns will still be held in high favor.

Fabric makers and NOT designers set the fashions, it also was learned, but this, too, has to be taken with a pinch of salt, as it were.

Designers and fabric makers work together—but until the fabric makers turn out their products, designers are at a loss as to how to proceed.

Designs must be adapted to the material in which they are to be turned out, so in a way fabric makers really set the styles.

This year the fabrics are to be sheer and filmy and gaily colored. Pastel shades will be favored, but again there is no hard, fast rule to guide. Most anything will go, provided the colors harmonize, provided it's elaborately ornamented, and provided—last but by no means least—that it fits the individuality of the wearer.

POOR JANITOR IS HAILED AS GREAT ARTIST

Joseph Thorngren, Swede, Lays Aside Mop and Overalls.

TO GET STUDIO

Busts of Harding and Pershing Win Him Honors.

GALESBURG, Ill., Mar.—A common toiler, the janitor of a small apartment house, "Old Joe," the Swede, has laid aside his mop and overalls to become Joseph Thorngren, artist and sculptor.

Soon he is to have his own studio, financed by George S. Dole, whose father was one of the founders of the Chicago Art Institute. Ben Cable, Chicago sculptor, is going to assist him.

Thorngren was "discovered" when representatives of a local art exhibit chanced upon busts of the late President Warren G. Harding and of General John J. Pershing.

There was an oil painting, too, of Mary Pickford, motion picture star, "Old Joe" had copied from the cover of a magazine one day when a "yearning to paint hit hard."

Called a Marvel.

The busts and painting, done in a flash of forgotten inspiration, were the sensation of the exhibit. A gnarled and careworn laborer became the idol of the hour. He shifted nervously and explained he "didn't have any clothes except these overalls" and would like to be excused from public appearance.

"Thorngren's work is positively marvelous," Dole declared.

"It compares favorably with the best American work of today," said Cable.

More than a quarter of a century ago, when King Oscar ruled in Sweden, Carl Larsen, landscape artist, and Leonard Anders Zorn, portrait painter, found Thorngren in the province of Dalarne. His work in oils, crayon and clay aroused their interest. They gave him instruction, took him with them on their trips and finally persuaded him to go to Italy.

Began Drinking

"Larsen and Zorn praised me. They said if I studied in Florence I soon would be able to paint royalty, then the ambition of every painter in Sweden," Thorngren said.

"I went to Italy and did very well until I developed a liking for liquor. My funds ran out and I came to the United States. But it was too easy to earn money in America and my liking for liquor grew. When I reached Chicago I sold all my models of birds and plaster casts of prominent men.

"One day Zorn came to Chicago to do portrait painting. I braced up and worked again, but when he left I took to drink—and then to common labor."

Commenting on the interest Galesburg citizens and Chicago artists and patrons of art had taken in him, Thorngren, now 62 years old, said:

"I know I can retrieve my art. I should have done it years ago. My time has been wasted, but now I am going to work hard. A contractor here has promised to build me a studio. Mr. Dole and Mr. Cable are going to help me.

Dislikes Callers.

"I appreciate my new friends, but I do not want people coming to call on me. That takes too much time. When an artist caters to society he has no time left in which to paint. I never like to have women call.

"I want to forget the world and paint from early morning until darkness comes. Eat? No, a true artist is so wrapped up in his work the hours pass all too quickly. He will stop because of darkness, but not because of hunger."

Thorngren related an early life filled with disappointment. His father insisted he work on the farm and criticised his interest in art until, at the age of 20, he ran away from home.

"My fire success was a painting of Abraham Lincoln, done in school when I was nine years old," Thorngren said.

"Birds were my favorite subjects in the old days. In studying them I learned anatomy. I knew what every feather was used for."

Traveled Much.

The janitor-artist told of living in Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

"In Hillsdale, Mich," he said, "an acquaintance stole forty of my paintings. I was discouraged. When I came to Galesburg I determined never to reveal my past nor to paint or model again."

There is a humorous strain in Thorngren's make-up. He entertained the art exhibit with a story of a man in Michigan who asked him to make a painting of his father. He had no photograph and his father was dead. Thorngren painted from his description.

When his patron saw his finished work he said:

"That's the old man, all right, but Lord, how he has changed since he died!"

EAST LIVERPOOL — AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1925.

Stamp Out Gambling

Rumors of attempts to pry the lid off gambling in East Liverpool are current.

Following a warning issued less than two weeks ago by Chief of Police McDermott that, if necessary, he would smash in the doors of any so-called club room whose officers permitted gambling, reports persist that a public gambling house is preparing to operate.

If the report is true, it is a foregone conclusion that the promoters are bucking their heads against a stone wall, for East Liverpool, a law-abiding community, will not tolerate any attempt to invite an invasion on the part of the professional gamesters.

The people are standing as a unit behind the police department in their sincere efforts to enforce the laws against gambling as well as bootlegging, robbery and crimes of greater degree. And they insist that any movement to re-open poker rooms be crushed.

Municipal officials should ascertain whether there is any foundation for the many rumors. If the stories are true, they should lose no time in convincing the responsible parties that East Liverpool will not sanction law violations of any character.

Intelligent Newspaper Use

A speaker before the convention of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism declares that the newspapers are handicapped in wielding their full and best influence in national life today because the American public, "while buying millions of newspapers, does not read the important things in them."

"It is plain," he says, "that the person who reads only the headlines, the sports page, the serial fiction, the comics, is not making intelligent use of the newspaper nor encouraging publication of worth-while newspapers."

The remedy this speaker suggests is to have newspaper reading taught in high schools and colleges.

Undoubtedly it is a good suggestion, but it is not entirely new. Although newspaper reading does not have a separate teacher or a special place in the school course, it is often used effectively by teachers of English, of civics and political science, history and perhaps some other subjects. It is not at all unusual in many schools for teachers to ask pupils to look up something in the newspapers, to bring in newspaper clippings bearing on a certain point, to be able to report on important current events, and so on.

Perhaps newspapers are skimmed more superficially today than formerly, but they are at the same time read more intelligently than formerly, because the whole group of newspaper readers includes so much larger a portion of the public than ever before.

Fiery Slumber

Here is a news story passed on for the benefit of those who enjoy shuddering.

Horace Harris, a middle-aged boiler inspector of Syracuse, N. Y., seeking shelter in the freight yard at 2 o'clock on a bitterly cold morning, crawled inside the firebox of a laid-up locomotive. It was cosy there, and he fell asleep. An hour later a fireman climbed aboard and proceeded to fire up. He placed oil-soaked waste and kindling wood in the firebox, and applied a torch. Harris awoke to find himself imprisoned by a wall of fire.

It was a situation worthy of Edgar Allen Poe. The prisoner did not die of fright, but he may die of the burns he received as he scrambled through those flames over six feet of blazing firewood, and emerged, a mass of flames himself, to the amazement of the fireman.

Perhaps the moral should be added: Never go to sleep in a locomotive firebox.

Bachelors of Real Estate

Business administration, hotel administration and numerous other practical courses concerned with all sorts of trades, professions and domestic occupations have found their way into the courses of leading colleges and universities. The National Association of Real Estate Boards now has a course of study which it wants to have incorporated in college work so that the realtor may have the same opportunity for special training as the engineer, the dentist, the lawyer, the physician and so on.

The Englishman who once thanked Heaven that his university taught him nothing of any practical value would probably be dismayed and shocked at the subjects now taught in many schools. Even the educator who declared that a college graduate might, with perfect self-respect, take up ditch-digging as a life work provided he dug better ditches than his fellow-worker, did not advocate putting ditch-digging into the schools.

There may seem for a time to be danger of the so-called "cultural courses" being swamped by the introduction of these many practical subjects, but in the long run there will undoubtedly be found room for both, with more persons than ever before making use of the increased educational opportunities.

Italians in France

The March number of Current History Magazine reports a large influx of Italians into the agricultural districts of southern France. This is an interesting development. France needs population; Italy needs an outlet for its surplus population. Both are Latin peoples.

Tolstoi once foretold a world managed by the "four giants—the Anglo-Saxons, the Latins, the Slavs and the Mongolians." The Latins have been divided into such small groups that their giant possibilities have been greatly reduced. Perhaps this migratory movement may start something.

HASKIN'S LETTER

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Are Senators Being Wilful Again?

WASHINGTON, March 19—Will Calvin Coolidge have to deal throughout his administration with a group of recalcitrant senators? In the light of events since March 4 Washington observers are asking this question, and following it up with speculation as to what such a group may be able to accomplish.

Woodrow Wilson had to combat such an element. He characterized it as "a small group of wilful senators," thereby enhancing his reputation as a maker of apt and forceful phrases, and also thereby solidifying that opposition which thwarted him in many of the plans that lay nearest his heart.

"Wilful," according to the dictionary, means "governed by the will without regard to reason; stubborn; inflexible." Senators apparently did not relish having that term applied to them by President Wilson, but, having the name, they seemed determined to have the game and fought the president at almost every turn.

Theodore Roosevelt likewise had his troubles with senators who were disposed to kick over the party traces and he said things about them that were more vigorous if less apt than the phrase coined by Woodrow Wilson. In the main, however, Roosevelt had a fairly even break with the senate, getting pretty much all that he asked for and yielding the minimum in return. Perhaps the most notable concession to the upper house of congress was his agreeing to having the word "reasonable" written into the interestate commerce act through the famous Allison compromise that ended the fight over the Elkins act.

At the most critical stage of his career Roosevelt won a memorable victory over the group of influential Republican senators that had been fighting him openly or secretly. That was early in the campaign for the 1904 presidential nomination. The senate opposition to Roosevelt was ready to begin an aggressive contest against his nomination, and the first strategic move was made when Mark Hanna sent Roosevelt a message explaining adroitly that it had been decided to be inadvisable for the Ohio Republican state convention to go on record unqualifiedly as favoring Roosevelt as the party's 1904 candidate. Hanna said he hoped Roosevelt would understand the why and wherefore of this and be satisfied.

The "Big Stick" president burned up the telegraph wires with a sizzling reply to Hanna, in which he stated that the one thing he did understand was that those who were not for him were against him, and he gave this telegram to the press associations so that it was published broadcast even before it reached the Ohio senator. In the face of that challenge Hanna weakened the Ohio convention did endorse Roosevelt, and the senate opposition to Roosevelt crumbled.

Will Coolidge Fight?

All Washington is keen to learn whether President Coolidge will fight the present-day wilful senators, or whether he will adopt conciliatory tactics and play the game of give and take. It is generally believed, however, that the answer to this must be sought in events as they transpire, rather than in anything the president will say. Also it is accepted as wholly in keeping with the Coolidge temperament that the president will never handy words with his senatorial opponents by calling names or coining Wilsonian phrases.

The first evidence that all is not harmony between the White House and the north end of the capitol came when the Republican leaders decided to discipline the La Follette group of radicals by reading them out of the party and dropping them from their committee assignments as Republicans. This was regarded as part of the administration program, not necessarily originating with Coolidge or particularly favored by him, but acquiesced in and approved by him once the responsible party chieftains had determined it to be wise and an essential party step. Republican senators like Borah and Norris, however, openly opposed the idea, and warned their colleagues that it was a dangerous experiment in party control.

The radicals were disciplined despite this opposition and warning, and then came the second break that astounded the country.

For the first time in more than half a century, and for the sixth time in the nation's history, a president's choice of a cabinet member was rejected by the senate. Mr. Coolidge was told that he could not take Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, into his official family as attorney general. This was accomplished by the votes of eight Republicans and three radicals.

Vice President Dawes, whose vote might have saved the day for the administration in this first real test, was not on the job and could not be got to the senate in time to cast the deciding vote when it was apparent that there was a tie vote on the Warren confirmation, and when he did arrive an attempt to reconsider the vote failed, the one Democrat, Senator Overman, who had favored confirmation, having changed his vote.

A Blow at Precedents.

That this was a blow at precedents and knocked traditions into a cocked hat is not to be gainsaid. The law of the land stipulates that a president's selection of cabinet members must be confirmed by the senate, but when a president has nominated a man to head one of the executive departments confirmation by the senate has followed almost invariably as a matter of course. The exceptions have been so few as merely to prove the rule. Andrew Jackson had one of his cabinet selections vetoed by the senate. President Tyler, who really had rough sledding in matters of that kind, had three of his cabinet nominations rejected, and President Johnson had the seemingly impossible happen to him in 1868. Since that date presidents have chosen their cabinets and the senate has never exercised its veto power until the day when President Coolidge's nomination of Mr. Warren came to an issue and, unhappily for many persons concerned, Vice President Dawes was asleep at the switch—or, rather, enjoying a siesta at his downtown hotel.

Back of all this there is, of course, more than the mere opposition to Mr. Warren as the man for the legal portfolio of the government. Fundamentally it is a question of the power of the senate and of individual senators. Other presidents than Mr. Coolidge have had experiences that point to the same conclusion. Not so many years ago a president was nominated and elected despite the opposition of a senator from a certain state. That president undertook to parcel out the patronage of that state without consulting that senator, and he failed to get a single nomination confirmed.

Senate precedents, procedure and tration are even stronger than the senate rules which Vice President Dawes attacked so vigorously. Senators are extremely jealous of the power of the body to which they belong, and they get that way about 15 minutes after they have taaken the oath of office. They will fight among themselves, or between the partisan groups into which they are divided, until the cows come home, but let anybody on the outside attack the senate, or the prerogatives of an individual senator, and they stand together as if they were defending liberty's last bulwark.

It is significant to those who have seen presidents and senates come and go, that Mr. Coolidge chose Mr. Warren as his attorney general without consulting and securing the approval of the one Republican senator from Michigan, Senator Couzens, and that it was Senator Couzens who had the final word in the debate that preceded the rejection of Mr. Warren's nomination.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, March 19. — Another damp, chilly day. And after a breakfast of soggy bread and tasteless coffee I decided to leave London. It is a charming city in fair weather, but depressing to me in the winter. A Hadley-Page passenger plane was leaving for Paris at noon.

The drive to the Croyden flying field took us through many interesting sections. London's age old buildings with their rain washed bleachings of white give a touch of antiquity that no other city has. And the countrysides of England are the most beautiful in the world.

But I'll confess I didn't give them the attention they deserved. I kept recalling the airplane accidents and the number dashed suddenly to death from the clouds. The driver assured me there was no danger but I wanted him to keep repeating it over and over again.

There were three other passengers—five in all. One was an inquisitive little boy who wanted to know how high we would go and did we wear life belts like they did on boats. Never before have I been so impressed with the wisdom of the adage "Children should be seen and not heard."

We stepped in the plane—like so many dumb sheep entering the slaughter pen. The little boy wanted to know if he could ride with the engineer. The violent whirr of the propeller. A sudden lurch and we were racing across a field and suddenly the ground seem to give way under us.

We began to climb higher and higher until we rose above the clouds. A beautiful vista—like a billowy ocean of snow white cotton. Now and then an air pocket and sudden drop. I notice a man in the front seat calmly reading the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

I peeped out the window now and then like a frightened rabbit. I merely wanted to see English channel and thumb my nose at it for what it did to me a couple of dags ago. Nearing the channel we came down below the clouds and the earth resembled one of those real estate maps they bombard you with in Los Angeles.

The pilot and the mechanician become rather grave flying over the channel. Over land they have a chance to descend safely if something goes wrong, but to land in the channel the chances of safety are nil. I didn't like the way they whispered to each other, but probably it was just casual conversation such as, "I wonder if Lulu and Georgette will keep their date with us tonight in Paris."

If it were not for the air pockets riding in a passenger plane is like riding on a fast express train—only smoother. On a clear day the flight from London to Paris is made in a little more than three hours. And I believe in fair weather danger of accident is reduced to a minimum, but to fly in a fog is foolhardy. One thing too is especially noticeable. Despite the propaganda of the air passenger companies to extol the idea of safety, very few Europeans fly over the channel. Almost invariably the passengers are Americans.

A life insurance agent could reap a harvest flying back and forth from London to Paris. I am sure passengers who had spurned life insurance before would sign on the dotted line.

Due to the mist we did not arrive outside the gates of Paris until near dusk. The plane came to the ground in spiraling, birdlike sweeps. There was a slight but welcome jar as the wheels struck earth and then the crowd of porters and custom men swarmed over the field to meet us. It was nearly an hour drive in a jogging old bus into the city.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By HERBERT CARYL.

BOSTON, March 19.—Gay night life in Boston? What is it? Where is it to be found?

These questions have come to the front since the filing in the Massachusetts legislature of a bill calling for the licensing of night clubs and roadhouses.

The questions have wide interest, too; for Boston, known as the 'Athens of America," because as many colleges and universities are within and just without its gates, is the playground for thousands of college boys and girls, who come from all parts of the world.

Night clubs and roadhouses, said to be frequented by many undergraduates, were termed "helidens" by J. Frank Chase, head of the Watch and Ward society. To a legislative committee Chase described them as being the homes of a combination of "booze and uncensored dancing." Rev. A. Z. Conrad, Boston clergyman, said girls were falling by the score in the pleasure resorts.

After witnessing a raid on a local night club, Chase put his impressions into verse as follows:

"Out in the night 'neath the dull red glow
The men of jungle assemble,
Oil-smeared bodies sway to and fro,
With heart-beat and pulses a-tremble.
Deep in the night, till the morning light
The crystalline galaxy pales,
Shadows merge, and cheeks pressed tight
Throb, while the saxophone wails."

But investigators who have penetrated into the secret precincts of some of the night clubs and roadhouses state that conditions are not so bad as they are painted. Devotees of Boston's gay night life are gay. Uncensored dancing goes on after 2 a. m., and, in some clubs, liquor is not uncommon, the investigators found. In a majority of places, however, only a few collegiate folk were found, and the "bouncers" kept things pretty much in hand.

Visit a few of the "places" with the unofficial investigators. First, there is a night club in Roxbury. Bleak brick walls, dimmed lights, smoky atmosphere, a jazz band from Dixie and a bevy of sub-flappers were found. The club had no liquor for sale, but a bootlegger appeared at the tables around the dancing floor, offering Scotch at $5 a pint. Men and girl singers went around among the tables during the dancing intermissions and were fairly showered with coins as they sang and danced.

Then there was a club in the heart of the Black Bay. Investigators found dancing, with and without restraint. A winsome blonde was observed riding, "piggy-back" fashion, on the back of her partner, while she waved a cigaret to the applauding spectators at the tables. Flasks and bottles were much in evidence at the tables, but no liquor could be purchased in the club.

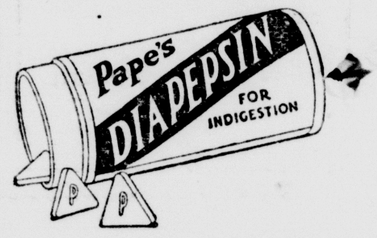

An "Apache dance" was staged at the height of the revelry. A wistful-eyed little blonde's hair was seized by her partner. She was spun around in a dizzy whirl. Her partner pushed her in the face, and she fell to the floor with a crash. The next minute, however, she was on her feet and dancing with the mad swing of the music. A dashing brunette became so excited at 3 a. m. that she jumped upon a table and danced and danced, the music all the while becoming madder and madder, and the colored drummer tossing his sticks high in the air. Girls were found smoking while dancing, some of them with both arms around their partners' necks. Plebeian ham sandwiches sold for $1 each.

Next was a club on a downtown street. Hearty, rollicking mirth prevailed. A censor was always on the dancing floor. No liquor for sale, but plenty in evidence. Sunday morning dancing continued until 4 o'clock. Petting parties were observed at the tables while other guests were "on with the dance."

Cyril Tolley, a prominent Londoner, said, after his return from America recently that "in that country people of all classes talk of nothing else but prohibition and golf.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

Tells you there is danger ahead. A healthy bladder does not act at night.

J. H. Dorton, W. Graham, Va., says: "I had to get up seven or eight times at night for forty years. I thought it was my age. After taking Lithiated Buchu a short time, I am alright." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder as Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 2 cents each. Say They Know Bird Language.

Arabians are claiming that they understand the language of birds. They maintain that many of their countrymen have had a knowledge of the birds' communication medium since the days of King Solomon. There are many legends associated with the exploits of the Arabians wherein birds figured importantly. The Mohammedans know the pigeon as their favorite bird, due to the story that a pigeon built its nest in front of the cave where the prophet was hiding, thus favoring his escape from his enemies.

Q. Where is the largest sulphur mine in the world?—J. W.

A. A definite statement can not be made, since a mine which produces a great deal of sulphur may be nearing exhaustion, while anew mine with no record for great production, may have a great future. Q. What was it that President Coolidge said about saving in connection with life insurance? L. F. D.

A. A part of the statement follows: Everyone knows that it is not what is earned, but what is saved, which measures the difference between success and failure. This is a difference so slight from today as to seem unimportant and of no consequence, but in the aggregate of even a few years, it amounts to a sum of great importance. The ability to save is based entirely upon self-control. The posession of that capacity is the main element of character. It passes over at once into the realm of good citizenship. He who sells an insurance policy sells a certificate of character, an evidence of good citizenship, and unimpeachable title to the right of self-government.

WHY THERE ARE MORE THAN A MILLION

Buick Torque Tube Drive

The fine engineering in Buick motor cars is demonstrated by the torque tube drive. This is a steel tube which transmits the drive from the rear wheels instead of adding this important duty to the burden of the rear springs. The torque tube also encloses and protects the propeller shaft. This type of construction also holds the rear wheels in alignment regardless of road conditions.

RHEUMATISM
LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-Four Hours.

Every druggist in this country is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenrhu, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance. East Liverpool Druggists are my appointed agents in your city. If you live out of town I'll gladly send you free particulars.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

FORD
The Housewife's Car

Every woman knows that she can buy to better advantage if she shops in person; but in bad weather this is impossible unless she has a car.

We will sell you a FORD for a small payment down—balance by the month, and that solves the problem. In a FORD, the housewife can attend to her daily round of shopping in comfort no matter what the weather—and then enjoy that afternoon bridge, tea or reception properly gowned for the occasion.

Suppose there is a big car in the garage. A FORD won't be long paying for itself in the savings it makes in upkeep. It pays to own two cars when one is a big car and the other a FORD.

Come in and let us tell you how little you pay down to get the car and how little the installments amount to each month. You'll be surprised

HOUSE DEFEATS TAX PROPOSAL

Measure Providing for Special Assessments is Rejected

A proposal to allow towns and villages to levy special assessments upon abutting property for public improvements was disapproved when the house of delegates yesterday rejected a bill covering that proposal, after receiving an adverse report on it from the committee on counties and municipal corporations.

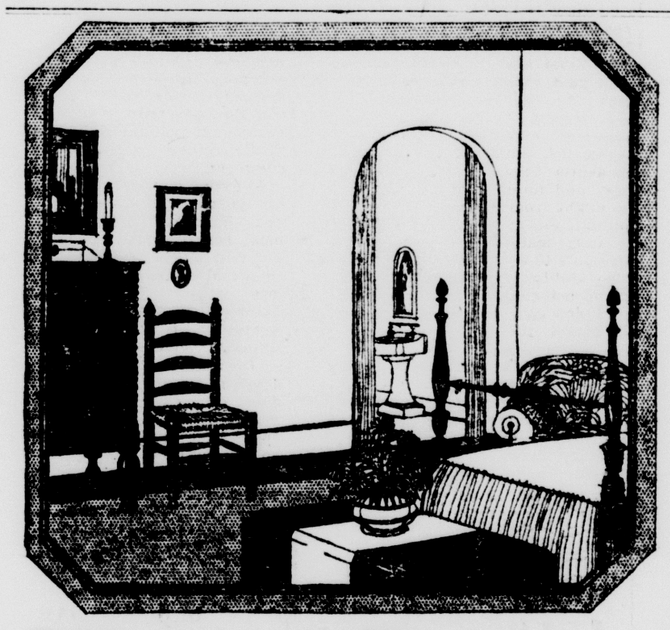

Twelve bills were rejected on adverse reports from various committees and 20 were placed on the calendar with favorable reports in the first few minutes of the house session. The judiciary committee reported against passage of a bill to require payment of a corporation tax before voting, but Delegate Mathews objected to its rejection and on his action it was returned to the committee.

Among the bills rejected were one to repeal the law setting office hours for the state auditor and treasurer and bills affecting nominations to political committees, worthless checks, type on documents to be recorded, dower rights, payment of a percentage of fines to the prosecuting attorney, allowance of an hour before defaulting defendeants in justice courts, sewage disposal, and fire insurance with companies not licensed in the state.

Among the bills favorably reported were the so-called loan shark bill, affecting loans of $300 or less, one strengthening the law on bribery of jurors and bills amending the law concerning state depositories, bonds and officers.

When a bill amending the law on licensing pharmacists came up it was returned to second reading for addition of penalties for illegal use of the designation "pharmacist" or similar titles, and then was passed by unanimous vote.

The Rev. William B. King, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church of Charleston, was appointed chaplain of the senate this afternoon by President Pro Tem Marsh and he officiated for the first time.

PLAN TO RESUME WORK AT MINES

Seger Company to Open Plant at West Point April 1.

It is reasonably certain that the No. 1 mine of the Seger Fuel company, at West Point, will be placed in operation shortly after April 1, according to an agreement that has been in process of negotiation between union mine workers and the mine operators during the last few weeks.

Provisions of the agreement provide that the miners are to lay the new ahead of them and have also agreed, it is said, to take care of six inches of slate or dead work, service that under former agreements have been paid for by the operating interests.

It has been set forth that with the employes of the company assuming this share of the cost of operation the operators will be in a position to go out into the market and seek an outlet for their output on a competitive basis, a situation that is not possible at this time.

For over a year the coal business in this part of the Ohio field has been practically "dead," according to the miners and also the operators. Few if any of the operations have been working full time, and in not one instance during the last 12 month has any producer, either a drift mine or a stripping operation been in steady production.

Word has also reached Lisbon that West Virginia mine interests have been keeping a keen eye upon the situation in the Ohio coal of late. West Virginia mines have been active during the last year, but the majority of these have been operated as non-union propositions.

As the lake trade opens on or about April 1, it may follow that more or less lake shipping business will be obtained for the West Point district should present negotiations terminate successfully.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Millions of people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 2, 1924

A year ago I was almost bald. I now have a nice growth of hair due to constant use of Van Ess. After trying everything else, without success, I purchased a bottle of Van Ess at Buck & Rayner's.

It gives me great pleasure to inform my friends that Van Ess has been the cause of restoring my hair.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave under orders of King James. He is bought by Colonel Bishop, military comander, and meets Arabella Bishop, his niece, with whom he falls in love. Spaniards under Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez capture the town. Blood saves Mary Traill and Arabella and captures the Spanish ship. Don Diego betrays him and sails the vessel under the guns of his brother's ship off Hispaniola. Blood tricks the Spanish admiral, and sails for Tortuga, the rendezvous of buccaneers of the Spanish Main. There the buccaneers prevail on him, aided by the governor, M. d'Ogeron, to equip the Cinco Llagas as a privateer. He meets Levasseur, a French ruffian, who has his own ship. Levasseur enlists under Blood. The Frenchman is in love with d'Ogeron's daughter Madelon, whom the governor has sent to Europe on board a Dutch brig. She appeals to Levasseur, who has attracted her romantic heart, to rescue her.

In answer, the half-caste pointed out beyond the frothing surf that marked the position of the reef constituting one of the stronghold's main defenses. Away beyond it, a mile or so distant, a sail was standing out to sea.

"There she go," he said.

The Frenchman gazed and stared The half-caste shrank terrified before his fury. "Then up anchor, and let us after the Dutchman," he cried.

"Steady, captain. What's that?" There was a restraining hand upon his shoulder, and the broad face of his lieutenant Cahusac, a burly, callous Breton scoundrel, was stolidly confronting him. "A Dutch brig!" said he. "Impossible! We should never be allowed."

"And who the devil will deny us?" Levasseur was between amazement and fury.

"For one thing, there's your own crew will be none too willing. For another, there's Captain Blood."

"I care nothing for Captain Blood."

"But it is necessary that you should. He has the power, the weight of metal and of men, and, if I know him at all, he'll sink us before he'll suffer interference with the Dutch. He has his own views of privateering, this Captain Blood, as I warned you."

Cursing in his soul, and even before the anchor was weighed, the association into which he had entered, he was already studying ways of evasion. What Cahusac implied was true: Blood would never suffer violence to be done in his presence to a Dutchman. But it might be done in his absence; and, being done, Blood must perforce condone it, since it would then be too late to protest.

Within the hour the Arabella and La Foudre were beating out to sea together. Without understanding the change of plan involved, Captain Blood, nevertheless, accepted it, and weighed anchor before the appointed time upon perceiving his associate to do so.

All day the Dutch brig was in sight, though by evening she had dwindled to the merest speck on the northern horison. The course prescribed for Blood and Levasseur lay eastward along the northern shores of Hispaniola. To that course the Arabella continued to hold steadily throughout the night. When day broke again she was alone. La Foudre under cover of the darkness had struck away to the northeast with every rag of canvas on her yards.

Cahusac had attempted yet again to protest against this.

"The devil take you!" Levasseur had answered him. "A ship's a ship, be she Dutch or Spanish, and ships are our present need. That will suffice for the men."

Dawn found La Foudre close on the Dutchman's heels, not a mile astern, and the sight of her very evidently flustered the Jongvrouw. They sent a warning shot across her bow. The Jongvrouw veered, showed them her rudder, and opened fire with her stern chasers. The small shot went whistling through La Foundre's shrouds with some slight damage to her canvas.

Five minutes after that they were board and board, the Jongvrouw held tight in the clutches of La Foudre's grapnels, and the buccaneers pouring noisily into her waist.

The Dutchman's master, purple in the face, stood forward to beard the pirate, followed closely by an elegant, pale-faced young gentleman in whom Levasseur recognized his brother-in-law elect.

"Captain Levasseur, this is an outrage for which you shall be made to answer. What do you seek aboard my ship?"

"At first I sought only that which belongs to me, something of which I am being robbed. But since you chose war and opened fire on me with some damage to my ship and loss of life to five of my men, war it is, and your ship a prize of war."

From the quarter rail Mademoiselle d'Oregon looked down with glowing eyes in breathless wonder upon her well-beloved hero. Gloriously heroic he seemed as he stood towering there, masterful, audacious, beautiful. He saw her, and with a glad shout sprang towards her. The Dutch master got in his way with hands upheld to arrest his progress. Levasseur did not stay to argue with him: he was too impatient to reach his mistress. He swung the poleaxe that he carried, and the Dutchman went down in blood with a cloven skull. The eager lover stepped across the body and came on, his countenance joyously alight. But mademoiselle was shrinking now, in horror. In a bound her well-beloved was beside her. But she still shrank even within his embrace, which would not be denied; a look of dread had come to temper the normal arrogance of her almost perfect face.

"Why, why did you kill him?"

He laughed as a hero should; and answered her heroically, with the tolerance of a god for the mortal to whom he condescends: "He stood between us. Let his death be a symbol, a warning. Let all who would stand between us mark it and beware."

It was so splendidly terrific, the gesture of it was so broad and fine and his magnetism so compelling, that she cast her silly tremors and yielded herself freely, intoxicated, to his fond embrace. Thereafter he swung her to his shoulder, and stepping with ease beneath that burden, bore her in a sort of triumph, lustily cheered by his men, to the deck of his own ship. Her inconsiderate brother might have ruined that romantic scene but for the watchful Cahusac, who quietly tripped him up, and then trussed him like a fowl.

Thereafter, what time the Captain languished in his lady's smile within the cabin, Cahusac was dealing with the spoils of war. The Dutch crew was ordered into the longboat, and bidden go to the devil. Fortunately, as they numbered fewer than thirty, the longboat, though perilously overcrowded, could yet contain them. Next, Cahusac having inspected the cargo, put the quartermaster and a score of men aboard the Jongvrouw, and left her to follow La Fourde, which he now headed south for the Leeward Islands.

The lady's brother was presently conducted to the cabin. The Captain rose to receive him, bending his stalwart height to avoid striking the cabin roof with his head. Mademoiselle rose, too.

"Why this?" she asked Levasseur, pointing to her brother's pinioned wrists.

"I deplore it," said he. "I desire it to end. Let M. d'Ogeron give me his parole . . ."

"I give you nothing."

"Henri, this is foolish! You are not behaving as my brother. You . . ."

"Little fool. Don't you perceive your wicked folly in the harm it has brought already? Lives have been lost—men have died—that this monster might overtake you. And don't you yet realize where you stand—in the power of this beast, of this cur born in a kennel and bred in thieving and murder?"

He might have said more but that Levasseur struck him across the mouth. Mademoiselle suppressed a scream, as the youth staggered back under the blow.

"You see," he said simply. "He strikes a man whose hands are bound."

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

She's Going Away

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a junior in high school and I go with a girl who is also a junior. I love her with all my heart and she told me she loved me. She has promised to wait for me and I have been very happy. But now her folks have decided to move some six hundred miles away and I won't have a chance to see her for many years. She promised that she would go with no one else and always wait for me no matter where she was, and I did the same. I have done all I could to make her happy and I think she realizes it. Of course we can write, but just think of the temptations of city life and the things that might take her away. It is almost unbearable to me. It will be about three months before they leave. Is there anything I could do now and afterward that would make me feel certain that my dreams would come true? DOWN-HEARTED.

You are making a mistake in asking the girl not to go with other young men, and also in promising to stay away from other girls. Both of you are too young to be tied to any such promise. Have more faith and believe that if your love is real it will stand the test of time and separation. Correspondence will help a great deal even if you do not see each other. Don't spoil the three months you have left with worry about the future. Let the future take care of itself and fill every hour that you are together with hope and happiness.

Troubles of "Dimples"

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 17 years old graduating from high school in June, and have been going with a young man eight months older than myself for six months. He will graduate from the eighth grade in June, as he commenced his last term in January. He has not gone to school for five years. Since his mother's death his father has refused to support him. He is now determined to get an education before he stops again and expects to finish high school when he is 22. I have been encouraging him to go ahead, but he has very little money to spend now—just what he is able to ern at odd jobs after school hours, and so we do not go very many places where money is required. He wants me to stick to him and when I suggest that I make dates with others and he do likewise, he will not do it, saying that he will forget me while going with other girls. He keeps insisting that he loves me and wants to make good for me alone. Do you think that if he cares so much for me he would forget me while going with other girls? I want to help him all I can, but I do not want to get serious, because I know my father will not consent. Father is always asking me if I can't find any one better or if no one else will go with me. I have many chances for other dates, but have refused them so far. Father thinks the young man is not worthy of me, but I have tried to tell him that he has never had a chance. I do not know what to do. It seems impossible to let him go and yet I cannot make my father understand. Please advise me what to do. DIMPLES.

You are quite right in feeling that the desire for education is something worth encouraging in the boy when odds are so against him. I am sure your father approves of your championing the young man, but he would be better satisfied if you had other friends, too, and did not give all your time to the one boy. Respect your father's wishes and tell the boy that you are going to accept invitations from other boys, too, but that he will hold the same place in your regard that he has always held, and that the closer he sticks to his purpose of getting an education, the more you will admire him.

Plot for a Novel.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 19 years of age and am engaged to a very nice boy of 20. He is an orphan and has had a very hard life ever since he was a small child. I have met the relations who brought him up and they seem to be people of almost no refinement and yet my fiance is as intelligent and gentlemanly as though he had the finest of parents. To me he seems wonderful. He has had a few music lessons and plays beautifully. He plays a great deal in public and earns his living that way. It is said that he has a great future musically. He has living with him at his boarding house three little orphan children. One is a very rough and bad little boy. My fiance does not correct them nor try to train them except to occasionally tell them he wants them to try to do better. Of course this does no good and the little boy swears and is perfectly terrible. We want very much to be married soon, but he insists on keeping the children, which is a great financial burden. I do not believe we could be happy under these conditions. He has supported these children for some time and loves them very much. Do you think I should ask him to give them up, or should we marry and try to keep them? We could never have things that we could afford if it were not for them.

Work such as your fiance is doing for the orphans means too much to him to ask him to give it up. Unless you love him enough to cooperate with him in his good work, I would not advise you to marry him. He is a philanthropist at heart and will always consider others before he will realize there are needs at home. I would advise you to postpone your marriage until you are more sure that your love is sincene and that you will grow together instead of apart. I imagine that after a year of marriage the man you now love and consider noble would irritate you beyond endurance because of his impracticality.

The Proof of Love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man about 28 for almost a year. I am deeply in love with him. He is very sentimental and is jealous of me going out with other men. I do not go out with other men, though he always accuses me of it. He claims that he loves me, but he doesn't act the part. Do you think a man knows because he's jealous that he loves a woman? Last Christmas he didn't send me a gift. That's a long time ago now and I didn't really care about getting the present. But when my friends asked me what I received from him I was so ashamed to admit I received nothing. Of course he has lots of expenses, but he works steadily and earns a good salary. Don't you think that if he loved me he would have given me something at Christmas time?

UNHAPPY.

There's only one proof of a man's love, my dear—his asking you to be his wife. Until a man proves his love in this way it's better to think of him as just a friend. Jealousy doesn't prove love. It proves that man is too selfish to share friendship, that he doesn't trust the person that he claims he loves, that he doesnt trust his own power to hold her friendship and love. He might have showed appreciation of your friendship by sending flowers, candy, a book, music or a Christmas card. An expensive gift would have been out of place since your'e not engaged.

Four Hearts in a Tangle.

What is poor "Lonely Lassie" to do? Must she stand by, suffering, while she sees a married woman win the man "Lonely Lassie" loves?

She writes me:

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in the midst of a terrible heart tangle. I love a young man whose best friends are a married man and his wife. This wife wants the young man I love, and is trying to win him. When the four of us go out automobile-riding, she maneuvers me into the front seat with her husband, and sits behind with the young man. She pats his cheeks and squeezes his hand when her husband isn't looking. Now she wants to get a divorce from her husband so she can marry him. The worst of it is that her husband is now paying me attentions, and gets angry if I do not kiss him. He wants me to go to dances and places with him, but my mother won't let me. He wants to give me presents, but I won't let him. I don't know what to do.

LONELY LASSIE.

If the young man accepts the attention of a married woman—the wife of his friend—then he is hardly to be considered as the sort of man you would want for a husband. My advice is to forget all of them.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

"Apathy Equals Communism as Peril in United States."

Radical activities do not endanger American institutions so much as do public apathy and indifference, according to O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general of Michigan, who prosecuted the communist trial there.

Mr. Smith spoke recently on this subject. He read from "The A. B. C. of Communism," and from other documents presented in the trial of radicals, after a raid at Bridgeman, Mich., upon a secret meeting of the Communist party.

"The Communist activities in this country," Mr. Smith asserted, "are directed from Moscow. I will tell you how. Originally there existed what was known as the central executive committee or No. 1, and it consisted of ten members. It received a telegram from Moscow ordering American Communists to organize a workers party to be known as No. 2. Every member of No. 1 was to be a member of No. 2, but members of No. 2 need not be members of No. 1. The purpose of this arrangement was to permit Moscow to dictate to Americans how American institutions should be run.

"After some dissensions, two representatives of No. 1 were sent to Moscow. One represented the majority of seven who favored the plan. The other represented the minority of three against it. They went before the kommitern and were ordered to proceed to organize No. 2. And in May, 1921, Ruthenberg, Foster and Minor organized the Workers' party of America. They cannot say they do not take orders from Russia, for here" (Mr. Smith held up a paper) "is the telegram that ordered them to do it."

After attacking the activities of the communists, Mr. Smith said their "damnable propaganda" was not so dangerous as the apathy of the American public.

"There is too much of the spirit of 'Let George do it,'" he asserted, "and the American public will not inform themselves of what is going on."

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poltice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

Maybe You're Losing Money and Don't Know It!

CONSIDER the man who invested only about $910.00 in The Ohio Power Company stock when it was first offered to local people about six years ago.

By March 1, 1925, his $910.00 had earned dividends for him amounting to $360.00. But that sum would have been lost to him if he had NOT invested his savings.

How much will YOU stand to lose in one year—in two years—in ten years, if you do not INVEST the money you save.

It isn't really so much a question of whether you can AFFORD to invest, but it is more a question of whether you can afford NOT to invest. Can you AFFORD TO LOSE the extra dollars your savings could earn for you if you had them safely invested?

Night Coughing Stopped Quickly By Simple Treatment

Thousands who are troubled with persistent coughing at night, which by robbing them of valuable sleep weakens their systems and lays them open to dangerous infections, can quickly act to prevent this danger through a very simple treatment. People who have hardly been able to rest at all on account of coughing spells have found they can sleep the whole night through undisturbed often the first time they try it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring, and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is you usually sleep soundly the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

Clever Buffalo Chemist Says New Treatment for Piles Never Fails

BUFFALO, N. Y.—For years the generally accepted treatment for Hemorrhoids or Piles has been by the insertion of many so-called antiseptics and astringents into the rectum. Such treatments, while they may in many cases give relief, never reached or acted on the cause of the trouble and this was often true of surgical operations.

You've got to attack the real cause of the Piles and not the piles themselves and you've got to do it from a constitutional standpoint and this is just what the Hamadala treatment does. It attacks the cause and not the formation and the cause once removed, all those painful, congested, knotted and strengthened blood vessels are restored to their normal function and blind, bleeding or protruding piles become a thing of the past.

So sure and certain of results are the manufacturers that the Hamaldala treatment is only sold under a rigid guarantee of satisfaction or money back. C. G. Anderson, Carnahan's drug stores and Jesse D. Holloway are selling lots of this truly wonderful remedy. The price is $1.00. Mail orders filled.

Jesse D. Holloway Offer To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Money Back if One Bottle of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness and bloating that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy.

You think perhaps you are suffocating.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one dessert spoonful of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all?

With this wonderful medicine you can banish indigestion or dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach or any abnormal condition that keeps the stomach in constant rebellion and one bottle will prove it.

And how happy you will be when your stomach is as good as new for then dizziness, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, dull eyes and other ailments caused by a disordered stomach will disappear and you will be your old happy, contented self again. Jesse D. Holloway and every regular pharmacist guarantees one bottle of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin to show the way to stomach comfort.

RUNYON SAYS

By DAMON RUNYON.
Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, March 19—The Los Angeles boxing fans are not yet ready for the $16.50 pugilistic price familiar to New Yorkers.

This price means $15 for the seat, $1.50 for the tax.

Jack Doyle, Vernon promoter, tried it with the Mickey Walker-Bert Colima battle not long ago. Walker is the first real world's champion to make an appearance in California since the adoption of the new boxing law. Colima was supposed to be the best drawing card in Los Angeles.

Under the circumstances, the price seemed reasonable enough. But at ring time there were many empty $15 seats. Speculators, who had loaded up with them, were selling them for whatever they could get. The price was even slashed at the box office.

The fight drew a large amount of money, probably over $40,000. The house had been scaled to $60,000.

The galleries were jammed. The cheaper seats sold well. But the customers failed to clean out the $15 rack.

In New York, for an affair of proportionately the same importance, the promoters have no trouble selling the high priced seats. It is the medium priced seats that sell slowly if at all.

Here we have the difference between the New Yorker and other, perhaps more sensible, citizens.

The New Yorker, if he has the money, wants the HIGHEST PRICED seat. He fights to get it. Offer him a BETTER seat at a lower price and he is insulted.

He wouldn't sit in a cheap seat unless he was disguised. Here in Los Angeles the customers bought the medium-priced seats, or they didn't go at all.

Promoter Doyle made a satisfactory profit on the Walker-Colima fight. Also he learned a lesson of great value to him.

He was trying an experiment with the $15 prices. The ten-round game is young out here. Promoter Doyle had to investigate its possibilities from every angle to learn what can and what cannot be done. It is better for him to learn NOW, at a profit, than some future day, at great cost.

The writer doubts that you will again hear of $15 "tops" in Los Angeles until they put on a real world's championship bout. Perhaps that is all for the best.

Walker rescued the reputation of Eastern boxers, which have suffered sadly in California since the new law went into effect.

He is the first visitor to really impress the Californians. They admit he is a real fighter—a champion. The writer thought Walker a little loggy in the earlier rounds against the Mexican. He hadn't trained as easily as he does in the East.

Walker is a great fighter.

He is a heavy punisher with body blows. Only one other man in the game punches better than Walker in close. That's Dempsey.

He had Colima grunting loudly from the body smashes early in the battle.

It ended with the disqualification of Colima because his chief second and manager, "Dutch" Meyers, tried to put a bottle of smelling salts under Colima's nose when the Mexican was knocked flat in his own corner by Walker.

Colima probably could have gotten to his feet after the knockdown, even without the smelling salts. But another punch would have knocked him silly. Walker had just commenced to fight.

The welterweight champion thinks he will get a match with Benny Leonard some time during the summer, despite Leonard's announcement of retirement.

This is the one "shot" Walker is looking forward to. He expects to make enough money out of it to fix him comfortably for life, no matter what happens. Walker was to have received $140,000 from the match that fell through.

Walker, in his present form, figures to beat Leonard. He is very strong at the welterweight limit, is at his very peak of pugilistic power.

Walker doesn't think Dave Shade can make the welterweight mark any more. He is of the opinion that his chief rivals of the future will be Jack Zivic, of Pittsburgh, and Willie Harman, the New York boy.

Like ALL champions, he is looking beyond his own division for business. He would like to meet Harry Greb, the middleweight champion, a match that wouldn't jeopardize the welterweight title.

Walker, for all his tremendous ability as a welterweight, is quite likely to one day make the mistake of trying to give away TOO MUCH WEIGHT. Then he is apt to regret it. There is a limit to every man's capabilities.

The California "ringworms" are still thinking of the four-round day when a battle starts.

They want to see the men tear at each other without preliminary. They do not allow for "feeling out," for sparring.

The four-rounders may have been short, but they were filled with ACTION. You hear regrets for the "good old days" already.

Reds Will Finish In First Division Asserts Hendricks

Cincinnati Pilot Doesn't Fancy Pirates, Who, he Declares, Were Gold-bricked in the Mid-Winter Trade and Due for a Flop; Calls His Hurling Staff "Best."

By Davis J. Walsh.

ORLANDO, Fla., Mar. 19.—Offering the prediction for what it may be worth, if anything, Jack Hendricks today declared that his Cincinnati Reds would finish in the first division and that the Pittsburgh Pirates, generally esteemed as a leading pennant contender, would not. He intimated that the Pirates were gold bricked in the mid-winter trade with the Cubs and therefore were due for a flop.

The Reds, Giants, Dodgers and Cubs are the clubs that will make the pace, he said, and of these, he fancied the Giants and Reds. Hendricks remarks that the Reds have undergone many beneficial changes between seasons and offers the following by way of substantiation.

That they have the best pitching staff in baseball, with Mays, Luque, Donohue, Rixey, Sheehan, May and Benton ready to shoot on sight; that the club, having witnessed the departure of Pat Duncan and George Burns and the chastening of Jimmy Caveney by securing Synthetic waivers, now recognizes Mr. Hendricks as boss, and that the appointment of Ed. Roush as field Captain has eliminated the element of internal dissension that prevailed last year.

At the same time, Mr. Hendricks is free to admit that there is a dash of vinegar in the creme de menthe. Charley Bressen, whose purchase from St. Louis carried a heavy luxury tax, is probably a dead loss, Hendricks says. Bressen can field, run, hit and think. But he can't throw. He has a torn ligament under his right arm, the result of a St. Paul injury.

"I don't think we will get much out of him," Hendricks added, "at least not this season."

Further grief he cites in the fact that the Reds have but two catchers, Hargraves and Wingo, but must get another and that he has four outfielders and three of them hit lefthanded. The long righthander is Bill Zitzmann, Jersey City recruit, and although the young man has been the life of the party to date, he must and should have company.

"Zitzmann is a great prospect and his hustle is an inspiration to the rest of the club," Hendricks declared. "He will play left field with Rousch in center and Elmer Smith and Curtis Walker in right field. Lots of hitting there, but most of it is from the left side of the plate."

The five leading pitchers will be Rixey, Donohue, Mays, Sheehan and Luque, according to Hendricks, who says this pre-season choice will curtail much dissatisfaction. Last year he had seven good pitchers and they all wanted to pitch at the same time.

Caveney, a much subdued young man, will be played at shortstop and seems to have learned that baseball is not an eternal ride on the band wagon. Kritz, one of the best young players uncovered during 1924, will remain at second base, and Pinelli, whom Hendricks says is the best third baseman in the league, will play his favorite position.

Yet, according to some versions, everything is not essence of lilac with the infield. In fact, one of the regulars confided to me that Rube Bressler is somewhat less graceful than a sacred ox in taking throws at first base.

"A prayer rides with every ball I throw over there," was his succinct comment. Mr. Hendricks gives this angle of the situation a rather wide detour.

However, outside of defensive weaknesses at first base and behind the plate and the lack of another outfielder, the Reds seem almost fool-proof. The first position is beckoning them, sure enough.

Sophomores Are Champs

The Sophomore basketball team emerged as champions of the high school interclass court league yesterday afternoon after defeating the Freshmen, 16 to 14.

Two extra three-minute periods were required to bring the contest to a close. The count was 14-14 at the end of the game. Neither scored in the first extra period.

Larkins' field goal in the next "extra" brought results.

The Sophs had a 4-3 lead at the end of the quarter, but were outclassed by the Freshies in the second period when the yearlings led, 10-6. The Sophs climbed back in the third period and tied the count, 10-10, at the end of the quarter. The last quarter battle again found them tied and the clash went overtime.

Larkins, McConville and McKee starred for the Sophs. Gibbons, Davis and English led the losers. The victory gave the boys the interclass championship, inasmuch as they went through without losing a game.

FIVE MEMBERS OF TEAM WILL GET LETTERS

Dick Larkins, Sophomore, Will be Manager of 1926 Entry.

Thomas Pusey, sophomore and varsity forward, will captain the 1926 high school basketball team.

Pusey, a brother of Robert, who, for several years starred in high school athletics prior to his graduation, was unanimously elected to the leadership of next year's team at the regular post-season meeting and conference of the entire squad.

Richard Larkins, also a sophomore, was named manager of the team.

Five members of the Blue and White outfit will receive basketball letters for their work in 1924-25. They are: Dale Liebschner, retiring captain; Tom Pusey, 1925-26 captain; Paul English, E. English, McGraw and McConville.

Although prospects for next season's team are not dull by any means, there will be more than a little regret at the passing of two of the greatest guards the school has had since the days of Irvin Vorndran and Nate Allen, two members of the squad that went to the finals in the state scholastic tournament in 1916. Dale Liebschner and Charles McConville will be missed.

Always represented by a first class basketball team, East Liverpool high school this year was still up and in the running, although for the first time in many moons, ended the season without county championship laurels, which were tucked away by Salem.

The team played 23 games, winning 13, losing 10, and scoring 726 points to their opponents 587.

In Liebschner, McConville and P. English, the team had three players who would rank with the majority of scholastic performers in eastern Ohio.

Prospects are bright for next season, although the team loses both Liebschner and McConville, and in addition Howard, by graduation. There are left, however, Pusey, Davis, McGraw, McVey, Allison, Hall, P. English, E. English, Bough, Brozka, McKeever and Hamilton.

Among the most promising candidates who will come from the interclass league are Kimes and Kirkham of the Freshmen, Larkins, Schneidmiller, and McKee, of the Sophomores, and R. Bloor and Weikart of the Juniors.

Pop Spears Invents New Football Pants

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19—"Pop Spears, veteran football coach who crowded into the limelight some years ago and has remained there ever since by turning out gridiron teams at West Virginia University comparable with the best in the country, is today in the same class with Thomas Edison, Marconi and the Wright brothers.

That is, Spears has entered the ranks of inventors by designing a radically new style of football pants, declared by many to suit ideally the needs of the gridiron performer.

The outstanding change he effected was a new and entirely different way of padding the knees.

Spears' idea will be placed on the market as the "West Virginia Model" football pants and gridiron authorities who have inspected the invention unanimously declared it to be the best contribution to gridiron equipment made in many years by coaches.

It's a record run

THE most popular show on Broadway and the most popular cigarette—each proves anew the old adage that "the surest way to win success is to deserve it."

Chesterfield's popularity is no accident. It has been earned by sheer good taste—the full-bodied richness and fragrance of exceptional tobaccos, perfectly blended.

And Chesterfield continues its record-breaking run, winning more and more smokers every day, because it is deserved.

Such popularity must be deserved

HOW ABOUT SLATTERY FOR DEMPSEY'S TITLE?

Or, Perhaps, Stribling? Both Have Speed and Can Develop the Punch.

NEW YORK, March 19.—If, as the boys in the back room continue to insist, the man who will beat Jack Dempsey must be an individual with dazzling speed of hand and foot, what is to be the future of Jimmy Slattery and Young Stribbling? Both are faster than the "strike" of a rattler. Both are under twenty-one and growing so rapidly that they will be heavyweights, per se, within eighteen months or two years. Neither of them is a "killer" of the Dempsey strain, and you never saw a really clever man who was.

But the art of hitting can be mastered, just as one may develop a certain amount of ability at dominoes and wife beating. Ever at this early moment Slattery has begun to show improvement—as a puncher, not as a wife beater. He knocked over Frankie Schoell, a clever fellow-townsman, some weeks ago, and in his recent frolic with Jack Delaney his punch somehow seemed to carry greater authority than before.

The chances are that Slattery's muscles and joints are beginning to act more freely, giving his blows greater power. The trick of applying this at just the right moment will follow.

Stribbling, overworked last year, faces the same chance, although probably he never will hit hard enough to crack an office safe. However, one can't tell at this immature stage of his development.

Benny Leonard was and is a fine hitter. Yet between 1912 and 1915 he was known as the "Powder Puff Kid." Late in 1915 he knocked out Joe Mandot, and that started him on a rampage which only ended with his announced retirement.

Tom Gibbons scored just seven knockouts in forty-five fights prior to 1921; then he began to knock over his opponents in quantities, getting nineteen knockouts in twenty fights in 1921, and today he known as a most dangerous puncher.

Dempsey himself, probably the greatest hitter of all time, had to develop the knock-out knack. In 1915-16 such mixed-ale specimens as Jack Downey, Johnny Sudenberg, Terry Keller, Andre Anderson, Wild Burt Kenny and John Lester Johnson were blithely steping the limit with Jack Not one of them could have repeated fifteen months later, when Dempsey was blazing his bloody trail to the heavyweight championship.

FAMOUS JOHN LEVI, TRAINING WITH YANKS, NOT READY FOR BIG LEAGUES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 19.—Jim Thorpe, noblest redskin of them all, failed to make good in the major leagues because he couldn't hit curve ball pitching, but it is hardly likely that the same fate will overtake John Levi, regarded by some as Thorpe's natural successor as an all around athlete. It cannot happen to John because there is hardly any likelihood that he will view major league pitching, at least as a member of the New York Yankees.

Levi Hard Worker.

Although Miller Huggins signed Levi right out of Haskell Institute, the noted Indian school, where the young man attained a national reputation in several sports, the Yankee manager apparently has paid the redman no heed down here. Levi has worked out early and often at the Yankee park, putting in a back-breaking day with a smile, but Huggins, seemingly, hasn't been aware of his existence. It seems to be pretty generally agreed that Levi isn't ready for the big time.

In spite of his natural aptitude for athletics, he appears to be a bit ungainly and perhaps the Yankee board of strategy has decided that awkwardness constitutes a cardinal fault. That must be teh answer, since Levi hasn't had a real chance to show whether he harbors the spark of real ability under his rough exterior.

Fired by Ambition.

This has been the case with many another before him. Frank Baker certainly lacked some of the grace of Zaviowa. Ping Bodie always looked the part of a pork butcher, and neither of the Meusels is given to fetching postures. In fact, the list of graceless major leaguers, past and present, would fill a metropolitan telephone book.

And Levi has something that many a ball player has lacked, to wit, boundless ambition and the will to follow it to the end. He is the first Yankee on the field and the last to leave. None works harder than he, and after an hour of fly chasing many of them are blowing like a grampus, while Levi comes to the bench serene and smiling. The latter is his most conspicuous trait. His good humor is chronic and seemingly boundless.

Such a man, endowed as Levi is with a heritage of athletic royalty, should be a great prospect for any major league club. He may be two or three years away, but barring some interadicable fault not in evidence now, his ultimate arrival would seem to be ordained.

Boles Schedules 15 Games for Wooster

WOOSTER, March 19.—Coach L. C. Boles has booked fifteen conference games for the Wooster college basketball schedule for 1926. This is one of the longest schedules a Wooster squad has ever faced.

Backetball prospects at Wooster for 1926 seem only fair. Captain Hurst, Starn and Manly will be lost by graduation. The best new material is "Pete" Blough of Wadsworth and Bill Olson of Cleveland East.

Mountaineer Nine to Open Card on April 3

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19.—Two weeks from tomorrow the West Virginia University nine will make its 1925 debut by playing Duquesne University nine on the athletic field here. A two-game home series has been arranged with the Dukes, who are down on the Mountaineer card for both April 3 and 4. Duquesne came here to open the 1924 campaign early last April and captured both ends of the series and as this year's Duke squad is well supplied with veterans the initial assignment will find West Virginia making an uphill fight.

Storms prevented fishing off Aberdeen, Scotland, recently, and the subsequent shortage sent fish prices far above wartime quotations.

Buffalo Bowler Advances.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 19. — For the first time since the American Bowling Congress got under way, a local bowler today appeared among the first ten in the invidual pin competition. By virtue of a 660 score for three games last night, Fred Steinwald was able to break through to ninth place in the standing.

The Gardens, a Detroit team, went into fourth place in the five man events with a tally of 2,869. J. Genal and R. Teela of Oshkosh, Wis., in the doubles, made the second highest score in this event with a total of 1,225.

SOCIETY

Mrs. M. J. Niblock Surprised

A surprise was given Mrs. M. J. Niblock in her home in Cadmus street, last evening by members of her family, including children and grand-children, who celebrated her seventy-eighth birthday anniversary. A coverdish dinner was served at 6 o'clock, at which covers were arranged for 20 guests. St. Patrick's Day favors and a color scheme of green and white was carried out. Sweetpeas and narcissus adorned the table.

Rook and radio music were the diversions of the evening hours.

Mrs. Leroy Jamison, nee Miss Sara Niblock, of Huntington, Ind., was the only out-of-town guest.

Tendered Miscellaneous Shower.

Mr. and Mrs. George Neiswonger were surprised by a group of friends last evening, in their home in Pennsylvania avenue, East End. A miscellaneous shower was a feature.

Vocal duets were given by Mrs. George Neiswonger and Miss Margaret Pelly, and Miss Margaret Pelly and Miss Ethel Watson, accompanied by Miss Ada Miles. A vocal trio was featured by Misses Phyllis, Grace and Mary Olive Archer. Mrs. Charles Strobel gave a vocal solo.

Wedding Anniversary Celebrated.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lutton of 914 Ninth avenue, New Brighton, was the scene of an unusually pleasant social event Sunday, when they celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary. About 50 friends and relatives were present. Rev. Riley, of the First Baptist church, was a special guest.

Dinner was served by Ocie Smith. Piano solos were given by Mrs. Sol Sommers of Wellsville and vocal solos by Mr. Smith.

The honor guests were presented with glassware.

Mrs. Lutton was formerly Miss Helen Hensley, daughter of Dr. J. M. Hensley, a physician of Bellaire. Mr. Lutton is employed by the Sanitary Manufacturing company of New Brighton, but was formerly employed as a conductor on the Pennsylvania railroad at Wellsville.

Birthday Party in Aiken Home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Akins received a number of friends in their home near the Bell school house recently, in honor of the seventieth birthday anniversary of Mr. Akins. Music and games were the diversions of the social hours.

W. R. C. Meeting.

The Woman's Relief Corps will meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the G. A. R. hall, East Fourth and Washington streets.

Past Noble Grands Entertained.

The Past Noble Grands association, of Ceramic Rebekah lodge, was delightfully entertained Tuesday evening, in the home of Mrs. Anna Morris of Peake street. Sewing for Springfield Orphan's home was the principal diversion, after which music and games were enjoyed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. James McDole and Mrs. James Wilson. Covers were arranged for 20 guests.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Harry Todd, of College street, April 21.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT, IS FIERY, ITCHY OR ROUGH, USE SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

A Raw, Sore Throat

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. COMMON SENSE IN SMALL DOSES

When the beef is rare the tapeworm isn't.

In rural communities, surface sewage disposal and shallow wells are the sole sources of water-borne diseases.

Boasting, as we do, of our Twentieth Century civilization, it is about time for us to regard the insane man as a patient and not as a prisoner.

And they used to catch people
And jail them for debt,
But jailing insane
Is medieval yet.

Incarceration behind steel bars, with criminals for companions, doesn't seem to us to be the proper treatment for one suffering from a disease of the mind.

Dawes' Interests Gain Control of $5,000,000 Plant in Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March.—Announcement that the Vice-President of the United States, together with his associates, has acquired control of the $5,000,000 Jacksonville Gas company, was heralded by business men here as a sure sign that the Florida gateway city is on the verge of a tremendous boom.

General Charles G. Dawes visited this city recently, and the purchase of the local gas company by the Dawes interests, of Chicago, of which his brother, Rufus C. Dawes, is president, was believed to be a direct result of the visit.

Glasglow expects a business boom.

The Ford Monoplane.
Henry's Son Shows It.
60 Feet Wide, 48 Feet Long.
Weight 3,650 Pounds; Get Yours.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Yesterday was spent with Edsel B. Ford, getting information about the Ford flying planes. News of the greatest importance to everybody in this country, to the flying machine industry of the whole world, and to the safety of the United States.

At Dearborn, near Henry Ford's great experimental laboratory, not long ago, there was a big field, covered with trees 100 feet high. Henry Ford's son determined to make Detroit the center of flying machine manufacturing, decided to have an airplane factory on that field. Just 60 days later the factory was there and mechanics were at work manufacturing all-metal heavier than air flying machines.

Yesterday morning Edsel Ford invited his visitor to climb into the pilot seat of an all-metal monoplane just finished, one that will make its first flight today or tomorrow.

That machine will one day be as important to the world as the little automobile, with bicycle wheels Henry "demonstrated" to his neighbor 32 years ago. The name painted on the side of the monoplane is "Maiden Dearborn."

You and your children will fly in that kind of a machine in a few years and a description of it may interest you.

It looks like a huge bird of solid silver. Its single plane, or pair of wings stretch 60 feet across. The fuselage, which automobile owners would call a sedan body, suspended under the wing, is 48 feet long.

By taking out four bolts, in case of engine trouble—which won't happen to these flying machines any more than it does to a first class automobile—the engine can be taken off the front end and a new one put in its place in a couple of hours.

The car will carry 10 passengers including the pilot, or a load of 1,500 pounds besides the gasoline carried in two big tanks in the wings.

You cannot stand quite upright in the fuselage, but there's plenty of head room as you set down. The seats can be pulled out, as in a Pullman car, and made into sleeping berths for night travel.

The entire machine, except the engine, is made of a metal alloy, which is 94 per cent aluminum, four per cent copper and a little mangaese or cobalt. That gigantic machine, 60 feet wide, 48 feet long, as long as a good sized bungalow, weighs, including the heavy motor, only 3,650 pounds—a thousand pounds less than a good sized sedan car.

You will ask questions about this vehicle in which you are destined to travel, at a hundred miles an hour, for "quiet cruising," at first up to 300 miles an hour in later machines.

Is the aluminum alloy called "dura? lumin" strong? Yes, as strong as "mild" steel.

What about the danger of lightning, supposed to have destroyed the great Zeppelin Dixmude after the French took it from the Germans.

No danger from lightning. Aluminum is a better conductor of electricity than iron or steel. In an aluminum car you will be as safe from lightning as in a steel skyscraper or an iron ship. Nobody has ever been hurt by lightning in a skyscraper or an iron ship.

What do these machines cost? The first few machines before "quantity" production is accomplished will probably be sold for $25,000 apiece. The Fords, father and son, will sell at that price, although the first machines will cost more than a hundred thousand dollars apiece. Later they will be able to reduce the price on the big machines, carrying a ton load, to $12,000, and less. And the next step will be a smaller machine, also all-metal, for about five or six thousand dollars.

Facilities for purchasing on instalments will be provided as is done with automobiles. A young man with ambition should earn a hundred dollars a day above expenses with one of these machines, and in the first year make money enough to pay $25,000 for it and have $10,000 left over for himself.

How quickly can you learn to fly? That depends on the student. Some young men have learned in one day and have gone up and come down safely alone the second day. Almost anybody with a well-balanced head and good nerves can learn to fly in eight hours of actual flying time. It is easier than learning to knit.

The eight hours are usually spread

BLACK MONSTER CUTS PATH OF DESOLATION THROUGH FIVE STATES

Blackened Ruins of More Than 33 Towns Mercifully Hide Bodies of Victims, While Hospitals are Crowded With at Least 3,000 Injured as Twister Exacts Toll.

SCORES OF BODIES ARE CREMATED IN FLAMES WHICH FOLLOW STORM

Extent of Property Damage in Northwestern Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee is Uncertain, But is Estimated as High as $150,000,000.

A path of desolation, strewn with approximately 1,000 known dead and more than three times that number of injured, many of whom probably will die, stretched through five states today in the wake of the tornado which yesterday whirled out of northwestern Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee, paid their toll to the "black monster of the sky."

And in those states today's dawn broke over some 33 towns in blackened ruins which mercifully hid the mangled dead.

Scores of bodies are believed to have been cremated in the flames which followed the tornado and added to the terror of the night.

It will be days—possibly weeks—before anything approximating an accurate check on casualties can be made. Almost hourly come new reports of dead and injured as crippled wire communications are partially restored in the stricken area. And even in the more populous centers the demoralization brought by the death-laden wind has prevented effective rescue work or any orderly reports on the loss of life.

Scores of Towns Wiped Out.

The extent of the property damage, residents of the storm-swept sections have not even attempted to estimate. Some rescue workers say it will run to $50,000,000; others believe $150,000,000 will be nearer. From the panorama of destruction, with its scores of towns virtually annihilated, state authorities admit they are unable to evolve any figures which they would be willing to offer as a damage estimate.

The U. S. weather bureau at Chicago, today charted the path of the storm as a strip less than half a mile wide through Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. It first struck near Annapolis, Mo., lifted across the Missouri river and struck with renewed fury on the Illinois border.

Here the towns of Murphysboro, Gorham, Carbondale, De Soto, Duquoin, Bush, Tammaroa, Centralia, Benton, Logan, Parrish, Frankfort, West Frankfort and Thompsonville were in Levels Indiana Towns.

Completing its devastation there, it again lifted as it sped eastward, descending again near the eastern border of the state where Crossville and Carmi felt its breath of death.

Then the monster entered Indiana, leveling Princeton and Griffin and other towns near the Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky state lines.

Still unchecked, the course of the storm turned southeast over Kentucky and Tennessee and these states gave up their tribute to nature's fury. The towns of Angle, Witham, Oak Grove, Supheria, Buck Lodge, Peatown and Gallatin, in Tennessee, were the hardest hit in this territory, reports today indicate. Thirty were reported dead at Gallatin and approximately 50 in the other Tennessee towns which were virtually razed.

Fires in Many Communities.

CHICAGO, March 19.—The Tornado that tore its way of death and destruction through southern Illinois and into Indiana left a toll of 1,265 lifeless victims lying in its wake today, according to latest reports from the stricken cities and villages. To this appalling death total may be added scores, possibly hundreds more, before tha day is done. The estimates of the injured, including those gravely, probably fatally hurt, and others suf-

PASTOR'S KIN DIES IN STORM

Sister-in-law of Rev. B. R. Johnson Tornado Victim.

Mrs. Clora Johnson, sister-in-law of Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Church of Christ, was killed in the tornado, which swept Indiana and Illinois yesterday, according to a telegram received today from his brother, Brady Johnson, of Owensville, Ind.

Mrs. Johnson met her death when her home was destroyed.

The home of Carl Johnson, which was the Johnson homestead, was also swept away by the storm, the message said.

The two residences were located four miles apart.

Other relatives of Rev. Johnson suffered heavy damage in the twister, which wrought great havoc in the district in which the paster was born.

Rev. Johnson left here at noon today for the tornado-swept zone.

Warning is Issued Against Money Order And Stamp Purchases

Merchants were warned today against cashing money orders and purchasing postage stamps from strangers by Postmaster Edwin McClure.

A reward of $200 has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the yeggs who recently blew the postoffice safe at Lorain and made their escape with several thousand dollars worth of one and two-cent stamps. One of the bank robbers was captured when the automobile, in which they were fleeing, was wrecked at a grade crossing near Lorain.

BLAZE SWEEPS MONROEVILLE; DAMAGE PLACED AT $130,000

Grain Elevator, Store House and Lumber Yard Destroyed.

Ohio City Standpipe Empty as Fire Rages.

NORWALK, O., March 19.—Fire caused about $130,000 damage at Monroeville this morning, when the grain elevator and store house of J. P. Easten and Schneider Brothers' lumber yards and car of flour on a side track were destroyed.

Easton's loss is placed at $100,000 or more. He carried $87,000 insurance.

Fire pumpers were sent to the scene from Norwalk and Bellevue.

Traffic on the New York Central, W. & L. E. and L. S. E. lines was suspended for several hours.

Men Trapped in Barracksville Explosion Believed Dead.

ON BOARD UNITED STATES BUREAU OF MINES RESCUE CAR NO. 3, AT MOUTH OF MINE NO. 41, BARRACKSVILLE, W. Va., Mar. 19.—The Stark tragedy, ever looming in a miner's every-day life, stalked in this little town today, leaving dull despair in its wake.

Thirty-four men are still entombed in the Bethlehem Mine corporation mine where they were caught 300 feet below the surface by an explosion Tuesday night, and unless all signs found in the mine fail, the miners will be brought out dead, according to many of the rescue workers.

Fire, which broke out in the mine late yesterday, was holding back rescue work today, but it will be under control within four hours, R. M. Lambie, chief of the state department of mines, who heads all rescue work, said.

"They may be dead—every mother's son of them," Lambie said, after his latest trip down into the mine.

"DEVIL MADE ME DO IT," POISONER OF MOTHER, UNCLE AND AUNT SAYS

Mrs. Martha Wise Confesses She Put Arsenic in Water Bucket at Valley City — Three Dead, 13 Ill.

MEDINA, O., March 19.—Admitting the lack of a motive, reiterating again and again "the devil made me do it," Mrs. Martha Wise is in the custody of Sheriff Roshon today, the self-confessed poisoner of her mother, Mrs. Sophie Hazel; her uncle, Fred Glenke, Sr., and her aunt, Mrs. Lily Glenke, as well as the illness of some 13 or more relatives and acquaintances in the Hardscrabble district at Valley City, near here. Whether she will be tried for murder or an attempt made to commit her to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Lima was to be decided today by Prosecutor Joseph Seymour, after consultation with physicians who will be called to examine the woman.

Statement is Surprise

The finger of suspicion, it was learned, had been pointed at Mrs. Wise frequently, since news that the triple tragedy in the Glenke family was a subject of official examination. It was not, however, until late yesterday that Mrs. Glenke was brought before Seymour, Sheriff Roshon, his wife and Coaoner Crum, on a forthwith subpoena. She was brought here from a Cleveland hospital, where she had gone for a minor operation.

WALTER SUGDEN KIWANIS GUEST

Past Governor of West Virginia is Speaker.

"Any man in Kiwanis, who is not willing to give some of his time, and some of his energy to the cause of his organization, is about as useless as a motormeter is to a Franklin automobile."

This, in brief, was the thought brought to members of the Kiwanis club by Walter F. Sugden, Sistersville, immediate past governor of the West Virginia district at the noon luncheon in the Larkins annex, today.

Sugden, accompanied by Dr. Burdett, past president of the Wheeling club; Samuel Wells, Wellsburg, and Richard Nicholson, of Wheeling, arrived here last night. They were guests of William L. Smith, Chester.

The speaker lauded the "spirit and enthusiasm of the local club, during his address. "The surest marks of activity and influence which a Kiwanis club exercises in its community is shown by the attendance records," he declared, in commenting upon the number of members present.

Dr. Burdett spoke briefly, telling of his work as head of the Wheeling club. The attendance prize, silk socks, furnished by Frank Williams, was awarded to Olen Dawson.

President George E. Lewis, presided. The general singing was led by Prof. H. F. Laughlin, with Clair Chambers at the piano.

About 70 members of the club and their guests attended the meeting.

Printer Suffers From Shock and Loss of Blood.

Despondent over his wife's illness, Louis Orr, 54, printer, attempted suicide by slashing his throat with a razor at his home in West Center alley at 8 o'clock last evening. Attendants at the City hospital, where he was removed, believe he will recover.

Orr, whose wife has been an invalid for six months, did not work yesterday. While his brother-in-law, Martin Leach, who lives at the Orr home, was absent last night, the despondent man went to the cellar and cut his throat from ear to ear, but the razor missed the juglar vein.

Dropping the razor on a box, Orr ran up the stairs and into the alley, where he attempted to make his death certain with the use of a penknife. Leach, returning to the house as Orr was using the penknife, disarmed him.

Weakened by Loss of Blood.

The police were immediately notified, Captain Conley and Desk Sergeant Toland responding. When the officers arrived, they found Orr lying in the alley. The Sturgis ambulance was summoned and the man hurried to the hospital. He made no statement, either before or after his removal to the hospital.

Captain Conley accompanied Orr to the hospital, while Patrolman Toland made an investigation. Toland found the razor, stained with blood in the cellar. Blood stains were found on the cellar floor and also on the steps leading to the first floor and to the alley. The penknife, which Orr used in the alley, was also stained.

At the hospital Orr was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall. He was greatly weakened from the loss of blood and shock, but spent a restful night, according to attendants.

Driver Exonerated From Blame in Fatal Auto Crash Here

Charles Hartt, accountant, was exonerated from all blame in connection with the death of Mrs. Katherina Troisleme, 66, who was run down by an automobile near the corner of Fifth and Monroe streets, Tuesday night, by County Coronoer Dr. J. M. Van Fossan, East Palestine, following an inquest, this morning.

The coroner, after questioning Hartt and other witnesses, asserted that Mrs. Troislebe had violated the city traffic ordinance in attempting to cross the street 60 feet west of the street intersection and that Hartt had done everything in his power to avert the accident.

It was "an unavoidable accident," the coroner ruled.

Funeral services for Mrs. Troisleme will be conducted in the St. Aloysius Catholic church at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Burial will be made in the St. Aloysius cemetery.

WOMAN GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

The jury deliberated four hours before it reached a verdict. Mrs. Hubbard will be sentenced later. Attorney R. S. Holt in his closing plea to the jury declared that Mrs. Hubbard had shot her husband in self-defense.

SKIRTS FULLER AND HIGHER, WITH PEEK-A-BOO SLEEVES AND GAY COLORS, IS SPRING STYLE DECREE

Skirts fuller—and higher.

Sleeves that reveal "the skin you love to touch."

Waist lines, sometimes high, sometimes low, but always most decided, except in rare instances.

"Elaborate simplicity," with a distinct trend toward the feminine.

Color combinations that pale into significance the traditional glory of the strutting pea fowl.

All this apropos of the Spring Display Days—semi-annual fashion show—ushered in today by the merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce.

In the exhibit, which will continue until Saturday night, milady has an opportunity to keep abreast of the styles and she may learn exactly what she is expected to wear every hour of the twenty-four.

Simplicity Dominant Note.

The cream of the output from the shops of the leading modistes of New York, Chicago, Cleveland and other populous centers is displayed in the stores catering to women, while equally attractive are the creations for men's wear.

The display is not confined to clothes for the two sexes, for new styles in hats and shoes are exhibited, while spring stocks of furniture and other household needs are also included in the offerings.

Simplicity is to be the dominant note of the fashions this season, according to the modistes. But it is to be an "elaborate simplicity."

A widely-known designer who is building a trousseau (and by "trousseau" is NOT meant a bride's outfit, but a "wardrobe for milady's wear around the clock") explains this by saying that the basic principals of the costumes will be simple in the extreme, while the effects of elaborateness will be achieved in the colorings of the fabrics used and the trimmings, which promises to be richer and more gorgeous than ever, this year.

This Designer has original ideas in costuming. She refuses to be governed by any hide-bound set rules of fashion, insisting on taking the models and adapting them to the individuality of the wearer. In other words, she builds that individuality of the wearers into the gowns she creates.

"Otherwise my label will NOT go into the gowns," she says—and a label carries unqualified endorsement of the creation.

Paris Is Style Center

She has a word to say on Paris as the style center of the world.

"Paris always will be a style center," she added. "That is, Paris will continue to send our models, but it is up to us to take them or to leave them as we see fit. By that time I mean we can take them and adapt them to American use.

"What we are trying to do, however, and succeeding, too, is to develop distinctly American styles."

As an after effect of the great war, she explained, styles showed a distinct trend toward the masculine, but now they have begun an equally distinct trend toward the feminine.

This is indicated in the fuller skirts, the wealth of ornamentation and especially in the return of sleeves.

These latter are to be long—very long—but of filmy stuff that will reveal and not conceal—often with open spaces along their length—but all very long and very full.

That doesn't mean that all costumes are to have sleeves.

Common Sense Dictates.

The Ford Monoplane.
Henry's Son Shows It.
60 Feet Wide, 48 Feet Long.
Weight 3,650 Pounds; Get Yours.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Yesterday was spent with Edsel B. Ford, getting information about the Ford flying planes. News of the greatest importance to everybody in this country, to the flying machine industry of the whole world, and to the safety of the United States.

At Dearborn, near Henry Ford's great experimental laboratory, not long ago, there was a big field, covered with trees 100 feet high. Henry Ford's son determined to make Detroit the center of flying machine manufacturing, decided to have an airplane factory on that field. Just 60 days later the factory was there and mechanics were at work manufacturing all-metal heavier than air flying machines.

Yesterday morning Edsel Ford invited his visitor to climb into the pilot seat of an all-metal monoplane just finished, one that will make its first flight today or tomorrow.

That machine will one day be as important to the world as the little automobile, with bicycle wheels Henry "demonstrated" to his neighbor 32 years ago. The name painted on the side of the monoplane is "Maiden Dearborn."

You and your children will fly in that kind of a machine in a few years and a description of it may interest you.

It looks like a huge bird of solid silver. Its single plane, or pair of wings stretch 60 feet across. The fuselage, which automobile owners would call a sedan body, suspended under the wing, is 48 feet long.

By taking out four bolts, in case of engine trouble—which won't happen to these flying machines any more than it does to a first class automobile—the engine can be taken off the front end and a new one put in its place in a couple of hours.

The car will carry 10 passengers including the pilot, or a load of 1,500 pounds besides the gasoline carried in two big tanks in the wings.

You cannot stand quite upright in the fuselage, but there's plenty of head room as you set down. The seats can be pulled out, as in a Pullman car, and made into sleeping berths for night travel.

The entire machine, except the engine, is made of a metal alloy, which is 94 per cent aluminum, four per cent copper and a little mangaese or cobalt. That gigantic machine, 60 feet wide, 48 feet long, as long as a good sized bungalow, weighs, including the heavy motor, only 3,650 pounds—a thousand pounds less than a good sized sedan car.

You will ask questions about this vehicle in which you are destined to travel, at a hundred miles an hour, for "quiet cruising," at first up to 300 miles an hour in later machines.

Is the aluminum alloy called "dura' lumin" strong? Yes, as strong as "mild" steel.

What about the danger of lightning, supposed to have destroyed the great Zeppelin Dixmude after the French took it from the Germans.

No danger from lightning. Aluminum is a better conductor of electricity than iron or steel. In an aluminum car you will be as safe from lightning as in a steel skyscraper or an iron ship. Nobody has ever been hurt by lightning in a skyscraper or an iron ship.

What do these machines cost? The first few machines before "quantity" production is accomplished will probably be sold for $25,000 apiece. The Fords, father and son, will sell at that price, although the first machines will cost more than a hundred thousand dollars apiece. Later they will be able to reduce the price on the big machines, carrying a ton load, to $12,000, and less. And the next step will be a smaller machine, also all-metal, for about five or six thousand dollars.

Facilities for purchasing on instalments will be provided as is done with automobiles. A young man with ambition should earn a hundred dollars a day above expenses with one of these machines, and in the first year make money enough to pay $25,000 for it and have $10,000 left over for himself.

How quickly can you learn to fly? That depends on the student. Some young men have learned in one day and have gone up and come down safely alone the second day. Almost anybody with a well-balanced head and good nerves can learn to fly in eight hours of actual flying time. It is easier than learning to knit.

The eight hours are usually spread

BLACK MONSTER CUTS PATH OF DESOLATION THROUGH FIVE STATES

Blackened Ruins of More Than 33 Towns Mercifully Hide Bodies of Victims, While Hospitals are Crowded With at Least 3,000 Injured as Twister Exacts Toll.

SCORES OF BODIES ARE CREMATED IN FLAMES WHICH FOLLOW STORM

Extent of Property Damage in Northwestern Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee is Uncertain, But is Estimated as High as $150,000,000.

A path of desolation, strewn with approximately 1,000 known dead and more than three times that number of injured, many of whom probably will die, stretched through five states today in the wake of the tornado which yesterday whirled out of northwestern Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee, paid their toll to the "black monster of the sky."

And in those states today's dawn broke over some 33 towns in blackened ruins which mercifully hid the mangled dead.

Scores of bodies are believed to have been cremated in the flames which followed the tornado and added to the terror of the night.

It will be days—possibly weeks—before anything approximating an accurate check on casualties can be made. Almost hourly come new reports of dead and injured as crippled wire communications are partially restored in the stricken area. And even in the more populous centers the demoralization brought by the death-laden wind has prevented effective rescue work or any orderly reports on the loss of life.

Scores of Towns Wiped Out.

The extent of the property damage, residents of the storm-swept sections have not even attempted to estimate. Some rescue workers say it will run to $50,000,000; others believe $150,000,000 will be nearer. From the panorama of destruction, with its scores of towns virtually annihilated, state authorities admit they are unable to evolve any figures which they would be willing to offer as a damage estimate.

The U. S. weather bureau at Chicago, today charted the path of the storm as a strip less than half a mile wide through Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. It first struck near Annapolis, Mo., lifted across the Missouri river and struck with renewed fury on the Illinois border.

Here the towns of Murphysboro, Gorham, Carbondale, De Soto, Duquoin, Bush, Tammaroa, Centralia, Benton, Logan, Parrish, Frankfort, West Frankfort and Thompsonville were in Levels Indiana Towns.

Completing its devastation there, it again lifted as it sped eastward, descending again near the eastern border of the state where Crossville and Carmi felt its breath of death.

Then the monster entered Indiana, leveling Princeton and Griffin and other towns near the Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky state lines.

Still unchecked, the course of the storm turned southeast over Kentucky and Tennessee and these states gave up their tribute to nature's fury. The towns of Angle, Witham, Oak Grove, Supheria, Buck Lodge, Peatown and Gallatin, in Tennessee, were the hardest hit in this territory, reports today indicate. Thirty were reported dead at Gallatin and approximately 50 in the other Tennessee towns which were virtually razed.

Fires in Many Communities.

CHICAGO, March 19.—The Tornado that tore its way of death and destruction through southern Illinois and into Indiana left a toll of 1,265 lifeless victims lying in its wake today, according to latest reports from the stricken cities and villages. To this appalling death total may be added scores, possibly hundreds more, before the day is done. The estimates of the injured, including those gravely, probably fatally hurt, and others suf

PASTOR'S KIN DIES IN STORM

Sister-in-law of Rev. B. R. Johnson Tornado Victim.

Mrs. Clora Johnson, sister-in-law of Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Church of Christ, was killed in the tornado, which swept Indiana and Illinois yesterday, according to a telegram received today from his brother, Brady Johnson, of Owensville, Ind.

Mrs. Johnson met her death when her home was destroyed.

The home of Carl Johnson, which was the Johnson homestead, was also swept away by the storm, the message said.

The two residences were located four miles apart.

Other relatives of Rev. Johnson suffered heavy damage in the twister, which wrought great havoc in the district in which the paster was born.

Rev. Johnson left here at noon today for the tornado-swept zone.

"Elaborate simplicity," with a distinct trend toward the feminine.

Color combinations that pale into significance the traditional glory of the strutting pea fowl.

All this apropos of the Spring Display Days—semi-annual fashion show—ushered in today by the merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce.

In the exhibit, which will continue until Saturday night, milady has an opportunity to keep abreast of the styles and she may learn exactly what she is expected to wear every hour of the twenty-four.

Simplicity Dominant Note.

The cream of the output from the shops of the leading modistes of New York, Chicago, Cleveland and other populous centers is displayed in the stores catering to women, while equally attractive are the creations for men's wear.

The display is not confined to clothes for the two sexes, for new styles in hats and shoes are exhibited, while spring stocks of furniture and other household needs are also included in the offerings.

Simplicity is to be the dominant note of the fashions this season, according to the modistes. But it is to be an "elaborate simplicity."

A widely-known designer who is building a trousseau (and by "trousseau" is NOT meant a bride's outfit, but a "wardrobe for milady's wear around the clock") explains this by saying that the basic principals of the costumes will be simple in the extreme, while the effects of elaborateness will be achieved in the colorings of the fabrics used and the trimmings, which promises to be richer and more gorgeous than ever, this year.

This Designer has original ideas in costuming. She refuses to be governed by any hide-bound set rules of fashion, insisting on taking the models and adapting them to the individuality of the wearer. In other words, she builds that individuality of the wearers into the gowns she creates.

"Otherwise my label will NOT go into the gowns," she says—and a label carries unqualified endorsement of the creation.

Paris Is Style Center

She has a word to say on Paris as the style center of the world.

"Paris always will be a style center," she added. "That is, Paris will continue to send our models, but it is up to us to take them or to leave them as we see fit. By that time I mean we can take them and adapt them to American use.

"What we are trying to do, however, and succeeding, too, is to develop distinctly American styles."

As an after effect of the great war, she explained, styles showed a distinct trend toward the masculine, but now they have begun an equally distinct trend toward the feminine.

This is indicated in the fuller skirts, the wealth of ornamentation and especially in the return of sleeves.

These latter are to be long—very long—but of filmy stuff that will reveal and not conceal—often with open spaces along their length—but all very long and very full.

That doesn't mean that all costumes are to have sleeves.

Common Sense Dictates.

Postoffice Looted as Flames Rage in West Palm Beach

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Mar. 19.—Three persons are believed to have lost their lives in a fire which ruined two hotels and caused $4,000,000 property damage in the famous resort of Palm Beach last night. The flames were brought under control after dynamite had been obtained and made ready for blasting a path between the flaming buildings and other structures.

During the conflagration it was learned that the postoffice in West Palm Beach had been looted of $20,000 and the West Palm Beach company of Florida infantry was called out to patrol the streets and prevent further looting.

Thousands of dollars in valuable wearing apparel and other chattels of guests, whose fortunes run into millions of dollars, today lay on the ground, carried from the blazing hotels by the owners and servants. This, also is under guard of the soldiers.

Nurse and Two Children Die.

The Breakers, one of the oldest and best known of the resort hotels, was the first structure to take fire. The flames were discovered by Charles D. Frey of Chicago and Miss D. Prather of Washington who spread the alarm.

The three believed to have perished are two children and their nurse. The father of the children, refusing to give his name, but who said he was captain of a yacht anchored in the lake, declared he left his two children and their nurse asleep in the Breakers.

After the Breakers had begun to burn fiercely, the Palm Beach hotel, a smaller structure in West Palm Beach, caught fire, and also was burned to the ground.

Today all that was left of what once was the pride of the social elite of the United States and Europe was a shapeless ruin. Four gaunt chimneys stand where the Breakers once was.

Millionaires Camping.

Miss Prather called the fire department, but when the fire fighters arrived she was unable to convince them for several minutes that a fire was burning. When they finally located it, the blaze was beyond control. With a strong wind blowing the frame structure soon was nothing but ashes.

Embers were whirled blazing about West Palm Beach and business structures were threatened. The Palm Beach hotel was an easy victim.

More than 400 guests who were at the Breakers and about 200 at the Palm Beach were taken care of by private families, the Poinciana Hotel, the Everglades club or the Country club.

Millionaires, with their wives, relatives and guests were camping out today on the beach with three or four trunks, hastily crammed with wearing apparel and jewels. Practically everything in the hotel was lost. They were taking the situation with a smile, however. Barrels of flour, chairs, bureaus, dressers, flimsy pretty things, photographs, and everything imaginable, was scattered about the beach and the golf course adjoining.

fering fractures, ran as high as 8,000 in some instances.

The full toll of the black monster that whirled so suddenly and so dreadfully out of an afternoon sky may not be fully known for another 24 hours. Fires are burning in scores of stricken communities, completing the work of destruction wrought by the cyclone that was nature's greatest blow to the state of Illinois.

Troops are already in charge at several spots in the stricken area, that extends through southern Illinois from the western to the eastern borders.

Relief Trains Arrive.

Relief trains have arrived at the devestated regions, while more are being started from cities throughout the state. Governor Small, who, with Adjutant General Carlos Black, fills the National guard, remained at the state capital in Springfield throughout the night, directing first aid measures. He appealed to the citizens to rush supplies for the help of the sufferers to the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross.

At the same time an emergency relief appropriation of $500,000 was to be called up in the state legislature some time today with the expectancy of immediate passage.

The death blow dealt the southern part of the state was almost unbelievable in its suddenness. Almost before residents realized what had happened, a many-vortexed tornado in the shape of a black cloud rushed upon them and in a twinkling villages were wined out and the dead and dying left behind.

In some of the smaller communities it was reported that only a meager, pitiful few of the total population were left alive.

Buildings Vanish Like Cardboard

Public buildings, factories, homes or huts, all vanished like cardboard structures before the terrific wind, and in many towns, the more sturdy edifices that defied the sky monster fell in the flames that followed the mad wind in its flight. Mines in the coal country of Illionis were wrecked.

The frantic search of the wreckage for crushed but possible alive victims that was carried on through the night was continued with dogged hope today.

The cities where greatest loss of life and property occurred are West Frankfort, with 400 estimated dead; Murphysboro, 200 dead; De Soto, 140 dead, and Carmi and its environs, 100 dead.

Fire added to the horror in West Frankfort and De Soto. The wreckage burned over several blocks in both cities, incinerating bodies of the victims.

The great storm swept out of the west developing in eastern Kansas, sweeping over Missouri, causing some loss of life in that state and gaining in intensity, crossed the Mississippi between St. Louis, Mo., and Cairo, Ill. HughD.BPalesti-n

Storm Mile Wide.

Murphysboro was first to feel its strength. A great, black cloud swept down upon the city, turning afternoon brightness into inky midnight darkness. Then came, after a moment of death-like stillness, a shriek of the wind, crashing of buildings and death. The surge of the storm was gone in a minute, then came a deluge of rain. That is the description survivors give.

The path of the storm—the heart of it—was not more than a mile wide. It might have passed through the state without striking any city. But it chanced that some of the most populous cities in the southern part of the state were directly in its path. Rain continued to fall throughout the night and snow was threatening. The temperature had been above 60 degrees before the storm. Afterward it fell to near the freezing point, bringing intense suffering to thousands of homeless.

TORNADO DEATH TOLL BY TOWNS

CHICAGO, March 19.—By towns, the death toll from yesterday's mid-western tornado, today stood:

West Frankfort, Ill., 400.
Murphysboro, Ill., 250.
New Orient, Ill., 25.
De Soto, Ill., 250.
Parrish, Ill., 30.
Griffin, Ind., 25.
Carbondale, Ill., 25.
Vergenes, Ill., 38.
Princeton, Ind., 100.
Annapolis, Mo., 3.
Gorham, Ill., 35.
Logan, Ill., 19.
Caldwell, Ill., 9.
Royalton, Ill., 3.
Scattering in farming regions, 50.

The number of injured, many of whom it is feared will die, is placed at between 5,000 and 6,000.

Churches, lodge halls, school houses and private homes were converted into emergency hospitals. Doctors from St. Louis, Chicago and the larger cities of the country were on the scene today to administer relief. Roads were reported blocked by washouts and banks of debris. This condition hampered the relief work.

By tonight relief workers will have made a complete survey of the stricken area and will be able to give accurate estimates of the loss of life and property.

Fire Adds to Horror

Benton and Duquoin were quickly organized as relief stations, as was Gorham. In all these towns every available inch of space was being used for the injured, who will number into the thousands. Many are reported dying hourly. On every hand were stretched mangled and bleeding victims. The wrecked towns of Murphysboro and West Frankfort were undergoing indescribable scenes of death, devastation and pain. Long caravans of automobiles carried the dead to nearby towns whose medical facilities are pitifully inadequate to cope with the unprecedented situation. The dead were left lying in the streets, a few assembled in neat rows, but many left tangled in the wrecks in which they perished.

The cyclone struck its first blow at Annapolis, Mo., leaped madly across into Illinois for several hundred miles, tearing on its way to Indiana before it spent its force. Herrin and Marion were both in its path but no definite word has been obtained of the casualties or damage at either of these points.

At De Soto fire added to the horror. The school house here went down, sending its timbers and brick over 125 children. Eleven are known dead, 90 were hurt, many fatally, and 20 are still missing in the wreckage.

Property Damage Tremendous.

Property damage will reach more than $5,000,000 at Murphysboro and West Frankfort, the two largest cities struck. The Chicago & Eastern railroad shops were completely demolished at West Frankfort, as was workings of the famous Orient mine, where hundreds were killed and injured. The greatest chaos reigned and efforts of systematizing the rescue work failed miserably. Fire broke out in a number of smaller towns and for miles and miles the sky was lurid with its glow of devastation.

An injured man reached the village of Ava with first news of the destruction at Murphysboro. He was unable to give exact figures of the dead and injured. He drove part of the way from Murphysboro to Ava in an automobile, but was forced to abandon it because of washed out roads.

"I don't know how many are dead," he reported. "I just got out of there to try and get help. There were bodies lying on the streets everywhere and the injured were dying like dogs. There was no one to aid them."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 19.—Industrial stocks sold at moderately higher prices in early trading today. There was a distinct improvement in the independent oil stocks.

The market was active in the first hour. Outside demand for stocks was comparatively small and prices settled down to a lower level.

The industrial leaders were exceptions. United States Steel was taken in large blocks at 121, up ½ points from the low of yesterday; General Electric was up five points and American Can, motor stocks moved upward in good order, as did also the public utility shares.

The St. Paul stocks and junior bonds declined to a new low level, chiefly as the result of rumors that heavy assessments would be laid against stockholders, while holders of all but the fully secured bonds would receive no more interest payments.

The railroad group as a whole moved upward after the opening, but was unable to continue the rally.

STORM DAMAGES PHONE LINES

East Liverpool and Other Ohio Cities Feel Twister.

Little damage was done in the East Liverpool district by the cyclone-like windstorm, tail of the Illinois twister, which swept the state last night, according to reports today.

Approximately 100 local and 15 toll lines were damaged, officials of the Ohio Bell Telephone company declared. Linemen completed repairs at noon today.

Part of the board fence surrounding the new Potters' National Bank building, at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets, was blown over. Several billboards, belonging to the Ceramic Bill Posting company, in various parts of the city, were damaged.

Lisbon District Hit.

About 100 telephones were put out of commission in the Lisbon district.

There was a rainfall of .20 inches Wednesday, and the rainfall Wednesday night and Thursday morning was registered as .61 inches, making a total for the last 24 hours of .81 inches. This is the official record as announced by U. S. Observer Lawrence H. Copeland, at Millport.

The wind, according to Copeland, registered 80 miles an hour.

A few electric wires were blown from their supports in the Lisbon district.

A tree was blown over the high tension line of the Y. & O. railroad at the Miller coal property north of Lisbon during the night, breaking the line.

There was a "slip" on the road at Gander Flats, just south of the Lisbon Y. & O., station.

Damage was repaired early Thursday morning, but the service was interrupted for several hours.

CANTON, March 19.—Small frame garages were moved over on lots of neighbors, signs were blown down, garbage cans and wastepaper boxes along the streets were scattered around, trees and electric light and telephone wires were blown down here last night and early today, as a result of the tail end of the Illinois twister striking Canton. There was no serious damage to buildings and fortunately no fires broke out during the high wind. Many Canton people have relatives in the wind-stricken districts and they are besieging newspaper offices here for tidings from friends.

NEW LEXINGTON, March 19.—The homes of Peter Saltsack, Herbert Hopkins and Stewart Penn at Kendville were all destroyed early this morning, when a defective flue in the Saltsack home set fire to the house and heavy wind carried sparks to the other houses. The loss is about $7,000.

"Devil Made Me"

For a time, Seymour said, the woman maintained her innocence.

"I don't know anything about it," she declared with emphasis.

Last night, her composure broke. "Tell us how you did it," Mrs. Roshon, wife of the sheriff urged.

"Well, maybe, I did," Mrs. Wise admitted. "Yes, I did it. I put arsenic in the water buckets."

The statement came as a complete surprise. Seymour had believed that the poisoner had placed the arsenic purchased at a Medina drug store in the coffee, which the family drank at the holiday dinner on New Year's day, but the simplicity of the poison scheme, and its thoroughness caused Mrs. Wise's hearers to gasp.

Mrs. Wise is a widow and 41. She has four children ranging in age from 7 to 14.

According to her signed statement, she poisoned the water at her mother's home on Thanksgiving Day, and at the Glenke home on New Year's Day. Mrs. Hazel died a few days later, and Mrs. Glenke died on January 3. Her husband's death occurred February 8.

Salient Points of Confession.

Salient points in the signed confession are:

"On the day before New Years, I went down to Glenke's after milk. I put some arsenic in the water pail. The water pail was always sitting on the cupboard in Glenke's kitchen.

"I don't know why I did it. I just couldn't help it. The Devil was in me.

"The day before my mother, Mrs. Hazel, took sick, I was at her home. She and my brother, Fred Hazel, lived in the same house in separated parts. She had her kitchen and Hazels had theirs.

"I went to my mother's part of the house and put a small quantity of arsenic in the water bucket. Just a pinch of it. The water bucket was sitting on the cupboard in her kitchen.

"Along the latter part of January, or the first of February,—I can't remember which—I put some more arsenic in the water bucket at Glenke's. That was the last time.

over eight days.

The curious thing is that it takes about one hour for an intelligent man to learn to fly and seven hours to learn how to make a landing without smashing the machine.

In front are two great wheels with pneumatic tires, about 16 inches in diameter. They have powerful shock absorbers and can safely come down to the ground at a speed of 50 miles an hour. The pilot lands with the front part of the monoplane tilted upward, striking the ground first with the "tail" of his machine, provided with a flat metal landing piece without wheels and protected by shock absorbers. This tail piece dragging along the ground, acts as a brake, compelling the machine to slow down.

The running of the machine seems quite simple, all but the landing.

You have before you an ordinary automobile wheel. While it stands up perpendicularly in front of you the airship flies on a level keel. Push it one way, the machine goes up, push it another way, and the machine goes down.

Turn the wheel left or right if you want to steer to the left or right. But there is very little steering once you are headed in the right direction. There are no curves or corners on that air way.

The steering is done principally on landing, when the pilot comes down in corkscrew fashion to strike his field in the right place at the right speed.

Later flying machines will influence road building, as the automobile has done. Every state will have its flying highways north and south, at least 300 feet wide to give room for the wings and lighted at night so that flyers, traveling above the roads, will always have below them a flying field as wide as the country.

signer, "nor would I care to attend a formal dinner party with my arms encased in tight sleeves."

Sleeves will be worn where common sense and the occasion demands them, and sleeveless evening gowns will still be held in high favor.

Fabric makers and NOT designers set the fashions, it also was learned, but this, too, has to be taken with a pinch of salt, as it were.

Designers and fabric makers work together—but until the fabric makers turn out their products, designers are at a loss as to how to proceed.

Designs must be adapted to the material in which they are to be turned out, so in a way fabric makers really set the styles.

This year the fabrics are to be sheer and filmy and gaily colored. Pastel shades will be favored, but again there is no hard, fast rule to guide. Most anything will go, provided the colors harmonize, provided it's elaborately ornamented, and provided—last but by no means least—that it fits the individuality of the wearer.

THREE PERISH IN HOTEL FIRE

Postoffice Looted as Flames Rage in West Palm Beach

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Mar. 19.—Three persons are believed to have lost their lives in a fire which ruined two hotels and caused $4,000,000 property damage in the famous resort of Palm Beach last night. He appealed to the citizens to rush supplies for the help of the sufferers to the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross.

At the same time an emergency relief appropriation of $500,000 was to be called up in the state legislature some time today with the expectancy of immediate passage.

The death blow dealt the southern part of the state was almost unbelievable in its suddenness. Almost before residents realized what had happened, a many-vortexed tornado in the shape of a black cloud rushed upon them and in a twinkling villages were wined out and the dead and dying left behind.

In some of the smaller communities it was reported that only a meager, pitiful few of the total population were left alive.

Buildings Vanish Like Cardboard

Public buildings, factories, homes or huts, all vanished like cardboard structures before the terrific wind, and in many towns, the more sturdy edifices that defied the sky monster fell in the flames that followed the mad wind in its flight. Mines in the coal country of Illionis were wrecked.

The frantic search of the wreckage for crushed but possible alive victims that was carried on through the night was continued with dogged hope today.

The cities where greatest loss of life and property occurred are West Frankfort, with 400 estimated dead; Murphysboro, 200 dead; De Soto, 140 dead, and Carmi and its environs, 100 dead.

Fire added to the horror in West Frankfort and De Soto. The wreckage burned over several blocks in both cities, incinerating bodies of the victims.

The great storm swept out of the west developing in eastern Kansas, sweeping over Missouri, causing some loss of life in that state and gaining in intensity, crossed the Mississippi between St. Louis, Mo., and Cairo, Ill. HughD.BPalesti-n

Storm Mile Wide.

Murphysboro was first to feel its strength. A great, black cloud swept down upon the city, turning afternoon brightness into inky midnight darkness. Then came, after a moment of death-like stillness, a shriek of the wind, crashing of buildings and death. The surge of the storm was gone in a minute, then came a deluge of rain. That is the description survivors give.

The path of the storm—the heart of it—was not more than a mile wide. It might have passed through the state without striking any city. But it chanced that some of the most populous cities in the southern part of the state were directly in its path. Rain continued to fall throughout the night and snow was threatening. The temperature had been above 60 degrees before the storm. Afterward it fell to near the freezing point, bringing intense suffering to thousands of homeless.

TORNADO DEATH TOLL BY TOWNS

CHICAGO, March 19.—By towns, the death toll from yesterday's midwestern tornado, today stood:

West Frankfort, Ill., 400.
Murphysboro, Ill., 250.
New Orient, Ill., 25.
De Soto, Ill., 250.
Parrish, Ill., 30.
Griffin, Ind., 25.
Carbondale, Ill., 25.
Vergenes, Ill., 38.
Princeton, Ind., 100.
Annapolis, Mo., 3.
Gorham, Ill., 35.
Logan, Ill., 19.
Caldwell, Ill., 9.
Royalton, Ill., 3.
Scattering in farming regions, 50.

The number of injured, many of whom it is feared will die, is placed at between 5,000 and 6,000.

Churches, lodge halls, school houses and private homes were converted into emergency hospitals. Doctors from St. Louis, Chicago and the larger cities of the country were on the scene today to administer relief. Roads were reported blocked by washouts and banks of debris. This condition hampered the relief work.

By tonight relief workers will have made a complete survey of the stricken area and will be able to give accurate estimates of the loss of life and property.

Fire Adds to Horror

Benton and Duquoin were quickly organized as relief stations, as was Gorham. In all these towns every available inch of space was being used for the injured, who will number into the thousands. Many are reported dying hourly. On every hand were stretched mangled and bleeding victims. The wrecked towns of Murphysboro and West Frankfort were undergoing indescribable scenes of death, devastation and pain. Long caravans of automobiles carried the dead to nearby towns whose medical facilities are pitifully inadequate to cope with the unprecedented situation. The dead were left lying in the streets, a few assembled in neat rows, but many left tangled in the wrecks in which they perished.

The cyclone struck its first blow at Annapolis, Mo., leaped madly across into Illinois for several hundred miles, tearing on its way to Indiana before it spent its force. Herrin and Marion were both in its path but no definite word has been obtained of the casualties or damage at either of these points.

At De Soto fire added to the horror. The school house here went down, sending its timbers and brick over 125 children. Eleven are known dead, 90 were hurt, many fatally, and 20 are still missing in the wreckage.

Property Damage Tremendous.

Property damage will reach more than $5,000,000 at Murphysboro and West Frankfort, the two largest cities struck. The Chicago & Eastern railroad shops were completely demolished at West Frankfort, as was workings of the famous Orient mine, where hundreds were killed and injured. The greatest chaos reigned and efforts of systematizing the rescue work failed miserably. Fire broke out in a number of smaller towns and for miles and miles the sky was lurid with its glow of devastation.

An injured man reached the village of Ava with first news of the destruction at Murphysboro. He was unable to give exact figures of the dead and injured. He drove part of the way from Murphysboro to Ava in an automobile, but was forced to abandon it because of washed out roads.

"I don't know how many are dead," he reported. "I just got out of there to try and get help. There were bodies lying on the streets everywhere and the injured were dying like dogs. There was no one to aid them."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 19.—Industrial stocks sold at moderately higher prices in early trading today. There was a distinct improvement in the independent oil stocks.

The market was active in the first hour. Outside demand for stocks was comparatively small and prices settled down to a lower level.

The industrial leaders were exceptions. United States Steel was taken in large blocks at 121, up ½ points from the low of yesterday; General Electric was up five points and American Can, motor stocks moved upward in good order, as did also the public utility shares.

The St. Paul stocks and junior bonds declined to a new low level, chiefly as the result of rumors that heavy assessments would be laid against stockholders, while holders of all but the fully secured bonds would receive no more interest payments.

The railroad group as a whole moved upward after the opening, but was unable to continue the rally.

STORM DAMAGES PHONE LINES

East Liverpool and Other Ohio Cities Feel Twister.

Little damage was done in the East Liverpool district by the cyclone-like windstorm, tail of the Illinois twister which swept the state last night, according to reports today.

Approximately 100 local and 15 toll lines were damaged, officials of the Ohio Bell Telephone company declared. Linemen completed repairs at noon today.

Part of the board fence surrounding the new Potters' National Bank building, at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets, was blown over. Several billboards, belonging to the Ceramic Bill Posting company, in various parts of the city, were damaged.

Lisbon District Hit.

About 100 telephones were put out of commission in the Lisbon district. There was a rainfall of .20 inches Wednesday, and the rainfall Wednesday night and Thursday morning was registered as .61 inches, making a total for the last 24 hours of .81 inches. This is the official record as announced by U. S. Observer Lawrence H. Copeland, at Millport.

The wind, according to Copeland, registered 80 miles an hour.

A few electric wires were blown from their supports in the Lisbon district.

A tree was blown over the high tension line of the Y. & O. railroad at the Miller coal property north of Lisbon during the night, breaking the line.

There was a "slip" on the road at Gander Flats, just south of the Lisbon Y. & O., station.

Damage was repaired early Thursday morning, but the service was interrupted for several hours.

CANTON, March 19.—Small frame garages were moved over on lots of neighbors, signs were blown down, garbage cans and wastepaper boxes along the streets were scattered around, trees and electric light and telephone wires were blown down here last night and early today, as a result of the tail end of the Illinois twister striking Canton. There was no serious damage to buildings and fortunately no fires broke out during the high wind. Many Canton people have relatives in the wind stricken districts and they are besieging newspaper offices here for tidings from friends.

NEW LEXINGTON, March 19.—The homes of Peter Saltsack, Herbert Hopkins and Stewart Penn at Kendville were all destroyed early this morning, when a defective flue in the Saltsack home set fire to the house and heavy wind carried sparks to the other houses. The loss is about $7,000.

"Devil Made Me"

For a time, Seymour said, the woman maintained her innocence.

"I don't know anything about it," she declared with emphasis.

Last night, her composure broke. "Tell us how you did it," Mrs. Roshon, wife of the sheriff urged.

"Well, maybe, I did," Mrs. Wise admitted. "Yes, I did it. I put arsenic in the water buckets."

The statement came as a complete surprise. Seymour had believed that the poisoner had placed the arsenic purchased at a Medina drug store in the coffee, which the family drank at the holiday dinner on New Year's day, but the simplicity of the poison scheme, and its thoroughness caused Mrs. Wise's hearers to gasp.

Mrs. Wise is a widow and 41. She has four children ranging in age from 7 to 14.

According to her signed statement, she poisoned the water at her mother's home on Thanksgiving Day, and at the Glenke home on New Year's Day. Mrs. Hazel died a few days later, and Mrs. Glenke died on January 3. Her husband's death occurred February 8.

Salient Points of Confession.

Salient points in the signed confession are:

"On the day before New Years, I went down to Glenke's after milk. I put some arsenic in the water pail. The water pail was always sitting on the cupboard in Glenke's kitchen.

"I don't know why I did it. I just couldn't help it. The Devil was in me.

"The day before my mother, Mrs. Hazel, took sick, I was at her home. She and my brother, Fred Hazel, lived in the same house in separated parts. She had her kitchen and Hazels had theirs.

"I went to my mother's part of the house and put a small quantity of arsenic in the water bucket. Just a pinch of it. The water bucket was sitting on the cupboard in her kitchen.

"Along the latter part of January, or the first of February,—I can't remember which—I put some more arsenic in the water bucket at Glenke's. That was the last time.

"I did not give Marie"—a daughter of the Glenke's now suffering from arsenic poisoning at Memorial hospital in Elyria—"any arsenic in the hospital."

over eight days.

The curious thing is that it takes about one hour for an intelligent man to learn to fly and seven hours to learn how to make a landing without smashing the machine.

In front are two great wheels with pneumatic tires, about 16 inches in diameter. They have powerful shock absorbers and can safely come down to the ground at a speed of 50 miles an hour. The pilot lands with the front part of the monoplane tilted upward, striking the ground first with the "tail" of his machine, provided with a flat metal landing piece without wheels and protected by shock absorbers. This tail piece dragging along the ground, acts as a brake, compelling the machine to slow down.

The running of the machine seems quite simple, all but the landing.

You have before you an ordinary automobile wheel. While it stands up perpendicularly in front of you the airship flies on a level keel. Push it one way, the machine goes up, push it another way, and the machine goes down.

Turn the wheel left or right if you want to steer to the left or right. But there is very little steering once you are headed in the right direction. There are no curves or corners on that air way.

The steering is done principally on landing, when the pilot comes down in corkscrew fashion to strike his field in the right place at the right speed.

Later flying machines will influence road building, as the automobile has done. Every state will have its flying highways north and south, at least 300 feet wide to give room for the wings and lighted at night so that flyers, traveling above the roads, will always have below them a flying field as wide as the country.

Hipple Concert Co. Will Give Program In High School

Hipple, who performs at the piano and also plays the xylophone and saxophone.

Hipple is known as the "wizard of the xylophone." The other three members of the company are experienced in concert work and each is a soloist on one or more instruments. The program will be classical and popular in character.

signer, "nor would I care to attend a formal dinner party with my arms encased in tight sleeves."

Sleeves will be worn where common sense and the occasion demands them, and sleeveless evening gowns will still be held in high favor.

Fabric makers and NOT designers set the fashions, it also was learned, but this, too, has to be taken with a pinch of salt, as it were.

Designers and fabric makers work together—but until the fabric makers turn out their products, designers are at a loss as to how to proceed.

Designs must be adapted to the material in which they are to be turned out, so in a way fabric makers really set the styles.

This year the fabrics are to be sheer and filmy and gaily colored. Pastel shades will be favored, but again there is no hard, fast rule to guide. Most anything will go, provided the colors harmonize, provided it's elaborately ornamented, and provided—last but by no means least—that it fits the individuality of the wearer.

POOR JANITOR IS HAILED AS GREAT ARTIST

Joseph Thorngren, Swede, Lays Aside Mop and Overalls.

TO GET STUDIO

Busts of Harding and Pershing Win Him Honors.

GALESBURG, Ill., Mar.—A common toiler, the janitor of a small apartment house, "Old Joe," the Swede, has laid aside his mop and overalls to become Joseph Thorngren, artist and sculptor.

Soon he is to have his own studio, financed by George S. Dole, whose father was one of the founders of the Chicago Art Institute. Ben Cable, Chicago sculptor, is going to assist him.

Thorngren was "discovered" when representatives of a local art exhibit chanced upon busts of the late President Warren G. Harding and of General John J. Pershing.

There was an oil painting, too, of Mary Pickford, motion picture star, "Old Joe" had copied from the cover of a magazine one day when a "yearning to paint hit hard."

Called a Marvel.

The busts and painting, done in a flash of forgotten inspiration, were the sensation of the exhibit. A gnarled and careworn laborer became the idol of the hour. He shifted nervously and explained he "didn't have any clothes except these overalls" and would like to be excused from public appearance.

"Thorngren's work is positively marvelous," Dole declared.

"It compares favorably with the best American work of today," said Cable.

More than a quarter of a century ago, when King Oscar ruled in Sweden, Carl Larsen, landscape artist, and Leonard Anders Zorn, portrait painter, found Thorngren in the province of Dalarne. His work in oils, crayon and clay aroused their interest. They gave him instruction, took him with them on their trips and finally persuaded him to go to Italy.

Began Drinking.

"Larsen and Zorn praised me. They said if I studied in Florence I soon would be able to paint royalty, then the ambition of every painter in Sweden," Thorngren said.

"I went to Italy and did very well until I developed a liking for liquor. My funds ran out and I came to the United States. But it was too easy to earn money in America and my liking for liquor grew. When I reached Chicago I sold all my models of birds and plaster casts of prominent men.

"One day Zorn came to Chicago to do portrait painting. I braced up and worked again, but when he left I took to drink—and then to common labor."

Commenting on the interest Galesburg citizens and Chicago artists and patrons of art had taken in him, Thorngren, now 62 years old, said:

"I know I can retrieve my art. I should have done it years ago. My time has been wasted, but now I am going to work hard. A contractor here has promised to build me a studio. Mr. Dole and Mr. Cable are going to help me.

Dislikes Callers.

"I appreciate my new friends, but I do not want people coming to call on me. That takes too much time. When an artist caters to society he has no time left in which to paint. I never like to have women call.

"I want to forget the world and paint from early morning until darkness comes. Eat? No, a true artist is so wrapped up in his work the hours pass all too quickly. He will stop because of darkness, but not because of hunger."

Thorngren related an early life filled with disappointment. His father insisted he work on the farm and criticised his interest in art until, at the age of 20, he ran away from home.

"My fire success was a painting of Abraham Lincoln, done in school when I was nine years old," Thorngren said.

"Birds were my favorite subjects in the old days. In studying them I learned anatomy. I knew what every feather was used for."

Traveled Much.

The janitor-artist told of living in Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

"In Hillsdale, Mich," he said, "an acquaintance stole forty of my paintings. I was discouraged. When I came to Galesburg I determined never to reveal my past nor to paint or model again."

There is a humorous strain in Thorngren's make-up. He entertained the art exhibit with a story of a man in Michigan who asked him to make a painting of his father. He had no photograph and his father was dead. Thorngren painted from his description.

When his patron saw his finished work he said:

"That's the old man, all right, but Lord, how he has changed since he died!"

POOR JANITOR IS HAILED AS GREAT ARTIST

Joseph Thorngren, Swede, Lays Aside Mop and Overalls.

TO GET STUDIO

Busts of Harding and Pershing Win Him Honors.

GALESBURG, Ill., Mar.—A common toiler, the janitor of a small apartment house, "Old Joe," the Swede, has laid aside his mop and overalls to become Joseph Thorngren, artist and sculptor.

Soon he is to have his own studio, financed by George S. Dole, whose father was one of the founders of the Chicago Art Institute. Ben Cable, Chicago sculptor, is going to assist him.

Thorngren was "discovered" when representatives of a local art exhibit chanced upon busts of the late President Warren G. Harding and of General John J. Pershing.

There was an oil painting, too, of Mary Pickford, motion picture star, "Old Joe" had copied from the cover of a magazine one day when a "yearning to paint hit hard."

Called a Marvel.

The busts and painting, done in a flash of forgotten inspiration, were the sensation of the exhibit. A guarded and careworn laborer became the idol of the hour. He shifted nervously and explained he "didn't have any clothes except these overalls" and would like to be excused from public appearance.

"Thorngren's work is positively marvelous," Dole declared.

"It compares favorably with the best American work of today," said Cable.

More than a quarter of a century ago, when King Oscar ruled in Sweden, Carl Larsen, landscape artist, and Leonard Anders Zorn, portrait painter, found Thorngren in the province of Dalarne. His work in oils, crayon and clay aroused their interest. They gave him instruction, took him with them on their trips and finally persuaded him to go to Italy.

Began Drinking

"Larsen and Zorn praised me. They said if I studied in Florence I soon would be able to paint royalty, then the ambition of every painter in Sweden," Thorngren said.

"I went to Italy and did very well until I developed a liking for liquor. My funds ran out and I came to the United States. But it was too easy to earn money in America and my liking for liquor grew. When I reached Chicago I sold all my models of birds and plaster casts of prominent men.

"One day Zorn came to Chicago to do portrait painting. I braced up and worked again, but when he left I took to drink—and then to common labor."

Commenting on the interest Galesburg citizens and Chicago artists and patrons of art had taken in him, Thorngren, now 62 years old, said:

"I know I can retrieve my art. I should have done it years ago. My time has been wasted, but now I am going to work hard. A contractor here has promised to build me a studio. Mr. Dole and Mr. Cable are going to help me.

Dislikes Callers.

"I appreciate my new friends, but I do not want people coming to call on me. That takes too much time. When an artist caters to society he has no time left in which to paint. I never like to have women call.

"I want to forget the world and paint from early morning until darkness comes. Eat? No, a true artist is so wrapped up in his work the hours pass all too quickly. He will stop because of darkness, but not because of hunger."

Thorngren related an early life filled with disappointment. His father insisted he work on the farm and criticised his interest in art until, at the age of 20, he ran away from home.

"My fire success was a painting of Abraham Lincoln, done in school when I was nine years old," Thorngren said.

"Birds were my favorite subjects in the old days. In studying them I learned anatomy. I knew what every feather was used for."

Traveled Much.

The janitor-artist told of living in Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

"In Hillsdale, Mich," he said, "an acquaintance stole forty of my paintings. I was discouraged. When I came to Galesburg I determined never to reveal my past nor to paint or model again."

There is a humorous strain in Thorngren's make-up. He entertained the art exhibit with a story of a man in Michigan who asked him to make a painting of his father. He had no photograph and his father was dead. Thorngren painted from his description.

When his patron saw his finished work he said:

"That's the old man, all right, but Lord, how he has changed since he died!"

Stamp Out Gambling

Rumors of attempts to pry the lid off gambling in East Liverpool are current.

Following a warning issued less than two weeks ago by Chief of Police McDermott that, if necessary, he would smash in the doors of any so-called club room whose officers permitted gambling, reports persist that a public gambling house is preparing to operate.

If the report is true, it is a foregone conclusion that the promoters are bucking their heads against a stone wall, for East Liverpool, a law-abiding community, will not tolerate any attempt to invite an invasion on the part of the professional gamesters.

The people are standing as a unit behind the police department in their sincere efforts to enforce the laws against gambling as well as bootlegging, robbery and crimes of greater degree. And they insist that any movement to re-open poker rooms be crushed.

Municipal officials should ascertain whether there is any foundation for the many rumors. If the stories are true, they should lose no time in convincing the responsible parties that East Liverpool will not sanction law violations of any character.

Intelligent Newspaper Use

A speaker before the convention of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism declares that the newspapers are handicapped in wielding their full and best influence in national life today because the American public, "while buying millions of newspapers, does not read the important things in them."

"It is plain," he says, "that the person who reads only the headlines, the sports page, the serial fiction, the comics, is not making intelligent use of the newspaper nor encouraging publication of worth-while newspapers."

The remedy this speaker suggests is to have newspaper reading taught in high schools and colleges.

Undoubtedly it is a good suggestion, but it is not entirely new. Although newspaper reading does not have a separate teacher or a special place in the school course, it is often used effectively by teachers of English, of civics and political science, history and perhaps some other subjects. It is not at all unusual in many schools for teachers to ask pupils to look up something in the newspapers, to bring in newspaper clippings bearing on a certain point, to be able to report on important current events, and so on.

Perhaps newspapers are skimmed more superficially today than formerly, but they are at the same time read more intelligently than formerly, because the whole group of newspaper readers includes so much larger a portion of the public than ever before.

Fiery Slumber

Here is a news story passed on for the benefit of those who enjoy shuddering.

Horace Harris, a middle-aged boiler inspector of Syracuse, N. Y., seeking shelter in the freight yard at 2 o'clock on a bitterly cold morning, crawled inside the firebox of a laid-up locomotive. It was cosy there, and he fell asleep. An hour later a fireman climbed aboard and proceeded to fire up. He placed oil-soaked waste and kindling wood in the firebox, and applied a torch. Harris awoke to find himself imprisoned by a wall of fire.

It was a situation worthy of Edgar Allen Poe. The prisoner did not die of fright, but he may die of the burns he received as he scrambled through those flames over six feet of blazing firewood, and emerged, a mass of flames himself, to the amazement of the fireman.

Perhaps the moral should be added: Never go to sleep in a locomotive firebox.

Bachelors of Real Estate

Business administration, hotel administration and numerous other practical courses concerned with all sorts of trades, professions and domestic occupations have found their way into the courses of leading colleges and universities. The National Association of Real Estate Boards now has a course of study which it wants to have incorporated in college work so that the realtor may have the same opportunity for special training as the engineer, the dentist, the lawyer, the physician and so on.

The Englishman who once thanked Heaven that his university taught him nothing of any practical value would probably be dismayed and shocked at the subjects now taught in many schools. Even the educator who declared that a college graduate might, with perfect self-respect, take up ditch-digging as a life work provided he dug better ditches than his fellow-worker, did not advocate putting ditch-digging into the schools.

There may seem for a time to be danger of the so-called "cultural courses" being swamped by the introduction of these many practical subjects, but in the long run there will undoubtedly be found room for both, with more persons than ever before making use of the increased educational opportunities.

Italians in France

The March number of Current History Magazine reports a large influx of Italians into the agricultural districts of southern France. This is an interesting development. France needs population; Italy needs an outlet for its surplus population. Both are Latin peoples.

Tolstoi once foretold a world managed by the "four giants—the Anglo-Saxons, the Latins, the Slavs and the Mongolians." The Latins have been divided into such small groups that their giant possibilities have been greatly reduced. Perhaps this migratory movement may start something.

HASKIN'S LETTER

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Are Senators Being Wilful Again?

WASHINGTON, March 19—Will Calvin Coolidge have to deal throughout his administration with a group of recalcitrant senators? In the light of events since March 4 Washington observers are asking this question, and following it up with speculation as to what such a group may be able to accomplish.

Woodrow Wilson had to combat such an element. He characterized it as "a small group of wilful senators," thereby enhancing his reputation as a maker of apt and forceful phrases, and also thereby solidifying that opposition which thwarted him in many of the plans that lay nearest his heart.

"Wilful," according to the dictionary, means "governed by the will without regard to reason; stubborn; inflexible." Senators apparently did not relish having that term applied to them by President Wilson, but, having the name, they seemed determined to have the game and fought the president at almost every turn.

Theodore Roosevelt likewise had his troubles with senators who were disposed to kick over the party traces and he said things about them that were more vigorous if less apt than the phrase coined by Woodrow Wilson. In the main, however, Roosevelt had a fairly even break with the senate, getting pretty much all that he asked for and yielding the minimum in return. Perhaps the most notable concession to the upper house of congress was his agreeing to having the word "reasonable" written into the interestate commerce act through the famous Allison compromise that ended the fight over the Elkins act.

At the most critical stage of his career Roosevelt won a memorable victory over the group of influential Republican senators that had been fighting him openly or secretly. That was early in the campaign for the 1904 presidential nomination. The senate opposition to Roosevelt was ready to begin an aggressive contest against his nomination, and the first strategic move was made when Mark Hanna sent Roosevelt a message explaining adroitly that it had been decided to be inadvisable for the Ohio Republican state convention to go on record unqualifiedly as favoring Roosevelt as the party's 1904 candidate. Hanna said he hoped Roosevelt would understand the why and wherefore of this and be satisfied.

The "Big Stick" president burned up the telegraph wires with a sizzling reply to Hanna, in which he stated that the one thing he did understand was that those who were not for him were against him, and he gave this telegram to the press associations so that it was published broadcast even before it reached the Ohio senator. In the face of that challenge Hanna weakened, the Ohio convention did endorse Roosevelt, and the senate opposition to Roosevelt crumbled.

Will Coolidge Fight?

All Washington is keen to learn whether President Coolidge will fight the present-day wilful senators, or whether he will adopt conciliatory tactics and play the game of give and take. It is generally believed, however, that the answer to this must be sought in events as they transpire, rather than in anything the president will say. Also it is accepted as wholly in keeping with the Coolidge temperament that the president will never bandy words with his senatorial opponents by calling names or coining Wilsonian phrases.

The first evidence that all is not harmony between the White House and the north end of the capitol came when the Republican leaders decided to discipline the La Follette group of radicals by reading them out of the party and dropping them from their committtee assignments as Republicans. This was regarded as part of the administration program, not necessarily originating with Coolidge or particularly favored by him, but acquiesced in and approved by him once the responsible party chieftains had determined it to be wise and an essential party step. Republican senators like Borah and Norris, however, openly opposed the idea, and warned their colleagues that it was a dangerous experiment in party control.

The radicals were disciplined despite this opposition and warning, and then came the second break that astounded the country.

For the first time in more than half a century, and for the sixth time in the nation's history, a president's choice of a cabinet member was rejected by the senate. Mr. Coolidge was told that he could not take Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, into his official family as attorney general. This was accomplished by the votes of eight Republicans and three radicals.

Vice President Dawes, whose vote might have saved the day for the administration in this first real test, was not on the job and could not be got to the senate in time to cast the deciding vote when it was apparent that there was a tie vote on the Warren confirmation, and when he did arrive an attempt to reconsider the vote failed, the one Democrat, Senator Overman, who had favored confirmation, having changed his vote.

A Blow at Precedents.

That this was a blow at precedents and knocked traditions into a cocked hat is not to be gainsaid. The law of the land stipulates that a president's selection of cabinet members must be confirmed by the senate, but when a president has nominated a man to head one of the executive departments confirmation by the senate has followed almost invariably as a matter of course. The exceptions have been so few as merely to prove the rule. Andrew Jackson had one of his cabinet selections vetoed by the senate. President Tyler, who really had rough sledding in matters of that kind, had three of his cabinet nominations rejected, and President Johnson had the seemingly impossible happen to him in 1868. Since that date presidents have chosen their cabinets and the senate has never exercised its veto power until the day when President Coolidge's nomination of Mr. Warren came to an issue and, unhappily for many persons concerned, Vice President Dawes was asleep at the switch—or, rather, enjoying a siesta at his downtown hotel.

Back of all this there is, of course, more than the mere opposition to Mr. Warren as the man for the legal portfolio of the government. Fundamentally it is a question of the power of the senate and of individual senators. Other presidents than Mr. Coolidge have had experiences that point to the same conclusion. Not so many years ago a president was nominated and elected despite the opposition of a senator from a certain state. That president undertook to parcel out the patronage of that state without consulting that senator, and he failed to get a single nomination confirmed.

Senate precedents, procedure and tration are even stronger than the senate rules which Vice President Dawes attacked so vigorously. Senators are extremely jealous of the power of the body to which they belong, and they get that way about 15 minutes after they have taaken the oath of office. They will fight among themselves, or between the partisan groups into which they are divided, until the cows come home, but let anybody on the outside attack the senate, or the prerogatives of an individual senator, and they stand together as if they were defending liberty's last bulwark.

It is significant to those who have seen presidents and senates come and go, that Mr. Coolidge chose Mr. Warren as his attorney general without consulting and securing the approval of the one Republican senator from Michigan, Senator Couzens, and that it was Senator Couzens who had the final word in the debate that preceded the rejection of Mr. Warren's nomination.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, March 19. — Another damp, chilly day. And after a breakfast of soggy bread and tasteless coffee I decided to leave London. It is a charming city in fair weather, but depressing to me in the winter. A Hadley-Page passenger plane was leaving for Paris at noon.

The drive to the Croyden flying field took us through many interesting sections. London's age old buildings with their rain washed bleachings of white give a touch of antiquity that no other city has. And the countrysides of England are the most beautiful in the world.

But I'll confess I didn't give them the attention they deserved. I kept recalling the airplane accidents and the number dashed suddenly to death from the clouds. The driver assured me there was no danger but I wanted him to keep repeating it over and over again.

There were three other passengers—five in all. One was an inquisitive little boy who wanted to know how high we would go and did we wear life belts like they did on boats. Never before have I been so impressed with the wisdom of the adage "Children should be seen and not heard."

We stepped in the plane—like so many dumb sheep entering the slaughter pen. The little boy wanted to know if he could ride with the engineer. The violent whirr of the propeller. A sudden lurch and we were racing across a field and suddenly the ground seem to give way under us.

We began to climb higher and higher until we rose above the clouds. A beautiful vista—like a billowy ocean of snow white cotton. Now and then an air pocket and sudden drop. I notice a man in the front seat calmly reading the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

I peeped out the window now and then like a frightened rabbit. I merely wanted to see English channel and thumb my nose at it for what it did to me a couple of dags ago. Nearing the channel we came down below the clouds and the earth resembled one of those real estate maps they bombard you with in Los Angeles.

The pilot and the mechanician become rather grave flying over the channel. Over land they have a chance to descend safely if something goes wrong, but to land in the channel the chances of safety are nil. I didn't like the way they whispered to each other, but probably it was just casual conversation such as, "I wonder if Lulu and Georgette will keep their date with us tonight in Paris."

If it were not for the air pockets riding in a passenger plane is like riding on a fast express train—only smoother. On a clear day the flight from London to Paris is made in a little more than three hours. And I believe in fair weather danger of accident is reduced to a minimum, but to fly in a fog is foolhardy. One thing too is especially noticeable. Despite the propaganda of the air passenger companies to extol the idea of safety, very few Europeans fly over the channel. Almost invariably the passengers are Americans.

A life insurance agent could reap a harvest flying back and forth from London to Paris. I am sure passengers who had spurned life insurance before would sign on the dotted line.

Due to the mist we did not arrive outside the gates of Paris until near dusk. The plane came to the ground in spiraling, birdlike sweeps. There was a slight but welcome jar as the wheels struck earth and then the crowd of porters and custom men swarmed over the field to meet us. It was nearly an hour drive in a jogging old bus into the city.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By HERBERT CARYL.

BOSTON, March 19.—Gay night life in Boston? What is it? Where is it to be found?

These questions have come to the front since the filing in the Massachusetts legislature of a bill calling for the licensing of night clubs and roadhouses.

The questions have wide interest, too; for Boston, known as the 'Athens of America," because as many colleges and universities are within and just without its gates, is the playground for thousands of college boys and girls, who come from all parts of the world.

Night clubs and roadhouses, said to be frequented by many undergraduates, were termed "helidens" by J. Frank Chase, head of the Watch and Ward society. To a legislative committee Chase described them as being the homes of a combination of "booze and uncensored dancing." Rev. A. Z. Conrad, Boston clergyman, said girls were falling by the score in the pleasure resorts.

After witnessing a raid on a local night club, Chase put his impressions into verse as follows:

"Out in the night 'neath the dull red glow
The men of jungle assemble.
Oil-smeared bodies sway to and fro,
With heart-beat and pulses a-tremble.
Deep in the night, till the morning light
The crystalline galaxy pales,
Shadows merge, and cheeks pressed tight
Throb, while the saxophone wails."

But investigators who have penetrated into the secret precincts of some of the night clubs and roadhouses state that conditions are not so bad as they are painted. Devotees of Boston's gay night life are gay. Uncensored dancing goes on after 2 a. m., and, in some clubs, liquor is not uncommon, the investigators found. In a majority of places, however, only a few collegiate folk were found, and the "bouncers" kept things pretty much in hand.

Visit a few of the "places" with the unofficial investigators. First, there is a night club in Roxbury. Bleak brick walls, dimmed lights, smoky atmosphere, a jazz band from Dixie and a bevy of sub-flappers were found. The club had no liquor for sale, but a bootlegger appeared at the tables around the dancing floor, offering Scotch at $5 a pint. Men and girl singers went around among the tables during the dancing intermissions and were fairly showered with coins as they sang and danced.

Then there was a club in the heart of the Black Bay. Investigators found dancing, with and without restraint. A winsome blonde was observed riding, "piggy-back" fashion, on the back of her partner, while she waved a cigaret to the applauding spectators at the tables. Flasks and bottles were much in evidence at the tables, but no liquor could be purchased in the club.

An "Apache dance" was staged at the height of the revelry. A wistful-eyed little blonde's hair was seized by her partner. She was spun around in a dizzy whirl. Her partner pushed her in the face, and she fell to the floor with a crash. The next minute, however, she was on her feet and dancing with the mad swing of the music. A dashing brunette became so excited at 3 a. m. that she jumped upon a table and danced and danced, the music all the while becoming madder and madder, and the colored drummer tossing his sticks high in the air. Girls were found smoking while dancing, some of them with both arms around their partners' necks. Plebeian ham sandwiches sold for $1 each.

Next was a club on a downtown street. Hearty, rollicking mirth prevailed. A censor was always on the dancing floor. No liquor for sale, but plenty in evidence. Sunday morning dancing continued until 4 o'clock. Petting parties were observed at the tables while other guests were "on with the dance."

Cyril Tolley, a prominent Londoner, said, after his return from America recently that "in that country people of all classes talk of nothing else but prohibition and golf.

EAST LIVERPOOL — AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1925.

Stamp Out Gambling

Rumors of attempts to pry the lid off gambling in East Liverpool are current.

Following a warning issued less than two weeks ago by Chief of Police McDermott that, if necessary, he would smash in the doors of any so-called club room whose officers permitted gambling, reports persist that a public gambling house is preparing to operate.

If the report is true, it is a foregone conclusion that the promoters are bucking their heads against a stone wall, for East Liverpool, a law-abiding community, will not tolerate any attempt to invite an invasion on the part of the professional gamesters.

The people are standing as a unit behind the police department in their sincere efforts to enforce the laws against gambling as well as bootlegging, robbery and crimes of greater degree. And they insist that any movement to re-open poker rooms be crushed.

Municipal officials should ascertain whether there is any foundation for the many rumors. If the stories are true, they should lose no time in convincing the responsible parties that East Liverpool will not sanction law violations of any character.

Intelligent Newspaper Use

A speaker before the convention of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism declares that the newspapers are handicapped in wielding their full and best influence in national life today because the American public, "while buying millions of newspapers, does not read the important things in them."

"It is plain," he says, "that the person who reads only the headlines, the sports page, the serial fiction, the comics, is not making intelligent use of the newspaper nor encouraging publication of worth-while newspapers."

The remedy this speaker suggests is to have newspaper reading taught in high schools and colleges.

Undoubtedly it is a good suggestion, but it is not entirely new. Although newspaper reading does not have a separate teacher or a special place in the school course, it is often used effectively by teachers of English, of civics and political science, history and perhaps some other subjects. It is not at all unusual in many schools for teachers to ask pupils to look up something in the newspapers, to bring in newspaper clippings bearing on a certain point, to be able to report on important current events, and so on.

Perhaps newspapers are skimmed more superficially today than formerly, but they are at the same time read more intelligently than formerly, because the whole group of newspaper readers includes so much larger a portion of the public than ever before.

Fiery Slumber

Here is a news story passed on for the benefit of those who enjoy shuddering.

Horace Harris, a middle-aged boiler inspector of Syracuse, N. Y., seeking shelter in the freight yard at 2 o'clock on a bitterly cold morning, crawled inside the firebox of a laid-up locomotive. It was cosy there, and he fell asleep. An hour later a fireman climbed aboard and proceeded to fire up. He placed oil-soaked waste and kindling wood in the firebox, and applied a torch. Harris awoke to find himself imprisoned by a wall of fire.

It was a situation worthy of Edgar Allen Poe. The prisoner did not die of fright, but he may die of the burns he received as he scrambled through those flames over six feet of blazing firewood, and emerged, a mass of flames himself, to the amazement of the fireman.

Perhaps the moral should be added: Never go to sleep in a locomotive firebox.

Bachelors of Real Estate

Business administration, hotel administration and numerous other practical courses concerned with all sorts of trades, professions and domestic occupations have found their way into the courses of leading colleges and universities. The National Association of Real Estate Boards now has a course of study which it wants to have incorporated in college work so that the realtor may have the same opportunity for special training as the engineer, the dentist, the lawyer, the physician and so on.

The Englishman who once thanked Heaven that his university taught him nothing of any practical value would probably be dismayed and shocked at the subjects now taught in many schools. Even the educator who declared that a college graduate might, with perfect self-respect, take up ditch-digging as a life work provided he dug better ditches than his fellow-worker, did not advocate putting ditch-digging into the schools.

There may seem for a time to be danger of the so-called "cultural courses" being swamped by the introduction of these many practical subjects, but in the long run there will undoubtedly be found room for both, with more persons than ever before making use of the increased educational opportunities.

Italians in France

The March number of Current History Magazine reports a large influx of Italians into the agricultural districts of southern France. This is an interesting development. France needs population; Italy needs an outlet for its surplus population. Both are Latin peoples.

Tolstoi once foretold a world managed by the "four giants—the Anglo-Saxons, the Latins, the Slavs and the Mongolians." The Latins have been divided into such small groups that their giant possibilities have been greatly reduced. Perhaps this migratory movement may start something.

HASKIN'S LETTER

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Are Senators Being Wilful Again?

WASHINGTON, March 19—Will Calvin Coolidge have to deal throughout his administration with a group of recalcitrant senators? In the light of events since March 4 Washington observers are asking this question, and following it up with speculation as to what such a group may be able to accomplish.

Woodrow Wilson had to combat such an element. He characterized it as "a small group of wilful senators," thereby enhancing his reputation as a maker of apt and forceful phrases, and also thereby solidifying that opposition which thwarted him in many of the plans that lay nearest his heart.

"Wilful," according to the dictionary, means "governed by the will without regard to reason; stubborn; inflexible." Senators apparently did not relish having that term applied to them by President Wilson, but, having the name, they seemed determined to have the game and fought the president at almost every turn.

Theodore Roosevelt likewise had his troubles with senators who were disposed to kick over the party traces and he said things about them that were more vigorous if less apt than the phrase coined by Woodrow Wilson. In the main, however, Roosevelt had a fairly even break with the senate, getting pretty much all that he asked for and yielding the minimum in return. Perhaps the most notable concession to the upper house of congress was his agreeing to having the word "reasonable" written into the interestate commerce act through the famous Allison compromise that ended the fight over the Elkins act.

At the most critical stage of his career Roosevelt won a memorable victory over the group of influential Republican senators that had been fighting him openly or secretly. That was early in the campaign for the 1904 presidential nomination. The senate opposition to Roosevelt was ready to begin an aggressive contest against his nomination, and the first strategic move was made when Mark Hanna sent Roosevelt a message explaining adroitly that it had been decided to be inadvisable for the Ohio Republican state convention to go on record unqualifiedly as favoring Roosevelt as the party's 1904 candidate. Hanna said he hoped Roosevelt would understand the why and wherefore of this and be satisfied.

The "Big Stick" president burned up the telegraph wires with a sizzling reply to Hanna, in which he stated that the one thing he did understand was that those who were not for him were against him, and he gave this telegram to the press associations so that it was published broadcast even before it reached the Ohio senator. In the face of that challenge Hanna weakened the Ohio convention did endorse Roosevelt, and the senate opposition to Roosevelt crumbled.

Will Coolidge Fight?

All Washington is keen to learn whether President Coolidge will fight the present-day wilful senators, or whether he will adopt conciliatory tactics and play the game of give and take. It is generally believed, however, that the answer to this must be sought in events as they transpire, rather than in anything the president will say. Also it is accepted as wholly in keeping with the Coolidge temperament that the president will never bandy words with his senatorial opponents by calling names or coining Wilsonian phrases.

The first evidence that all is not harmony between the White House and the north end of the capitol came when the Republican leaders decided to discipline the La Follette group of radicals by reading them out of the party and dropping them from their committee assignments as Republicans. This was regarded as part of the administration program, not necessarily originating with Coolidge or particularly favored by him, but acquiesced in and approved by him once the responsible party chieftains had determined it to be wise and an essential party step. Republican senators like Borah and Norris, however, openly opposed the idea, and warned their colleagues that it was a dangerous experiment in party control.

The radicals were disciplined despite this opposition and warning, and then came the second break that astounded the country.

For the first time in more than half a century, and for the sixth time in the nation's history, a president's choice of a cabinet member was rejected by the senate. Mr. Coolidge was told that he could not take Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, into his official family as attorney general. This was accomplished by the votes of eight Republicans and three radicals.

Vice President Dawes, whose vote might have saved the day for the administration in this first real test, was not on the job and could not be got to the senate in time to cast the deciding vote when it was apparent that there was a tie vote on the Warren confirmation, and when he did arrive an attempt to reconsider the vote failed, the one Democrat, Senator Overman, who had favored confirmation, having changed his vote.

A Blow at Precedents.

That this was a blow at precedents and knocked traditions into a cocked hat is not to be gainsaid. The law of the land stipulates that a president's selection of cabinet members must be confirmed by the senate, but when a president has nominated a man to head one of the executive departments confirmation by the senate has followed almost invariably as a matter of course. The exceptions have been so few as merely to prove the rule. Andrew Jackson had one of his cabinet selections vetoed by the senate. President Tyler, who really had rough sledding in matters of that kind, had three of his cabinet nominations rejected, and President Johnson had the seemingly impossible happen to him in 1868. Since that date presidents have chosen their cabinets and the senate has never exercised its veto power until the day when President Coolidge's nomination of Mr. Warren came to an issue and, unhappily for many persons concerned, Vice President Dawes was asleep at the switch—or, rather, enjoying a siesta at his downtown hotel.

Back of all this there is, of course, more than the mere opposition to Mr. Warren as the man for the legal portfolio of the government. Fundamentally it is a question of the power of the senate and of individual senators. Other presidents than Mr. Coolidge have had experiences that point to the same conclusion. Not so many years ago a president was nominated and elected despite the opposition of a senator from a certain state. That president undertook to parcel out the patronage of that state without consulting that senator, and he failed to get a single nomination confirmed.

Senate precedents, procedure and tration are even stronger than the senate rules which Vice President Dawes attacked so vigorously. Senators are extremely jealous of the power of the body to which they belong, and they get that way about 15 minutes after they have taaken the oath of office. They will fight among themselves, or between the partisan groups into which they are divided, until the cows come home, but let anybody on the outside attack the senate, or the prerogatives of an individual senator, and they stand together as if they were defending liberty's last bulwark.

It is significant to those who have seen presidents and senates come and go, that Mr. Coolidge chose Mr. Warren as his attorney general without consulting and securing the approval of the one Republican senator from Michigan, Senator Couzens, and that it was Senator Couzens who had the final word in the debate that preceded the rejection of Mr. Warren's nomination.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, March 19. — Another damp, chilly day. And after a breakfast of soggy bread and tasteless coffee I decided to leave London. It is a charming city in fair weather, but depressing to me in the winter. A Hadley-Page passenger plane was leaving for Paris at noon.

The drive to the Croyden flying field took us through many interesting sections. London's age old buildings with their rain washed bleachings of white give a touch of antiquity that no other city has. And the countrysides of England are the most beautiful in the world.

But I'll confess I didn't give them the attention they deserved. I kept recalling the airplane accidents and the number dashed suddenly to death from the clouds. The driver assured me there was no danger but I wanted him to keep repeating it over and over again.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

Tells you there is danger ahead. A healthy bladder does not act at night.

J. H. Dorton, W. Graham, Va., says: "I had to get up seven or eight times at night for forty years. I thought it was my age. After taking Lithiated Buchu a short time, I am airight." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder as Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 2 cents each. Sold at all leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at J. D. Holloway's. adv.

A. Money is appropriated by Congress for the payment of the bonus out of the ordinary receipts of the Government.

Q. Are the Philippines a territory or a colonial possession of the United States? A. K.

A. The Philippine Islands are not classed either as a territory or as a colonial possession but as a dependency of the United States. The United States Government on receiving the Islands from Spain declared its purpose to maintain its authority over the islands only until they should be in a position to provide for themselves a feasible form of government, able to maintain themselves at home and against foreign aggression.

Buick Buick

WHY THERE ARE MORE THAN A MILLION

Buick Torque Tube Drive

The fine engineering in Buick motor cars is demonstrated by the torque tube drive. This is a steel tube which transmits the drive from the rear wheels instead of adding this important duty to the burden of the rear springs. The torque tube also encloses and protects the propeller shaft. This type of construction also holds the rear wheels in alignment regardless of road conditions.

RHEUMATISM
LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-Four Hours.

Every druggist in this country is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenrhu, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance. East Liverpool Druggists are my appointed agents in your city. If you live out of town I'll gladly send you free particulars.

BAD BREATH
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

FORD

The Housewife's Car

Every woman knows that she can buy to better advantage if she shops in person; but in bad weather this is impossible unless she has a car.

We will sell you a FORD for a small payment down—balance by the month, and that solves the problem. In a FORD, the housewife can attend to her daily round of shopping in comfort no matter what the weather—and then enjoy that afternoon bridge, tea or reception properly gowned for the occasion.

Suppose there is a big car in the garage. A FORD won't be long paying for itself in the savings it makes in upkeep. It pays to own two cars when one is a big car and the other a FORD.

Come in and let us tell you how little you pay down to get the car and how little the installments amount to each month. You'll be surprised

A. Edward H. Smith in "Business" says that the total annual levy that crime places on the country amounts to about $10,000,000,000. It is three and a half times the national budget for 1923, and at least twelve times the annual cost of the Army and Navy.

Q. Where is the largest sulphur mine in the world?—J. W.

A. A definite statement can not be made, since a mine which produces a great deal of sulphur may be nearing exhaustion, while anew mine with no record for great production, may have a great future. The Sicilian mines as a group have made the largest production, but the Texas Gulf deposit may produce more in the future.

Q. What was it that President Coolidge said about saving in connection with life insurance? L. F. D.

A. A part of the statement follows: Everyone knows that it is not what is earned, but what is saved, which measures the difference between success and failure. This is a difference so slight from today as to seem unimportant and of no consequence, but in the aggregate of even a few years, it amounts to a sum of great importance. The ability to save is based entirely upon self-control. The posession of that capacity is the main element of character. It passes over at once into the realm of good citizenship. He who sells an insurance policy sells a certificate of character, an evidence of good citizenship, and unimpeachable title to the right of self-government.

Q. Is the greatest penetrating point directly at the muzzle of a gun? P. B. A.

Q. Are the Philippines a territory or a colonial possession of the United States? A. K.

A. The Philippine Islands are not classed either as a territory or as a colonial possession but as a dependency of the United States. The United States Government on receiving the Islands from Spain declared its purpose to maintain its authority over the islands only until they should be in a position to provide for themselves a feasible form of government, able to maintain themselves at home and against foreign aggression.

RHEUMATISM

LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-Four Hours.

Every druggist in this country is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenrhu, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St, Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance. East Liverpool Druggists are my appointed agents in your city. If you live out of town I'll gladly send you free particulars.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

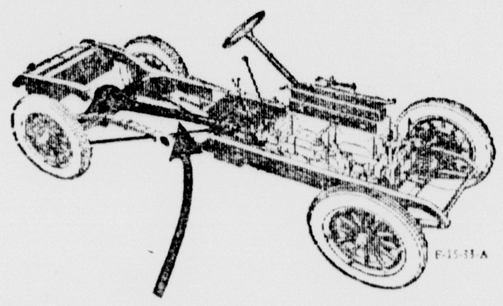

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Buick Buick

WHY THERE ARE MORE THAN A MILLION

Buick Torque Tube Drive

The fine engineering in Buick motor cars is demonstrated by the torque tube drive. This is a steel tube which transmits the drive from the rear wheels instead of adding this important duty to the burden of the rear springs. The torque tube also encloses and protects the propeller shaft. This type of construction also holds the rear wheels in alignment regardless of road conditions.

The Housewife's Car

Every woman knows that she can buy to better advantage if she shops in person; but in bad weather this is impossible unless she has a car.

We will sell you a FORD for a small payment down—balance by the month, and that solves the problem. In a FORD, the housewife can attend to her daily round of shopping in comfort no matter what the weather—and then enjoy that afternoon bridge, tea or reception properly gowned for the occasion.

Suppose there is a big car in the garage. A FORD won't be long paying for itself in the savings it makes in upkeep. It pays to own two cars when one is a big car and the other a FORD.

Come in and let us tell you how little you pay down to get the car and how little the installments amount to each month. You'll be surprised

Measure Providing for Special Assessments is Rejected

A proposal to allow towns and villages to levy special assessments upon abutting property for public improvements was disapproved when the house of delegates yesterday rejected a bill covering that proposal, after receiving an adverse report on it from the committee on counties and municipal corporations.

Twelve bills were rejected on adverse reports from various committees and 20 were placed on the calendar with favorable reports in the first few minutes of the house session. The judiciary committee reported against passage of a bill to require payment of a corporation tax before voting, but Delegate Mathews objected to its rejection and on his action it was returned to the committee.

Among the bills rejected were one to repeal the law setting office hours for the state auditor and treasurer and bills affecting nominations to political committees, worthless checks, type on documents to be recorded, dower rights, payment of a percentage of fines to the prosecuting attorney, allowance of an hour before defaulting defendeants in justice courts, sewage disposal, and fire insurance with companies not licensed in the state.

Among the bills favorably reported were the so-called loan shark bill, affesting loans of $300 or less, one strengthening the law on bribery of jurors and bills amending the law concerning state depositories, bonds and officers.

When a bill amending the law on licensing pharmacists came up it was returned to second reading for addition of penalties for illegal use of the designation "pharmacist" or similar titles, and then was passed by unanimous vote.

The Rev. William B. King, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church of Charleston, was appointed chaplain of the senate this afternoon by President Pro Tem Marsh and he officiated for the first time.

Jade is Deceptive Gem.

Pearls and jade are two precious gems widely worn by women today and one cause of their popularity is the difficulty of telling at a glance the real from the artificial. This is especially true of jade, even when laid side by side. There is no perceptible difference, even to an expert between one piece that costs a fw dollars and one that costs hundreds.

HOUSE DEFEATS TAX PROPOSAL

Measure Providing for Special Assessments is Rejected

A proposal to allow towns and villages to levy special assessments upon abutting property for public improvements was disapproved when the house of delegates yesterday rejected a bill covering that proposal, after receiving an adverse report on it from the committee on counties and municipal corporations.

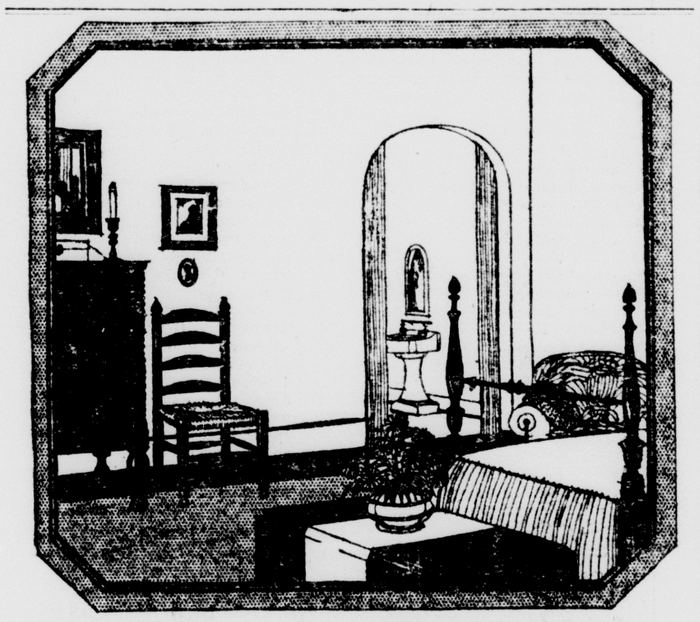

Twelve bills were rejected on adverse reports from various committees and 20 were placed on the calendar with favorable reports in the first few minutes of the house session. The judiciary committee reported against passage of a bill to require payment of a corporation tax before voting, but Delegate Mathews objected to its rejection and on his action it was returned to the committee.

Among the bills rejected were one to repeal the law setting office hours for the state auditor and treasurer and bills affecting nominations to political committees, worthless checks, type on documents to be recorded, dower rights, payment of a percentage of fines to the prosecuting attorney, allowance of an hour before defaulting defendeants in justice courts, sewage disposal, and fire insurance with companies not licensed in the state.

Among the bills favorably reported were the so-called loan shark bill, affesting loans of $300 or less, one strengthening the law on bribery of jurors and bills amending the law concerning state depositories, bonds and officers.

When a bill amending the law on licensing pharmacists came up it was returned to second reading for addition of penalties for illegal use of the designation "pharmacist" or similar titles, and then was passed by unanimous vote.

The Rev. William B. King, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church of Charleston, was appointed chaplain of the senate this afternoon by President Pro Tem Marsh and he officiated for the first time.

Jade is Deceptive Gem.

Pearls and jade are two precious gems widely worn by women today and one cause of their popularity is the difficulty of telling at a glance the real from the artificial. This is especially true of jade, even when laid side by side. There is no perceptible difference, even to an expert between one piece that costs a fw dollars and one that costs hundreds.

PLAN TO RESUME WORK AT MINES

Seger Company to Open Plant at West Point April 1.

It is reasonably certain that the No. 1 mine of the Seger Fuel company, at West Point, will be placed in operation shortly after April 1, according to an agreement that has been in process of negotiation between union mine workers and the mine operators during the last few weeks.

Provisions of the agreement provide that the miners are to lay the new ahead of them and have also agreed, it is said, to take care of six inches of slate or dead work, service that under former agreements have been paid for by the operating interests.

It has been set forth that with the employes of the company assuming this share of the cost of operation the operators will be in a position to go out into the market and seek an outlet for their output on a competitive basis, a situation that is not possible at this time.

For over a year the coal business in this part of the Ohio field has been practically "dead," according to the miners and also the operators. Few if any of the operations have been working full time, and in not one instance during the last 12 month has any producer, either a drift mine or a stripping operation been in steady production.

Word has also reached Lisbon that West Virginia mine interests have been keeping a keen eye upon the situation in the Ohio coal of late. West Virginia mines have been active during the last year, but the majority of these have been operated as non-union propositions.

As the lake trade opens on or about April 1, it may follow that more or less lake shipping business will be obtained for the West Point district should present negotiations terminate successfully.

At the last meeting of the Lisbon council passing consideration was given the subject, but as the council desires to have the street improved this season, it is now proposed to go into thorough detail concerning the work at its next session.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Millions of people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave under orders of King James. He is bought by Colonel Bishop, military comander, and meets Arabella Bishop, his niece, with whom he falls in love. Spaniards under Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez capture the town. Blood saves Mary Traill and Arabella and captures the Spanish ship. Don Diego betrays him and sails the vessel under the guns of his brother's ship off Hispaniola. Blood tricks the Spanish admiral, and sails for Tortuga, the rendezvous of buccaneers of the Spanish Main. There the buccaneers prevail on him, aided by the governor, M. d'Ogeron, to equip the Cinco Llagas as a privateer. He meets Levasseur, a French ruffian, who has his own ship. Levasseur enlists under Blood. The Frenchman is in love with d'Ogeron's daughter Madelon, whom the governor has sent to Europe on board a Dutch brig. She appeals to Levasseur, who has attracted her romantic heart, to rescue her.

In answer, the half-caste pointed out beyond the frothing surf that marked the position of the reef constituting one of the stronghold's main defenses. Away beyond it, a mile or so distant, a sail was standing out to sea.

"There she go," he said.

The Frenchman gazed and stared The half-caste shrank terrified before his fury. "Then up anchor, and let us after the Dutchman," he cried.

"Steady, captain. What's that?" There was a restraining hand upon his shoulder, and the broad face of his lieutenant Cahusac, a burly, callous Breton scoundrel, was stolidly confronting him. "A Dutch brig!" said he. "Impossible! We should never be allowed."

"And who the devil will deny us?" Levasseur was between amazement and fury.

"For one thing, there's your own crew will be none too willing. For another, there's Captain Blood."

"I care nothing for Captain Blood."

"But it is necessary that you should. He has the power, the weight of metal and of men, and, if I know him at all, he'll sink us before he'll suffer interference with the Dutch. He has his own views of privateering, this Captain Blood, as I warned you."

Cursing in his soul, and even before the anchor was weighed, the association into which he had entered, he was already studying ways of evasion. What Cahusac implied was true: Blood would never suffer violence to be done in his presence to a Dutchman. But it might be done in his absence; and, being done, Blood must perforce condone it, since it would then be too late to protest.

Within the hour the Arabella and La Foudre were beating out to sea together. Without understanding the change of plan involved, Captain Blood, nevertheless, accepted it, and weighed anchor before the appointed time upon perceiving his associate to do so.

All day the Dutch brig was in sight, though by evening she had dwindled to the merest speck on the northern horizon. The course prescribed for Blood and Levasseur lay eastward along the northern shores of Hispaniola. To that course the Arabella continued to hold steadily throughout the night. When day broke again she was alone. La Foudre under cover of the darkness had struck away to the northeast with every rag of canvas on her yards.

Cahusac had attempted yet again to protest against this.

"The devil take you!" Levasseur had answered him. "A ship's a ship, be she Dutch or Spanish, and ships are our present need. That will suffice for the men."

Dawn found La Foudre close on the Dutchman's heels, not a mile astern, and the sight of her very evidently flustered the Jongvrouw. They sent a warning shot across her bow. The Jongvrouw veered, showed them her rudder, and opened fire with her stern chasers. The small shot went whistling through La Foundre's shrouds with some slight damage to her canvas.

Five minutes after that they were board and board, the Jongvrouw held tight in the clutches of La Foudre's grapnels, and the buccaneers pouring noisily into her waist.

The Dutchman's master, purple in the face, stood forward to beard the pirate, followed closely by an elegant, pale-faced young gentleman in whom Levasseur recognized his brother-in-law elect.

"Captain Levasseur, this is an outrage for which you shall be made to answer. What do you seek aboard my ship?"

"At first I sought only that which belongs to me, something of which I am being robbed. But since you chose war and opened fire on me with some damage to my ship and loss of life to five of my men, war it is, and your ship a prize of war."

From the quarter rail Mademoiselle d'Oregon looked down with glowing eyes in breathless wonder upon her well-beloved hero. Gloriously heroic he seemed as he stood towering there, masterful, audacious, beautiful. He saw her, and with a glad shout sprang towards her. The Dutch master got in his way with hands upheld to arrest his progress. Levasseur did not stay to argue with him: he was too impatient to reach his mistress. He swung the poleaxe that he carried, and the Dutchman went down in blood with a cloven skull. The eager lover stepped across the body and came on, his countenance joyously alight. But mademoiselle was shrinking now, in horror. In a bound her well-beloved was beside her. But she still shrank even within his embrace, which would not be denied; a look of dread had come to temper the normal arrogance of her almost perfect face.

"Why, why did you kill him?"

He laughed as a hero should; and answered her heroically, with the tolerance of a god for the mortal to whom he condescends: "He stood between us. Let his death be a symbol, a warning. Let all who would stand between us mark it and beware."

It was so splendidly terrific, the gesture of it was so broad and fine and his magnetism so compelling, that she cast her silly tremors and yielded herself freely, intoxicated, to his fond embrace. Thereafter he swung her to his shoulder, and stepping with ease beneath that burden, bore her in a sort of triumph, lustily cheered by his men, to the deck of his own ship. Her inconsiderate brother might have ruined that romantic scene but for the watchful Cahusac, who quietly tripped him up, and then trussed him like a fowl.

Thereafter, what time the Captain languished in his lady's smile within the cabin, Cahusac was dealing with the spoils of war. The Dutch crew was ordered into the longboat, and bidden go to the devil. Fortunately, as they numbered fewer than thirty, the longboat, though perilously overcrowded, could yet contain them. Next, Cahusac having inspected the cargo, put the quartermaster and a score of men aboard the Jongvrouw, and left her to follow La Fourde, which he now headed south for the Leeward Islands.

The lady's brother was presently conducted to the cabin. The Captain rose to receive him, bending his stalwart height to avoid striking the cabin roof with his head. Mademoiselle rose, too.

"Why this?" she asked Levasseur, pointing to her brother's pinioned wrists.

"I deplore it," said he. "I desire it to end. Let M. d'Ogeron give me his parole . . ."

"I give you nothing."

"Henri, this is foolish! You are not behaving as my brother. You . . ."

"Little fool. Don't you perceive your wicked folly in the harm it has brought already? Lives have been lost—men have died—that this monster might overtake you. And don't you yet realize where you stand—in the power of this beast, of this cur born in a kennel and bred in thieving and murder?"

He might have said more but that Levasseur struck him across the mouth. Mademoiselle suppressed a scream, as the youth staggered back under the blow.

"You see," he said simply. "He strikes a man whose hands are bound."

Seger Company to Open Plant at West Point April 1.

It is reasonably certain that the No. 1 mine of the Seger Fuel company, at West Point, will be placed in operation shortly after April 1, according to an agreement that has been in process of negotiation between union mine workers and the mine operators during the last few weeks.

Provisions of the agreement provide that the miners are to lay the new ahead of them and have also agreed, it is said, to take care of six inches of slate or dead work, service that under former agreements have been paid for by the operating interests.

It has been set forth that with the employes of the company assuming this share of the cost of operation the operators will be in a position to go out into the market and seek an outlet for their output on a competitive basis, a situation that is not possible at this time.

For over a year the coal business in this part of the Ohio field has been practically "dead," according to the miners and also the operators. Few if any of the operations have been working full time, and in not one instance during the last 12 month has any producer, either a drift mine or a stripping operation been in steady production.

Word has also reached Lisbon that West Virginia mine interests have been keeping a keen eye upon the situation in the Ohio coal of late. West Virginia mines have been active during the last year, but the majority of these have been operated as non-union propositions.

As the lake trade opens on or about April 1, it may follow that more or less lake shipping business will be obtained for the West Point district should present negotiations terminate successfully.

At the last meeting of the Lisbon council passing consideration was given the subject, but as the council desires to have the street improved this season, it is now proposed to go into thorough detail concerning the work at its next session.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Millions of people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

Yes—or money back!

Here's what one enthusiast writes:

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 2, 1924

A year ago I was almost bald. I now have a nice growth of hair due to constant use of Van Ess. After trying everything else, without success, I purchased a bottle of Van Ess at Buck & Rayner's.

It gives me great pleasure to inform my friends that Van Ess has been the cause of restoring my hair.

CAPTAIN BLOOD

by RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave under orders of King James. He is bought by Colonel Bishop, military comander, and meets Arabella Bishop, his niece, with whom he falls in love. Spaniards under Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez capture the town. Blood saves Mary Traill and Arabella and captures the Spanish ship. Don Diego betrays him and sails the vessel under the guns of his brother's ship off Hispaniola. Blood tricks the Spanish admiral, and sails for Tortuga, the rendezvous of buccaneers of the Spanish Main. There the buccaneers prevail on him, aided by the governor, M. d'Ogeron, to equip the Cinco Llagas as a privateer. He meets Levasseur, a French ruffian, who has his own ship. Levasseur enlists under Blood. The Frenchman is in love with d'Ogeron's daughter Madelon, whom the governor has sent to Europe on board a Dutch brig. She appeals to Levasseur, who has attracted her romantic heart, to rescue her.

In answer, the half-caste pointed out beyond the frothing surf that marked the position of the reef constituting one of the stronghold's main defenses. Away beyond it, a mile or so distant, a sail was standing out to sea.

"There she go," he said.

The Frenchman gazed and stared The half-caste shrank terrified before his fury. "Then up anchor, and let us after the Dutchman," he cried.

"Steady, captain. What's that?" There was a restraining hand upon his shoulder, and the broad face of his lieutenant Cahusac, a burly, callous Breton scoundrel, was stolidly confronting him. "A Dutch brig!" said he. "Impossible! We should never be allowed."

"And who the devil will deny us?" Levasseur was between amazement and fury.

"For one thing, there's your own crew will be none too willing. For another, there's Captain Blood."

"I care nothing for Captain Blood."

"But it is necessary that you should. He has the power, the weight of metal and of men, and, if I know him at all, he'll sink us before he'll suffer interference with the Dutch. He has his own views of privateering, this Captain Blood, as I warned you."

Cursing in his soul, and even before the anchor was weighed, the association into which he had entered, he was already studying ways of evasion. What Cahusac implied was true: Blood would never suffer violence to be done in his presence to a Dutchman. But it might be done in his absence; and, being done, Blood must perforce condone it, since it would then be too late to protest.

Within the hour the Arabella and La Foudre were beating out to sea together. Without understanding the change of plan involved, Captain Blood, nevertheless, accepted it, and weighed anchor before the appointed time upon perceiving his associate to do so.

All day the Dutch brig was in sight, though by evening she had dwindled to the merest speck on the northern horizon. The course prescribed for Blood and Levasseur lay eastward along the northern shores of Hispaniola. To that course the Arabella continued to hold steadily throughout the night. When day broke again she was alone. La Foudre under cover of the darkness had struck away to the northeast with every rag of canvas on her yards.

Cahusac had attempted yet again to protest against this.

"The devil take you!" Levasseur had answered him. "A ship's a ship, be she Dutch or Spanish, and ships are our present need. That will suffice for the men."

Dawn found La Foudre close on the Dutchman's heels, not a mile astern, and the sight of her very evidently flustered the Jongvrouw. They sent a warning shot across her bow. The Jongvrouw veered, showed them her rudder, and opened fire with her stern chasers. The small shot went whistling through La Foundre's shrouds with some slight damage to her canvas.

Five minutes after that they were board and board, the Jongvrouw held tight in the clutches of La Foudre's grapnels, and the buccaneers pouring noisily into her waist.

The Dutchman's master, purple in the face, stood forward to beard the pirate, followed closely by an elegant, pale-faced young gentleman in whom Levasseur recognized his brother-in-law elect.

"Captain Levasseur, this is an outrage for which you shall be made to answer. What do you seek aboard my ship?"

"At first I sought only that which belongs to me, something of which I am being robbed. But since you chose war and opened fire on me with some damage to my ship and loss of life to five of my men, war it is, and your ship a prize of war."

From the quarter rail Mademoiselle d'Oregon looked down with glowing eyes in breathless wonder upon her well-beloved hero. Gloriously heroic he seemed as he stood towering there, masterful, audacious, beautiful. He saw her, and with a glad shout sprang towards her. The Dutch master got in his way with hands upheld to arrest his progress. Levasseur did not stay to argue with him: he was too impatient to reach his mistress. He swung the poleaxe that he carried, and the Dutchman went down in blood with a cloven skull. The eager lover stepped across the body and came on, his countenance joyously alight. But mademoiselle was shrinking now, in horror. In a bound her well-beloved was beside her. But she still shrank even within his embrace, which would not be denied; a look of dread had come to temper the normal arrogance of her almost perfect face.

"Why, why did you kill him?"

He laughed as a hero should; and answered her heroically, with the tolerance of a god for the mortal to whom he condescends: "He stood between us. Let his death be a symbol, a warning. Let all who would stand between us mark it and beware."

It was so splendidly terrific, the gesture of it was so broad and fine and his magnetism so compelling, that she cast her silly tremors and yielded herself freely, intoxicated, to his fond embrace. Thereafter he swung her to his shoulder, and stepping with ease beneath that burden, bore her in a sort of triumph, lustily cheered by his men, to the deck of his own ship. Her inconsiderate brother might have ruined that romantic scene but for the watchful Cahusac, who quietly tripped him up, and then trussed him like a fowl.

Thereafter, what time the Captain languished in his lady's smile within the cabin, Cahusac was dealing with the spoils of war. The Dutch crew was ordered into the longboat, and bidden go to the devil. Fortunately, as they numbered fewer than thirty, the longboat, though perilously overcrowded, could yet contain them. Next, Cahusac having inspected the cargo, put the quartermaster and a score of men aboard the Jongvrouw, and left her to follow La Fourde, which he now headed south for the Leeward Islands.

The lady's brother was presently conducted to the cabin. The Captain rose to receive him, bending his stalwart height to avoid striking the cabin roof with his head. Mademoiselle rose, too.

"Why this?" she asked Levasseur, pointing to her brother's pinioned wrists.

"I deplore it," said he. "I desire it to end. Let M. d'Ogeron give me his parole . . ."

"I give you nothing."

"Henri, this is foolish! You are not behaving as my brother. You . . ."

"Little fool. Don't you perceive your wicked folly in the harm it has brought already? Lives have been lost—men have died—that this monster might overtake you. And don't you yet realize where you stand—in the power of this beast, of this cur born in a kennel and bred in thieving and murder?"

He might have said more but that Levasseur struck him across the mouth. Mademoiselle suppressed a scream, as the youth staggered back under the blow.

"You see," he said simply. "He strikes a man whose hands are bound."

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

She's Going Away

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a junior in high school and I go with a girl who is also a junior. I love her with all my heart and she told me she loved me. She has promised to wait for me and I have been very happy. But now her folks have decided to move some six hundred miles away and I won't have a chance to see her for many years. She promised that she would go with no one else and always wait for me no matter where she was, and I did the same. I have done all I could to make her happy and I think she realizes it. Of course we can write, but just think of the temptations of city life and the things that might take her away. It is almost unbearable to me. It will be about three months before they leave. Is there anything I could do now and afterward that would make me feel certain that my dreams would come true? DOWN-HEARTED.

You are making a mistake in asking the girl not to go with other young men, and also in promising to stay away from other girls. Both of you are too young to be tied to any such promise. Have more faith and believe that if your love is real it will stand the test of time and separation. Correspondence will help a great deal even if you do not see each other. Don't spoil the three months you have left with worry about the future. Let the future take care of itself and fill every hour that you are together with hope and happiness.

Troubles of "Dimples"

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 17 years old graduating from high school in June, and have been going with a young man eight months older than myself for six months. He will graduate from the eighth grade in June, as he commenced his last term in January. He has not gone to school for five years. Since his mother's death his father has refused to support him. He is now determined to get an education before he stops again and expects to finish high school when he is 22. I have been encouraging him to go ahead, but he has very little money to spend now—just what he is able to ern at odd jobs after school hours, and so we do not go very many places where money is required. He wants me to stick to him and when I suggest that I make dates with others and he do likewise, he will not do it, saying that he will forget me while going with other girls. He keeps insisting that he loves me and wants to make good for me alone. Do you think that if he cares so much for me he would forget me while going with other girls? I want to help him all I can, but I do not want to get serious, because I know my father will not consent. Father is always asking me if I can't find any one better or if no one else will go with me. I have many chances for other dates, but have refused them so far. Father thinks the young man is not worthy of me, but I have tried to tell him that he has never had a chance. I do not know what to do. It seems impossible to let him go and yet I cannot make my father understand. Please advise me what to do. DIMPLES.

You are quite right in feeling that the desire for education is something worth encouraging in the boy when odds are so against him. I am sure your father approves of your championing the young man, but he would be better satisfied if you had other friends, too, and did not give all your time to the one boy. Respect your father's wishes and tell the boy that you are going to accept invitations from other boys, too, but that he will hold the same place in your regard that he has always held, and that the closer he sticks to his purpose of getting an education, the more you will admire him.

Plot for a Novel.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 19 years of age and am engaged to a very nice boy of 20. He is an orphan and has had a very hard life ever since he was a small child. I have met the relations who brought him up and they seem to be people of almost no refinement and yet my fiance is as intelligent and gentlemanly as though he had the finest of parents. To me he seems wonderful. He has had a few music lessons and plays beautifully. He plays a great deal in public and earns his living that way. It is said that he has a great future musically. He has living with him at his boarding house three little orphan children. One is a very rough and bad little boy. My fiance does not correct them nor try to train them except to occasionally tell them he wants them to try to do better. Of course this does no good and the little boy swears and is perfectly terrible. We want very much to be married soon, but he insists on keeping the children, which is a great financial burden. I do not believe we could be happy under these conditions. He has supported these children for some time and loves them very much. Do you think I should ask him to give them up, or should we marry and try to keep them? We could never have things that we could afford if it were not for them.

Work such as your fiance is doing for the orphans means too much to him to ask him to give it up. Unless you love him enough to cooperate with him in his good work, I would not advise you to marry him. He is a philanthropist at heart and will always consider others before he will realize there are needs at home. I would advise you to postpone your marriage until you are more sure that your love is sincere and that you will grow together instead of apart. I imagine that after a year of marriage the man you now love and consider noble would irritate you beyond endurance because of his impracticality.

The Proof of Love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man about 28 for almost a year. I am deeply in love with him. He is very sentimental and is jealous of me going out with other men. I do not go out with other men, though he always accuses me of it. He claims that he loves me, but he doesn't act the part. Do you think a man knows because he's jealous that he loves a woman? Last Christmas he didn't send me a gift. That's a long time ago now and I didn't really care about getting the present. But when my friends asked me what I received from him I was so ashamed to admit I received nothing. Of course he has lots of expenses, but he works steadily and earns a good salary. Don't you think that if he loved me he would have given me something at Christmas time? UNHAPPY.

There's only one proof of a man's love, my dear—his asking you to be his wife. Until a man proves his love in this way it's better to think of him as just a friend. Jealousy doesn't prove love. It proves that man is too selfish to share friendship, that he doesn't trust the person that he claims he loves, that he doesnt trust his own power to hold her friendship and love. He might have showed appreciation of your friendship by sending flowers, candy, a book, music or a Christmas card. An expensive gift would have been out of place since your'e not engaged.

Four Hearts in a Tangle.

What is poor "Lonely Lassie" to do? Must she stand by, suffering, while she sees a married woman win the man "Lonely Lassie" loves?

She writes me:

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in the midst of a terrible heart tangle. I love a young man whose best friends are a married man and his wife. This wife wants the young man I love, and is trying to win him. When the four of us go out automobile-riding, she maneuvers me into the front seat with her husband, and sits behind with the young man. She pats his cheeks and squeezes his hand when her husband isn't looking. Now she wants to get a divorce from her husband so she can marry him. The worst of it is that her husband is now paying me attentions, and gets angry if I do not kiss him. He wants me to go to dances and places with him, but my mother won't let me. He wants to give me presents, but I won't let him. I don't know what to do. LONELY LASSIE.

If the young man accepts the attention of a married woman—the wife of his friend—then he is hardly to be considered as the sort of man you would want for a husband. My advice is to forget all of them.

Unless you love him enough to cooperate with him in his good work, I would not advise you to marry him. He is a philanthropist at heart and will always consider others before he will realize there are needs at home. I would advise you to postpone your marriage until you are more sure that your love is sincene and that you will grow together instead of apart. I imagine that after a year of marriage the man you now love and consider noble would irritate you beyond endurance because of his impracticality.

The Proof of Love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man about 28 for almost a year. I am deeply in love with him. He is very sentimental and is jealous of me going out with other men. I do not go out with other men, though he always accuses me of it. He claims that he loves me, but he doesn't act the part. Do you think a man knows because he's jealous that he loves a woman? Last Christmas he didn't send me a gift. That's a long time ago now and I didn't really care about getting the present. But when my friends asked me what I received from him I was so ashamed to admit I received nothing. Of course he has lots of expenses, but he works steadily and earns a good salary. Don't you think that if he loved me he would have given me something at Christmas time? UNHAPPY.

There's only one proof of a man's love, my dear—his asking you to be his wife. Until a man proves his love in this way it's better to think of him as just a friend. Jealousy doesn't prove love. It proves that man is too selfish to share friendship, that he doesn't trust the person that he claims he loves, that he doesnt trust his own power to hold her friendship and love. He might have showed appreciation of your friendship by sending flowers, candy, a book, music or a Christmas card. An expensive gift would have been out of place since your'e not engaged.

Four Hearts in a Tangle.

What is poor "Lonely Lassie" to do? Must she stand by, suffering, while she sees a married woman win the man "Lonely Lassie" loves?

She writes me:

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in the midst of a terrible heart tangle. I love a young man whose best friends are a married man and his wife. This wife wants the young man I love, and is trying to win him. When the four of us go out automobile-riding, she maneuvers me into the front seat with her husband, and sits behind with the young man. She pats his cheeks and squeezes his hand when her husband isn't looking. Now she wants to get a divorce from her husband so she can marry him. The worst of it is that her husband is now paying me attentions, and gets angry if I do not kiss him. He wants me to go to dances and places with him, but my mother won't let me. He wants to give me presents, but I won't let him. I don't know what to do. LONELY LASSIE.

If the young man accepts the attention of a married woman—the wife of his friend—then he is hardly to be considered as the sort of man you would want for a husband. My advice is to forget all of them.

"Apathy Equals Communism as Peril in United States."

Radical activities do not endanger American institutions so much as do public apathy and indifference, according to O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general of Michigan, who prosecuted the communist trial there.

Mr. Smith spoke recenttly on this subject. He read from "The A. B. C. of Communism," and from other documents presented in the trial of radicals, after a raid at Bridgeman, Mich., upon a secret meeting of the Communist party.

"The Communist activities in this country," Mr. Smith asserted, "are directed from Moscow. I will tell you how. Originally there existed what was known as the central executive committee or No. 1, and it consisted of ten members. It received a telegram from Moscow ordering American Communists to organize a workers party to be known as No. 2. Every member of No. 1 was to be a member of No. 2, but members of No. 2 need not be members of No. 1. The purpose of this arrangement was to permit Moscow to dictate to Americans how American institutionns should be run.

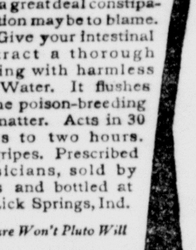

"After some dissensions, two representatives of No. 1 were sent to Moscow. One represented the majority of seven who favored the plan. The other represented the minority of three against it. They went before the kommitern and were ordered to proceed to organize No. 2. And in May, 1921, Ruthenberg, Foster and Minor organized the Workers' party of America. They cannot say they do not take orders from Russia, for here" (Mr. Smith held up a paper) "is the telegram that ordered them to do it."

After attacking the activities of the communists, Mr. Smith said their "damnable propaganda" was not so dangerous as the apathy of the American public.

"There is too much of the spirit of 'Let George do it,'" he asserted, "and the American public will not inform themselves of what is going on."

Never Let a Cold Get a Start

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poltice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

Navy Puts on Greatest Naval Maneuvers in U. S. History

Judgment of the president's naval board regarding value of battleships and aircraft will be put to the test during the present tactical maneuvers of the United States fleet. All of the naval forces of the country are now in the Pacific, engaged in the greatest naval "practice war" in American history. Admiral Robert E. Coontz, commander-in-chief is umpire of the war game, in which the Hawaiian islands are being defended from an imaginary foreign foe. The U. S. S. Pennsylvania is seen firing a broadside in maneuvers, and below, is shown the U. S. S. Shenandoah, "eye of the fleet," anchored to its mother-ship, the Patoka.

GLOUCESTER, March—Mayor S. A. Parks has announced that he does not intend to be annoyed by complaints of wandering chickens and dogs this year in case of garden, or yard, trespass. So, he issued a blanket order that any such dogs, or chickens, can be killed without further notice.

Paris has a fire engine that resembles a sedan automobile as it carries the crew to the blaze, and it can quickly supply water for twenty-four nozzles.

Yesterday's Puzzle Answered.

Night Coughing Stopped Quickly By Simple Treatment

Thousands who are troubled with persistent coughing at night, which by robbing them of valuable sleep weakens their systems and lays them open to dangerous infections, can quickly act to prevent this danger through a very simple treatment. People who have hardly been able to rest at all on account of coughing spells have found they can sleep the whole night through undisturbed often the first time they try it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring, and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is you usually sleep soundly the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

BUFFALO, N. Y.—For years the generally accepted treatment for Hemorrhoids or Piles has been by the insertion of many so-called antiseptics and astringents into the rectum. Such treatments, while they may in many cases give relief, never reached or acted on the cause of the trouble and this was often true of surgical operations.

You've got to attack the real cause of the Piles and not the piles themselves and you've got to do it from a constitutional standpoint and this is just what the Hamadala treatment does. It attacks the cause and not the formation and the cause once removed, all those painful, congested, knotted and strengthened blood vessels are restored to their normal function and blind, bleeding or protruding piles become a thing of the past.

So sure and certain of results are the manufacturers that the Hamaldala treatment is only sold under a rigid guarantee of satisfaction or money back. C. G. Anderson, Carnahan's drug stores and Jesse D. Holloway are selling lots of this truly wonderful remedy. The price is $1.00. Mail orders filled.

Night Coughing Stopped Quickly By Simple Treatment

Thousands who are troubled with persistent coughing at night, which by robbing them of valuable sleep weakens their systems and lays them open to dangerous infections, can quickly act to prevent this danger through a very simple treatment. People who have hardly been able to rest at all on account of coughing spells have found they can sleep the whole night through undisturbed often the first time they try it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring, and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is you usually sleep soundly the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

By DAMON RUNYON.
Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—The Los Angeles boxing fans are not yet ready for the $16.50 pugilistic price familiar to New Yorkers.

This price means $15 for the seat, $1.50 for the tax.

Jack Doyle, Vernon promoter, tried it with the Mickey Walker-Bert Colima battle not long ago. Walker is the first real world's champion to make an appearance in California since the adoption of the new boxing law. Colima was supposed to be the best drawing card in Los Angeles.

Under the circumstances, the price seemed reasonable enough. But at ring time there were many empty $15 seats. Speculators, who had loaded up with them, were selling them for whatever they could get. The price was even slashed at the box office.

The fight drew a large amount of money, probably over $40,000. The house had been scaled to $60,000.

The galleries were jammed. The cheaper seats sold well. But the customers failed to clean out the $15 rack.

In New York, for an affair of proportionately the same importance, the promoters have no trouble selling the high priced seats. It is the medium-priced seats that sell slowly if at all.

Here we have the difference between the New Yorker and other, perhaps more sensible, citizens.

The New Yorker, if he has the money, wants the HIGHEST PRICED seat. He fights to get it. Offer him a BETTER seat at a lower price and he is insulted.

He wouldn't sit in a cheap seat unless he was disguised. Here in Los Angeles the customers bought the medium-priced seats, or they didn't go at all.

Promoter Doyle made a satisfactory profit on the Walker-Colima fight. Also he learned a lesson of great value to him.

He was trying an experiment with the $15 prices. The ten-round game is young out here. Promoter Doyle had to investigate its possibilities from every angle to learn what can and what cannot be done. It is better for him to learn NOW, at a profit, than some future day, at great cost.

The writer doubts that you will again hear of $15 "tops" in Los Angeles until they put on a real world's championship bout. Perhaps that is all for the best.

Walker rescued the reputation of Eastern boxers, which have suffered sadly in California since the new law went into effect.

He is the first visitor to really impress the Californians. They admit he is a real fighter—a champion. The writer thought Walker a little loggy in the earlier rounds against the Mexican. He hadn't trained as easily as he does in the East.

Walker is a great fighter.

He is a heavy punisher with body blows. Only one other man in the game punches better than Walker in close. That's Dempsey.

He had Colima grunting loudly from the body smashes early in the battle.

It ended with the disqualification of Colima because his chief second and manager, "Dutch" Meyers, tried to put a bottle of smelling salts under Colima's nose when the Mexican was knocked flat in his own corner by Walker.

Colima probably could have gotten to his feet after the knockdown, even without the smelling salts. But another punch would have knocked him silly. Walker had just commenced to fight.

The welterweight champion thinks he will get a match with Benny Leonard some time during the summer, despite Leonard's announcement of retirement.

This is the one "shot" Walker is looking forward to. He expects to make enough money out of it to fix him comfortably for life, no matter what happens. Walker was to have received $140,000 from the match that fell through.

Walker, in his present form, figures to beat Leonard. He is very strong at the welterweight limit, is at his very peak of pugilistic power.

Walker doesn't think Dave Shade can make the welterweight mark any more. He is of the opinion that his chief rivals of the future will be Jack Zivic, of Pittsburgh, and Willie Harman, the New York boy.

Like ALL champions, he is looking beyond his own division for business. He would like to meet Harry Greb, the middleweight champion, a match that wouldn't jeopardize the welterweight title.

Walker, for all his tremendous ability as a welterweight, is quite likely to one day make the mistake of trying to give away TOO MUCH WEIGHT. Then he is apt to regret it. There is a limit to every man's capabilities.

The California "ringworms" are still thinking of the four-round day when a battle starts.

They want to see the men tear at each other without preliminary. They do not allow for "feeling out," for sparring.

The four-rounders may have been short, but they were filled with ACTION. You hear regrets for the "good old days" already.

Reds Will Finish In First Division Asserts Hendricks

Cincinnati Pilot Doesn't Fancy Pirates, Who, he Declares, Were Gold-bricked in the Mid-Winter Trade and Due for a Flop; Calls His Hurling Staff "Best."

By Davis J. Walsh.

ORLANDO, Fla., Mar. 19.—Offering the prediction for what it may be worth, if anything, Jack Hendricks today declared that his Cincinnati Reds would finish in the first division and that the Pittsburgh Pirates, generally esteemed as a leading pennant contender, would not. He intimated that the Pirates were gold bricked in the mid-winter trade with the Cubs and therefore were due for a flop.

The Reds, Giants, Dodgers and Cubs are the clubs that will make the pace, he said, and of these, he fancied the Giants and Reds. Hendricks remarks that the Reds have undergone many beneficial changes between seasons and offers the following by way of substantiation.

That they have the best pitching staff in baseball, with Mays, Luque, Donohue, Rixey, Sheehan, May and Benton ready to shoot on sight; that the club, having witnessed the departure of Pat Duncan and George Burns and the chastening of Jimmy Caveney by securing Synthetic waivers, now recognizes Mr. Hendricks as boss, and that the appointment of Ed. Rousch as field Captain has eliminated the element of internal dissension that prevailed last year.

At the same time, Mr. Hendricks is free to admit that there is a dash of vinegar in the creme de menthe. Charley Bressen, whose purchase from St. Louis carried a heavy luxury tax, is probably a dead loss, Hendricks says. Bressen can field, run, hit and think. But he can't throw. He has a torn ligament under his right arm, the result of a St. Paul injury.

"I don't think we will get much out of him," Hendricks added, "at least not this season."

Further grief he cites in the fact that the Reds have but two catchers, Hargraves and Wingo, but must get another and that he has four outfielders and three of them hit lefthanded. The long righthander is Bill Zitzmann, Jersey City recruit, and although the young man has been the life of the party to date, he must and should have company.

"Zitzmann is a great prospect and his hustle is an inspiration to the rest of the club," Hendricks declared. "He will play left field with Rousch in center and Elmer Smith and Curtis Walker in right field. Lots of hitting there, but most of it is from the left side of the plate."

The five leading pitchers will be Rixey, Donohue, Mays, Sheehan and Luque, according to Hendricks, who says this pre-season choice will curtail much dissatisfaction. Last year he had seven good pitchers and they all wanted to pitch at the same time.

Caveney, a much subdued young man, will be played at shortstop and seems to have learned that baseball is not an eternal ride on the band wagon. Kritz, one of the best young players uncovered during 1924, will remain at second base, and Pinelli, whom Hendricks says is the best third baseman in the league, will play his favorite position.

Yet, according to some versions, everything is not essence of lilac with the infield. In fact, one of the regulars confided to me that Rube Bressler is somewhat less graceful than a sacred ox in taking throws at first base.

"A prayer rides with every ball I throw over there," was his succinct comment. Mr. Hendricks gives this angle of the situation a rather wide detour.

However, outside of defensive weaknesses at first base and behind the plate and the lack of another outfielder, the Reds seem almost fool-proof. The first position is beckoning them, sure enough.

Sophomores Are Champs

The Sophomore basketball team emerged as champions of the high school interclass court league yesterday afternoon after defeating the Freshmen, 16 to 14.

Two extra three-minute periods were required to bring the contest to a close. The count was 14-14 at the end of the game. Neither scored in the first extra period.

Larkins' field goal in the next "extra" brought results.

The Sophs had a 4-3 lead at the end of the quarter, but were out-classed by the Freshies in the second period when the yearlings led, 10-6. The Sophs climbed back in the third period and tied the count, 10-10, at the end of the quarter. The last quarter battle again found them tied and the clash went overtime.

Larkins, McConville and McKee starred for the Sophs. Gibbons, Davis and English led the losers. The victory gave the boys the interclass championship, inasmuch as they went through without losing a game.

FIVE MEMBERS OF TEAM WILL GET LETTERS

Dick Larkins, Sophomore, Will be Manager of 1926 Entry.

Thomas Pusey, sophomore and varsity forward, will captain the 1926 high school basketball team.

Pusey, a brother of Robert, who, for several years starred in high school athletics prior to his graduation, was unanimously elected to the leadership of next year's team at the regular post-season meeting and conference of the entire squad.

Richard Larkins, also a sophomore, was named manager of the team.

Five members of the Blue and White outfit will receive basketball letters for their work in 1924-25. They are: Dale Liebschner, retiring captain; Tom Pusey, 1925-26 captain; Paul English, E. English, McGraw and McConville.

Although prospects for next season's team are not dull by any means, there will be more than a little regret at the passing of two of the greatest guards the school has had since the days of Irvin Vorndran and Nate Allen, two members of the squad that went to the finals in the state scholastic tournament in 1916. Dale Liebschner and Charles McConville will be missed.

Always represented by a first class basketball team, East Liverpool high school this year was still up and in the running, although for the first time in many moons, ended the season without county championship laurels, which were tucked away by Salem.

The team played 23 games, winning 13, losing 10, and scoring 726 points to their opponents 587.

In Liebschner, McConville and P. English, the team had three players who would rank with the majority of scholastic performers in eastern Ohio.

Prospects are bright for next season, although the team loses both Liebschner and McConville, and in addition Howard, by graduation. There are left, however, Pusey, Davis, McGraw, McVey, Allison, Hall, P. English, E. English, Bough, Brozka, McKeever and Hamilton.

Among the most promising candidates who will come from the interclass league are Kimes and Kirkham of the Freshmen, Larkins, Schneidmiller, and McKee, of the Sophomores, and R. Bloor and Weikart of the Juniors.

Pop Spears Invents New Football Pants

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19—"Pop Spears, veteran football coach who crowded into the limelight some years ago and has remained there ever since by turning out gridiron teams at West Virginia University comparable with the best in the country, is today in the same class with Thomas Edison, Marconi and the Wright brothers.

That is, Spears has entered the ranks of inventors by designing a radically new style of football pants, declared by many to suit ideally the needs of the gridiron performer.

The outstanding change he effected was a new and entirely different way of padding the knees.

Spears' idea will be placed on the market as the "West Virginia Model" football pants and gridiron authorities who have inspected the invention unanimously declared it to be the best contribution to gridiron equipment made in many years by coaches.

RUNYON SAYS

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—The Los Angeles boxing fans are not yet ready for the $16.50 pugilistic price familiar to New Yorkers.

This price means $15 for the seat, $1.50 for the tax.

Jack Doyle, Vernon promoter, tried it with the Mickey Walker-Bert Colima battle not long ago. Walker is the first real world's champion to make an appearance in California since the adoption of the new boxing law. Colima was supposed to be the best drawing card in Los Angeles.

Under the circumstances, the price seemed reasonable enough. But at ring time there were many empty $15 seats. Speculators, who had loaded up with them, were selling them for whatever they could get. The price was even slashed at the box office.

The fight drew a large amount of money, probably over $40,000. The house had been scaled to $60,000.

The galleries were jammed. The cheaper seats sold well. But the customers failed to clean out the $15 rack.

In New York, for an affair of proportionately the same importance, the promoters have no trouble selling the high priced seats. It is the medium priced seats that sell slowly if at all.

Here we have the difference between the New Yorker and other, perhaps more sensible, citizens.

The New Yorker, if he has the money, wants the HIGHEST PRICED seat. He fights to get it. Offer him a BETTER seat at a lower price and he is insulted.

He wouldn't sit in a cheap seat unless he was disguised. Here in Los Angeles the customers bought the medium-priced seats, or they didn't go at all.

Promoter Doyle made a satisfactory profit on the Walker-Colima fight. Also he learned a lesson of great value to him.

He was trying an experiment with the $15 prices. The ten-round game is young out here. Promoter Doyle had to investigate its possibilities from every angle to learn what can and what cannot be done. It is better for him to learn NOW, at a profit, than some future day, at great cost.

The writer doubts that you will again hear of $15 "tops" in Los Angeles until they put on a real world's championship bout. Perhaps that is all for the best.

Walker rescued the reputation of Eastern boxers, which have suffered sadly in California since the new law went into effect.

He is the first visitor to really impress the Californians. They admit he is a real fighter—a champion. The writer thought Walker a little loggy in the earlier rounds against the Mexican. He hadn't trained as easily as he does in the East.

Walker is a great fighter.

He is a heavy punisher with body blows. Only one other man in the game punches better than Walker in close. That's Dempsey.

He had Colima grunting loudly from the body smashes early in the battle.

It ended with the disqualification of Colima because his chief second and manager, "Dutch" Meyers, tried to put a bottle of smelling salts under Colima's nose when the Mexican was knocked flat in his own corner by Walker.

Colima probably could have gotten to his feet after the knockdown, even without the smelling salts. But another punch would have knocked him silly. Walker had just commenced to fight.

The welterweight champion thinks he will get a match with Benny Leonard some time during the summer, despite Leonard's announcement of retirement.

This is the one "shot" Walker is looking forward to. He expects to make enough money out of it to fix him comfortably for life, no matter what happens. Walker was to have received $140,000 from the match that fell through.

Walker, in his present form, figures to beat Leonard. He is very strong at the welterweight limit, is at his very peak of pugilistic power.

Walker doesn't think Dave Shade can make the welterweight mark any more. He is of the opinion that his chief rivals of the future will be Jack Zivic, of Pittsburgh, and Willie Harman, the New York boy.

Like ALL champions, he is looking beyond his own division for business. He would like to meet Harry Greb, the middleweight champion, a match that wouldn't jeopardize the welterweight title.

Walker, for all his tremendous ability as a welterweight, is quite likely to one day make the mistake of trying to give away TOO MUCH WEIGHT. Then he is apt to regret it. There is a limit to every man's capabilities.

The California "ringworms" are still thinking of the four-round day when a battle starts.

They want to see the men tear at each other without preliminary. They do not allow for "feeling out," for sparring.

The four-rounders may have been short, but they were filled with ACTION. You hear regrets for the "good old days" already.

Reds Will Finish In First Division Asserts Hendricks

Cincinnati Pilot Doesn't Fancy Pirates, Who, he Declares, Were Gold-bricked in the Mid-Winter Trade and Due for a Flop; Calls His Hurling Staff "Best."

By Davis J. Walsh.

RLANDO, Fla., Mar. 19.—Offering the prediction for what it may be worth, if anything, Jack Hendricks today declared that his Cincinnati Reds would finish in the first division and that the Pittsburgh Pirates, generally esteemed as a leading pennant contender, would not. He intimated that the Pirates were gold bricked in the mid-winter trade with the Cubs and therefore were due for a flop.

The Reds, Giants, Dodgers and Cubs are the clubs that will make the pace, he said, and of these, he fancied the Giants and Reds. Hendricks remarks that the Reds have undergone many beneficial changes between seasons and offers the following by way of substantiation.

That they have the best pitching staff in baseball, with Mays, Luque, Donohue, Rixey, Sheehan, May and Benton ready to shoot on sight; that the club, having witnessed the departure of Pat Duncan and George Burns and the chastening of Jimmy Caveney by securing Synthetic waivers, now recognizes Mr. Hendricks as boss, and that the appointment of Ed. Rousch as field Captain has eliminated the element of internal dissension that prevailed last year.

At the same time, Mr. Hendricks is free to admit that there is a dash of vinegar in the creme de menthe. Charley Bressen, whose purchase from St. Louis carried a heavy luxury tax, is probably a dead loss, Hendricks says. Bressen can field, run, hit and think. But he can't throw. He has a torn ligament under his right arm, the result of a St. Paul injury.

"I don't think we will get much out of him," Hendricks added, "at least not this season."

Further grief he cites in the fact that the Reds have but two catchers, Hargraves and Wingo, but must get another and that he has four outfielders and three of them hit lefthanded. The long righthander is Bill Zitzmann, Jersey City recruit, and although the young man has been the life of the party to date, he must and should have company.

"Zitzmann is a great prospect and his hustle is an inspiration to the rest of the club," Hendricks declared. "He will play left field with Rousch in center and Elmer Smith and Curtis Walker in right field. Lots of hitting there, but most of it is from the left side of the plate."

The five leading pitchers will be Rixey, Donohue, Mays, Sheehan and Luque, according to Hendricks, who says this pre-season choice will curtail much dissatisfaction. Last year he had seven good pitchers and they all wanted to pitch at the same time.

Caveney, a much subdued young man, will be played at shortstop and seems to have learned that baseball is not an eternal ride on the band wagon. Kritz, one of the best young players uncovered during 1924, will remain at second base, and Pinelli, whom Hendricks says is the best third baseman in the league, will play his favorite position.

Yet, according to some versions, everything is not essence of lilac with the infield. In fact, one of the regulars confided to me that Rube Bressler is somewhat less graceful than a sacred ox in taking throws at first base.

"A prayer rides with every ball I throw over there," was his succinct comment. Mr. Hendricks gives this angle of the situation a rather wide detour.

However, outside of defensive weaknesses at first base and behind the plate and the lack of another outfielder, the Reds seem almost foolproof. The first position is beckoning them, sure enough.

Sophomores Are Champs

The Sophomore basketball team emerged as champions of the high school interclass court league yesterday afternoon after defeating the Freshmen, 16 to 14.

Two extra three-minute periods were required to bring the contest to a close. The count was 14-14 at the end of the game. Neither scored in the first extra period.

Larkins' field goal in the next "extra" brought results.

The Sophs had a 4-2 lead at the end of the quarter, but were outclassed by the Freshies in the second period when the yearlings led, 10-6. The Sophs climbed back in the third period and tied the count, 10-10, at the end of the quarter. The last quarter battle again found them tied and the clash went overtime.

Larkins, McConville and McKee starred for the Sophs. Gibbons, Davis and English led the losers. The victory gave the boys the interclass championship, inasmuch as they went through without losing a game.

FIVE MEMBERS OF TEAM WILL GET LETTERS

Dick Larkins, Sophomore, Will be Manager of 1926 Entry.

Thomas Pusey, sophomore and varsity forward, will captain the 1926 high school basketball team.

Pusey, a brother of Robert, who, for several years starred in high school athletics prior to his graduation, was unanimously elected to the leadership of next years team at the regular post-season meeting and conference of the entire squad.

Richard Larkins, also a sophomore, was named manager of the team.

Five members of the Blue and White outfit will receive basketball letters for their work in 1924-25. They are: Dale Liebschner, retiring captain; Tom Pusey, 1925-26 captain; Paul English, E. English, McGraw and McConville.

Although prospects for next season's team are not dull by any means, there will be more than a little regret at the passing of two of the greatest guards the school has had since the days of Irvin Vorndran and Nate Allen, two members of the squad that went to the finals in the state scholastic tournament in 1916. Dale Liebschner and Charles McConville will be missed.

Always represented by a first class basketball team, East Liverpool high school this year was still up and in the running, although for the first time in many moons, ended the season without county championship laurels, which were tucked away by Salem.

The team played 23 games, winning 13, losing 10, and scoring 726 points to their opponents 587.

In Liebschner, McConville and P. English, the team had three players who would rank with the majority of scholastic performers in eastern Ohio.

Prospects are bright for next season, although the team loses both Liebschner and McConville, and in addition Howard, by graduation. There are left, however, Pusey, Davis, McGraw, McVey, Allison, Hall, P. English, E. English, Bough, Brozka, McKeever and Hamilton.

Among the most promising candidates who will come from the interclass league are Kimes and Kirkham of the Freshmen, Larkins, Schneidmiller, and McKee, of the Sophomores, and R. Bloor and Weikart of the Juniors.

HOW ABOUT SLATTERY FOR DEMPSEY'S TITLE?

Or, Perhaps, Stribling? Both Have Speed and Can Develop the Punch.

NEW YORK, March 19.—If, as the boys in the back room continue to insist, the man who will beat Jack Dempsey must be an individual with dazzling speed of hand and foot, what is to be the future of Jimmy Slattery and Young Stribbling? Both are faster than the "strike" of a rattler. Both are under twenty-one and growing so rapidly that they will be heavyweights, per se, within eighteen months or two years. Neither of them is a "killer" of the Dempsey strain, and you never saw a really clever man who was.

But the art of hitting can be mastered, just as one may develop a certain amount of ability at dominoes and wife beating. Ever at this early moment Slattery has begun to show improvement—as a puncher, not as a wife beater. He knocked over Frankie Schoell, a clever fellow-townsman, some weeks ago, and in his recent frolic with Jack Delaney his punch somehow seemed to carry greater authority than before.

The chances are that Slattery's muscles and joints are beginning to act more freely, giving his blows greater power. The trick of applying this at just the right moment will follow.

Stribbling, overworked last year, faces the same chance, although probably he never will hit hard enough to crack an office safe. However, one can't tell at this immature stage of his development.

Benny Leonard was and is a fine hitter. Yet between 1912 and 1915 he was known as the "Powder Puff Kid." Late in 1915 he knocked out Joe Mandot, and that started him on a rampage which only ended with his announced retirement.

Tom Gibbons scored just seven knockouts in forty-five fights prior to 1921; then he began to knock over his opponents in quantities, getting nineteen knockouts in twenty fights in 1921, and today he known as a most dangerous puncher.

Dempsey himself, probably the greatest hitter of all time, had to develop the knock-out knack. In 1915-16 such mixed-ale specimens as Jack Downey, Johnny Sudenberg, Terry Keller, Andre Anderson, Wild Burt Kenny and John Lester Johnson were blithely steping the limit with Jack. Not one of them could have repeated fifteen months later, when Dempsey was blazing his bloody trail to the heavyweight championship.

FAMOUS JOHN LEVI, TRAINING WITH YANKS, NOT READY FOR BIG LEAGUES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 19.—Jim Thorpe, noblest redskin of them all, failed to make good in the major leagues because he couldn't hit curve ball pitching, but it is hardly likely that the same fate will overtake John Levi, regarded by some as Thorpe's natural successor as an all around athlete. It cannot happen to John because there is hardly any likelihood that he will view major league pitching, at least as a member of the New York Yankees.

Levi Hard Worker.

Although Miller Huggins signed Levi right out of Haskell Institute, the noted Indian school, where the young man attained a national reputation in several sports, the Yankee manager apparently has paid the redman no heed down here. Levi has worked out early and often at the Yankee park, putting in a back breaking day with a smile, but Huggins, seemingly, hasn't been aware of his existence. It seems to be pretty generally agreed that Levi isn't ready for the big time.

In spite of his natural aptitude for athletics, he appears to be a bit ungainly and perhaps the Yankee board of strategy has decided that awkwardness constitutes a cardinal fault. That must be teh answer, since Levi hasn't had a real chance to show whether he harbors the spark of real ability under his rough exterior.

Fired by Ambition.

This has been the case with many another before him. Frank Baker certainly lacked some of the grace of Yaviowa. Ping Bodie always looked the part of a pork butcher, and neither of the Meusels is given to fetching postures. In fact, the list of graceless major leaguers, past and present, would fill a metropolitan telephone book.

And Levi has something that many a ball player has lacked, to wit, boundless ambition and the will to follow it to the end. He is the first Yankee on the field and the last to leave. None works harder than he, and after an hour of fly chasing many of them are blowing like a grampus, while Levi comes to the bench serene and smiling. The latter is his most conspicuous trait. His good humor is chronic and seemingly boundless.

Such a man, endowed as Levi is with a heritage of athletic royalty, should be a great prospect for any major league club. He may be two or three years away, but barring some interadicable fault not in evidence now, his ultimate arrival would seem to be ordained.

Backetball prospects at Wooster for 1926 seem only fair. Captain Hurst, Starn and Manly will be lost by graduation. The best new material is "Pete" Blough of Wadsworth and Bill Olson of Cleveland East.

Mountaineer Nine to Open Card on April 3

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19.—Two weeks from tomorrow the West Virginia University nine will make its 1925 debut by playing Duquesne University nine on the athletic field here. A two-game home series has been arranged with the Dukes, who are down on the Mountaineer card for both April 3 and 4. Duquesne came here to open the 1924 campaign early last April and captured both ends of the series and as this year's Duke squad is well supplied with veterans the initial assignment will find West Virginia making an uphill fight.

Storms prevented fishing off Aberdeen, Scotland, recently, and the subsequent shortage sent fish prices far above wartime quotations.

Buffalo Bowler Advances.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 19. — For the first time since the American Bowling Congress got under way, a local bowler today appeared among the first ten in the invidual pin competition. By virtue of a 660 score for three games last night, Fred Steinwald was able to break through to ninth place in the standing.

The Gardens, a Detroit team, went into fourth place in the five man events with a tally of 2,869. J. Genal and R. Teela of Oshkosh, Wis., in the doubles, made the second highest score in this event with a total of 1,255.

SOCIETY

Mrs. M. J. Niblock Surprised

A surprise was given Mrs. M. J. Niblock in her home in Cadmus street, last evening by members of her family, including children and grand-children, who celebrated her seventy-eighth birthday anniversary. A coverdish dinner was served at 6 o'clock, at which covers were arranged for 20 guests. St. Patrick's Day favors and a color scheme of green and white was carried out. Sweetpeas and narcissus adorned the table.

Rook and radio music were the diversions of the evening hours.

Mrs. Leroy Jamison, nee Miss Sara Niblock, of Huntington, Ind., was the only out-of-town guest.

Tendered Miscellaneous Shower.

Mr. and Mrs. George Neiswonger were surprised by a group of friends last evening, in their home in Pennsylvania avenue, East End. A miscellaneous shower was a feature.

The social hours were spent with talks by Harry Thompson, Thomas Stoddard, Rev. J. O. Archer and Mrs. Pearl Cook. Vocal duets were given by Mrs. George Neiswonger and Miss Margaret Pelly, and Miss Margaret Pelly and Miss Ethel Watson, accompanied by Miss Ada Miles. A vocal trio was featured by Misses Phyllis, Grace and Mary Olive Archer. Mrs. Charles Strobel gave a vocal solo.

A three-course luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Allison and Mrs. Anna Welsh. Covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Thompson, Thomas Stoddard, Miss Margaret Morran, Mrs. Neva Hull, Miss Mary Shaffer, Miss Mildred Hill, Mrs. Alice Finney, Mrs. Pearl Cook, Miss Mildred Cline, Miss Ada and Miss Lillian Miles, Mrs. Joseph Staats and daughters, Helen and Lucille; Rev. and Mrs. J. The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lutton of 914 Ninth avenue, New Brighton, was the scene of an unusually pleasant social event Sunday, when they celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary. About 50 friends and relatives were present. Rev. Riley, of the First Baptist church, was a special guest.

Dinner was served by Ocie Smith. Piano solos were given by Mrs. Sol Sommers of Wellsville and vocal solos by Mr. Smith.

The honor guests were presented with glassware.

Mrs. Lutton was formerly Miss Helen Hensley, daughter of Dr. J. M. Hensley, a physician of Bellaire. Mr. Lutton is employed by the Sanitary Manufacturing company of New Brighton, but was formerly employed as a conductor on the Pennsylvania railroad at Wellsville.

HOW ABOUT SLATTERY FOR DEMPSEY'S TITLE?

Or, Perhaps, Stribling? Both Have Speed and Can Develop the Punch.

NEW YORK, March 19.—If, as the boys in the back room continue to insist, the man who will beat Jack Dempsey must be an individual with dazzling speed of hand and foot, what is to be the future of Jimmy Slattery and Young Stribbling? Both are faster than the "strike" of a rattler. Both are under twenty-one and growing so rapidly that they will be heavyweights, per se, within eighteen months or two years. Neither of them is a "killer" of the Dempsey strain, and you never saw a really clever man who was.

But the art of hitting can be mastered, just as one may develop a certain amount of ability at dominoes and wife beating. Ever at this early moment Slattery has began to show improvement—as a puncher, not as a wife beater. He knocked over Frankie Schoell, a clever fellow-townsman, some weeks ago, and in his recent frolic with Jack Delaney his punch somehow seemed to carry greater authority than before.

The chances are that Slattery's muscles and joints are beginning to act more freely, giving his blows greater power. The trick of applying this at just the right moment will follow.

Stribbling, overworked last year, faces the same chance, although probably he never will hit hard enough to crack an office safe. However, one can't tell at this immature stage of his development.

Benny Leonard was and is a fine hitter. Yet between 1912 and 1915 he was known as the "Powder Puff Kid." Late in 1915 he knocked out Joe Mandot, and that started him on a rampage which only ended with his announced retirement.

Tom Gibbons scored just seven knockouts in forty-five fights prior to 1921; then he began to knock over his opponents in quantities, getting nineteen knockouts in twenty fights in 1921, and today he known as a most dangerous puncher.

Dempsey himself, probably the greatest hitter of all time, had to develop the knock-out knack. In 1915-16 such mixed-ale specimens as Jack Downey, Johnny Sudenberg, Terry Keller, Andre Anderson, Wild Burt Kenny and John Lester Johnson were blithely steping the limit with Jack. Not one of them could have repeated fifteen months later, when Dempsey was blazing his bloody trail to the heavyweight championship.

FAMOUS JOHN LEVI, TRAINING WITH YANKS, NOT READY FOR BIG LEAGUES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 19.—Jim Thorpe, noblest redskin of them all, failed to make good in the major leagues because he couldn't hit curve ball pitching, but it is hardly likely that the same fate will overtake John Levi, regarded by some as Thorpe's natural successor as an all around athlete. It cannot happen to John because there is hardly any likelihood that he will view major league pitching, at least as a member of the New York Yankees.

Levi Hard Worker.

Although Miller Huggins signed Levi right out of Haskell Institute, the noted Indian school, where the young man attained a national reputation in several sports, the Yankee manager apparently has paid the redman no heed down here. Levi has worked out early and often at the Yankee park, putting in a back-breaking day with a smile, but Huggins, seemingly, hasn't been aware of his existence. It seems to be pretty generally agreed that Levi isn't ready for the big time.

In spite of his natural aptitude for athletics, he appears to be a bit ungainly and perhaps the Yankee board of strategy has decided that awkwardness constitutes a cardinal fault. That must be teh answer, since Levi hasn't had a real chance to show whether he harbors the spark of real ability under his rough exterior.

Fired by Ambition.

This has been the case with many another before him. Frank Baker certainly lacked some of the grace of Pavlowa. Ping Bodie always looked the part of a pork butcher, and neither of the Meusels is given to fetching postures. In fact, the list of graceless major leaguers, past and present, would fill a metropolitan telephone book.

And Levi has something that many a ball player has lacked, to wit, boundless ambition and the will to follow it to the end. He is the first Yankee on the field and the last to leave. None works harder than he, and after an hour of fly chasing many of them are blowing like a grampus, while Levi comes to the bench serene and smiling. The latter is his most conspicuous trait. His good humor is chronic and seemingly boundless.

Such a man, endowed as Levi is with a heritage of athletic royalty, should be a great prospect for any major league club. He may be two or three years away, but barring some interadfeable fault not in evidence now, his ultimate arrival would seem to be ordained.

Boles Schedules 15 Games for Wooster

WOOSTER, March 19.—Coach L. C. Boles has booked fifteen conference games for the Wooster college basketball schedule for 1926. This is one of the longest schedules a Wooster squad has ever faced.

Backetball prospects at Wooster for 1926 seem only fair. Captain Hurst, Starn and Manly will be lost by graduation. The best new material is "Pete" Blough of Wadsworth and Bill Olson of Cleveland East.

Mountaineer Nine to Open Card on April 3

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 19.—Two weeks from tomorrow the West Virginia University nine will make its 1925 debut by playing Duquesne University nine on the athletic field here. A two-game home series has been arranged with the Dukes, who are down on the Mountaineer card for both April 3 and 4. Duquesne came here to open the 1924 campaign early last April and captured both ends of the series and as this year's Duke squad is well supplied with veterans the initial assignment will find West Virginia making an uphill fight.

Storms prevented fishing off Aberdeen, Scotland, recently, and the subsequent shortage sent fish prices far above wartime quotations.

Buffalo Bowler Advances.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 19. — For the first time since the American Bowling Congress got under way, a local bowler today appeared among the first ten in the invidual pin competition. By virtue of a 660 score for three games last night, Fred Steinwald was able to break through to ninth place in the standing.

The Gardens, a Detroit team, went into fourth place in the five man events with a tally of 2,869. J. Genal and R. Teela of Oshkosh, Wis., in the doubles, made the second highest score in this event with a total of 1,215.

Mrs. M. J. Niblock Surprised

A surprise was given Mrs. M. J. Niblock in her home in Cadmus street, last evening by members of her family, including children and grand-children, who celebrated her seventy-eighth birthday anniversary. A coverdish dinner was served at 6 o'clock, at which covers were arranged for 20 guests. St. Patrick's Day favors and a color scheme of green and white was carried out. Sweetpeas and narcissus adorned the table.

Rook and radio music were the diversions of the evening hours.

Mrs. Leroy Jamison, nee Miss Sara Niblock, of Huntington, Ind., was the only out-of-town guest.

Tendered Miscellaneous Shower.

Mr. and Mrs. George Neiswonger were surprised by a group of friends last evening, in their home in Pennsylvania avenue, East End. A miscellaneous shower was a feature.

The social hours were spent with talks by Harry Thompson, Thomas Stoddard, Rev. J. O. Archer and Mrs. Pearl Cook. Vocal duets were given by Mrs. George Neiswonger and Miss Margaret Pelly, and Miss Margaret Pelly and Miss Ethel Watson, accompanied by Miss Ada Miles. A vocal trio was featured by Misses Phyllis, Grace and Mary Olive Archer. Mrs. Charles Strobel gave a vocal solo.

A three-course luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Allison and Mrs. Anna Welsh. Covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Thompson, Thomas Stoddard, Miss Margaret Morran, Mrs. Neva Hull, Miss Mary Shaffer, Miss Mildred Hill, Mrs. Alice Finney, Mrs. Pearl Cook, Miss Mildred Cline, Miss Ada and Miss Lillian Miles, Mrs. Joseph Staats and daughters, Helen and Lucille; Rev. and Mrs. J. Wedding Anniversary Celebrated.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lutton of 914 Ninth avenue, New Brighton, was the scene of an unusually pleasant social event Sunday, when they celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary. About 50 friends and relatives were present. Rev. Riley, of the First Baptist church, was a special guest.

Dinner was served by Ocie Smith. Piano solos were given by Mrs. Sol Sommers of Wellsville and vocal solos by Mr. Smith.

The honor guests were presented with glassware.

Mrs. Lutton was formerly Miss Helen Hensley, daughter of Dr. J. M. Hensley, a physician of Bellaire. Mr. Lutton is employed by the Sanitary Manufacturing company of New Brighton, but was formerly employed as a conductor on the Pennsylvania railroad at Wellsville.

Birthday Party in Aiken Home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Akins received a number of friends in their home near the Bell school house recently, in honor of the seventieth birthday anniversary of Mr. Akins. An oyster supper was served, covers being arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tranter and children, Grace, Robert and Willis; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Rudibaugh and son Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith and son Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Chamberlain and daughters, Annabelle and June, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rudibaugh.

Music and games were the diversions of the social hours.

W. R. C. Meeting.

The Woman's Relief Corps will meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the G. A. R. hall, East Fourth and Washington streets.

Past Noble Grands Entertained.

The Past Noble Grands association, of Ceramic Rebekah lodge, was delightfully entertained Tuesday evening, in the home of Mrs. Anna Morris of Peake street. Sewing for Springfield Orphan's home was the principal diversion, after which music and games were enjoyed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. James McDole and Mrs. James Wilson. Covers were arranged for 20 guests.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Harry Todd, of College street, April 21.

COUNTY OFFICIALS TO PROBE FIRE

Beaver county authorities, it was announced yesterday, will be asked to make an investigation of the fire which destroyed a two-story barn on the Howard Fife farm, two miles north of here, causing a loss of $5,000. Nine head of cattle, two horses, and a large number of chickens and geese were burned to death in the blaze, which is believed to have been of incendiary origin. Fife saw two strangers acting suspciously on a roadway near the barn shortly after the fire was discovered.

Supper Arranged.

Unique ball team of the Pennsylvania Church of Christ has arranged to hold a supper in the church on Friday evening, March 27. Proceeds will be used in equipping the club for the coming season.

Aid Society Session.

Members of the Ladies Aid society of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ held an all day session in the church today. Regular program was carried out.

Dry Bill Defeated.

Beaver county's delegation of three members of the lower housev oted solidly for the United Dry bill which was defeated yesterday by that body at Harrisburg. The measure had previously passed the senate by the narrow margin of one vote more than the constitutional majority.

Orchestras Practice.

Orchestras of the Second Presbyterian and Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal churches will hold practice sessions this evening in their respective churches. Boy and girl scout members of the latter church will meet in regular session tomorrow evening.

Shop Meetings Held.

Adjutant J. G. Dean of the Salvation Army, spoke at the meeting today in the Smith-Phillips plant. Rev. D. W. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was the speaker at the C. C. Thompson pottery.

Greene Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Neiland Greene, 83 years old, were held this afternoon in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Olive Reydenrich, 1193 Erie street, Rev. Frederick A. Dean, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, officiating.

Burial was made in Long's Run cemetery.

COMMON SENSE IN SMALL DOSES

When the beef is rare the tapeworm isn't.

In rural communities, surface sewage disposal and shallow wells are the sole sources of water-borne diseases.

Boasting, as we do, of our Twentieth Century civilization, it is about time for us to regard the insane man as a patient and not as a prisoner.

And they used to catch people
And jail them for debt,
But jailing insane
Is medieval yet.

Incarceration behind steel bars, with criminals for companions, doesn't seem to us to be the proper treatment for one suffering from a disease of the mind.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT, IS FIERY, ITCHY OR ROUGH, USE SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

A Raw, Sore Throat

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. Keep it handy for instant use.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Walpole, N. H.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it has improved my health wonderfully. For months and months I was not regular and had terrible pains. JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March.—Announcement that the Vice-President of the United States, together with his associates, has acquired control of the $5,000,000 Jacksonville Gas company, was heralded by business men here as a sure sign that the Florida gateway city is on the verge of a tremendous boom.
